

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

About Google Book Search

The plates were drawn and engraved by Willemin himself, and carefully colored by hand. His industry was incessant and judicious, and his researches in libraries and collections were extended widely. The work consequently comprises representations of many unique objects of much interest as illustrations of the arts of the middle-ages and the renaissance, and which are not elsewhere to be found delineated.

THE ENTOMOLOGICAL LIBRARIES OF THE UNITED STATES.

By SAMUEL H. SCUDDER.

The addition to the resources of the University of the entomological library formed by Dr. Hagen during the past fifty years, has prompted an examination of the literature of this department in the principal scientific libraries throughout the country, partly by personal study, partly by correspondence; and, as the result of the examination may prove interesting to others, it is herewith published.

The addition of Dr. Hagen's library to the Museum of Comparative Zoology makes its entomological department by far the most valuable in the country. The card catalogue has 4,279 entries, of which 3,457 represent Dr. Hagen's books, 822 the others, which are almost entirely the gift to the Museum of Professors L. and A. Agassiz. The entire library is judged by Dr. Hagen to contain about 2,000 volumes and 3,000 pamphlets.

About one third of the total space which the library occupies is filled by journals and society publications, among which may be especially noted complete sets of the older magazines, rarely seen in this country. The library is rich in works and papers on Neuroptera and Pseudoneuroptera, groups of insects which have been Dr. Hagen's special study. It contains also a very valuable series of anatomical, physiological, and biological papers; the literature of fossil insects is well represented; and a neglected field—the bibliography of entomology—is unusually perfect from the material collected by Dr. Hagen for his catalogue of 1863. It contains, too, nearly all the works and even minor papers of certain entomologists, such as Linné, Fabricius, Latreille, Thunberg, Fallén, Sahlberg, Panzer, Germar, and many others still living. Since Dr. Hagen entered the Museum, he has formed a special library for North American publications, which is separately kept and already tolerably complete.

Many rare works, and a large number of exceedingly scarce tracts, obtained as opportunity offered during the past fifty years, make the library one of exceptional value. Many of these are the only copies Dr. Hagen has ever seen, and his familiarity with the bibliography of entomology is unrivalled. Fifty years ago, he says, when he purchased his first books, the standards of the day, the cost of entomological works was scarcely one fourth the price now demanded for the same volumes, so that with less than $10,000, it would then have been possible to form a tolerably complete library. There were then very few students and no competition, and being before the time of cheap and rapid transport, it was possible to buy French books in Germany, and German or English books in France, at very low rates; with the easier facilities of the present day, the formation of a library is a simpler, but from the greater demand and exhausted supply a far more expensive, matter. A memorandum of some of the rarer works in the library is appended.

The College Library is tolerably well represented in entomology for a general library, there being about 450 volumes and 50 or more catalogued pamphlets. These were in large measure selected while Dr. Harris was connected with the library, and mostly represent standard works. There are also in the library many costly voyages in which entomology is represented, but which are not included in this estimate.

Dr. Harris's private library, rarely duplicating works in the College Library, has come into the possession of the Boston Society of Natural History, and forms about one third of its present entomological department, which consists of about 900 volumes and nearly 550 pamphlets. The collection is a miscellaneous one; but contains some rare and valuable works cited in the appendix, and besides these may be mentioned an entire series of the tracts of Peck, Say, and Harris in their original forms. Periodical literature is also fairly represented. But the choicest part of the collection consists of its manuscript material, in which the library is exceptionally rich for North American entomology. It contains three sets of colored illustrations of Georgian insects and their transformations by Abbot (one, a small volume, and probably a copy) coming from the Harris library; another, a thick folio volume, and containing 174 sheets, from Dr. Asa Gray, originally from London; and a third, also in folio, consisting of 193 sheets painted by Abbot for Oemler of Georgia. Next, two small volumes, containing 239 sheets, the original drawings by Hentz for the illustration of his papers on the Spiders of the United States, which, though published by the Society in black, were drawn in color. Besides these, there are all the manuscripts left by Dr. Harris, collected into twenty-four volumes, mostly folios, a full account of which may be found in the Society's Proceedings (vol. xiii., pp. 167, 168).

The next largest public collection of entomological books in this vicinity is that of the Public Library of Boston, which contains about 650 volumes and 75 pamphlets. Periodical literature is very poorly represented; the greater part of the books being standard works, well selected and containing many rare and costly volumes, some not elsewhere found in this vicinity.

The Boston Athenaeum has a small and miscellaneous collection of a little more than 150 volumes and pamphlets, with one or two rare works; and the Cambridge Entomological Club one of nearly 200 volumes and about 500 pamphlets.

It may be well to include in the account of the entomological collections of this vicinity, the private of libraries Mr. Burgess and myself. Mr. Burgess's library, recently formed, contains about 150 volumes and 300 pamphlets. The anatomy of insects, and systematic works on Diptera, are fairly represented, nearly one half of the library being devoted to these departments.

The entomological portion of my own library consists of 765 volumes and very nearly 2,000 pamphlets. There are only a few serials, the bulk of the library being made up of the less costly general works on each order, and of special collections of papers on Orthoptera, Butterflies, Fossil insects, and the anatomy, morphology, and embryology of insects. In Orthoptera and fossil insects, it contains nearly every thing now procurable, and some very scarce works. In the former, it also contains a separate collection of some thousand illustrations, separately mounted, and systematically arranged, while in anatomy, etc., it is second, in this country, only to the library of the Zoological Museum. Among others will be found complete, or very nearly complete, series of the papers of Herold, Newport, Dufour, Graber, Plateau, Brauer, Weismann, Laboulbène, Thunberg, Selys, Saussure, Stål, Brunner, Wood-Mason, Serville, Murray, A. and H. Dohrn, Girard, Hentz, Harris, Packard, Heer, Oustalet, Brodie, Heyden, Weyenbergh, and Goldenberg; and the Phylloxera papers of the French Academy.

The libraries of Salem are not rich enough in entomological works to require mention. In Providence, Dr. A. S. Packard has a collection of 470 volumes and 550 pamphlets on insects. It is fuller in systematic works on Lepidoptera, Hymenoptera, and Coleoptera than on other orders, but its special value lies in its collection of embryological and morphological papers, comprising very full series of the works of the writers on these topics mentioned in the last paragraph, as well as of Claparède, Metschnikoff, Melnikow, Ganin, Kowalewsky, etc.

In New York, the Astor Library has about 500 volumes, of which one fourth consists of serials; it contains some costly, but few, if any, very rare works. The New York Academy of Science has a small library in this department, but I have been unable to obtain any figures concerning it.

The Society of Natural Science at Buffalo possesses somewhat over 500 volumes and nearly as many pamphlets on entomology. It is particularly well supplied with works and papers, both old and recent, on Nocturnal Lepidoptera, which have formed the special study of Mr. Grote, the principal officer of the society.

The entomological library at Cornell University has about 150 volumes and 50 pamphlets.

In Philadelphia, we find another entomological centre. The largest library is perhaps that of the American Entomological Society; it is said to consist of 1,728 volumes and 336 pamphlets; but these figures include a considerable number of periodical and other works on general natural history, preserved for the sake of the entomological matter they contain, and may not fairly be compared with the others. Serial entomological publications (at least existing ones) are very completely represented, and there are many costly works.

This library is now in the hall of the Academy of Natural Sciences, which itself possesses 956 volumes on strictly entomological subjects, and 554 pamphlets; all the departments are about equally well represented, but many works are necessarily duplicated in the collection last mentioned, and both owe much of their value to the generosity of the late Dr. T. B. Wilson. The library contains a number of letters written by Say to Melsheimer, from 1813 to 1825.

Dr. J. L. LeConte, of Philadelphia, estimates his private library to consist of about 700 volumes and 800 pamphlets, and it is undoubtedly the most complete library for Coleoptera in the country, very few papers on American beetles being wanted. It is full in this order only, but contains nearly every thing in the shape of monographs, besides many formal works and series of transactions. There are many rare old works, which are of no special use for reference, but valuable as bibliographical curiosities, being scarcely ever met with on sale. It also contains the working copy of the elder Melsheimer's catalogue of U. S. Coleoptera, full of marginal notes, and other interesting relics; and also an immense collection of original drawings,—several thousand in number, of insects of all orders found in the Atlantic States, made principally by Major John LeConte (Dr. LeConte's father) and partly by Abbot, whom he employed as a collector and draughtsman.

In Baltimore, the library of the Peabody Institute has over 800 volumes and about 200 separate pamphlets on entomology. It contains complete series of many entomological journals, and otherwise consists mainly of standard works, well selected, as would be expected with Messrs. Morris and Uhler's supervision. There are few rare books in it, but the more costly and expensive works are well represented. Mr. P. R. Uhler's private library in the same city consists of over 300 volumes and about 500 pamphlets on insects, selected with special reference to Mr. Uhler's specialty, the Hemiptera, but not inconsiderable in other directions, and particularly in Coleoptera and Neuroptera; it is mostly confined to systematic works.

I have been unable to obtain any figures concerning the Congressional Library in Washington, which must be of considerable value, particularly as it includes that of the Smithsonian Institution. Mr. Riley has, however, kindly supplied some notes about it. In serial publications it is, of course, rich; and in miscellaneous works it has a complete collection of entomological books published in America. In foreign works, however (excepting in serials), it is comparatively poor.

The library of the entomological division of the department of Agriculture contains about 300 volumes, mostly selected on account of their absence from the Congressional Library, and consisting of standard works. It contains the only complete colored copy of Mr. Glover's plates of American insects; and the general library of agricultural works includes many works embracing papers on applied entomology. Special mention may be made of a complete set of the Gardiner's Chronicle of London, in which are many articles by Westwood.

The private library of Mr. C. V. Riley, of Washington, contains about 700 volumes of purely entomological books and about 3,000 pamphlets, nearly all of which are directly entomological. It is especially rich in biological papers and such as illustrate the economic bearings of the science. Several of the late Mr. Walsh's books are found here with his marginal notes. Mr. Riley has paid particular attention to the fugitive literature of entomology, and has 22 scrap-books filled with nearly every thing that has appeared on insects during the last twelve years in agricultural and other papers,—articles mostly of an economic character, and generally overlooked in bibliographies.

This review clearly shows the great advantages to an entomologist of a residence in this vicinity, where the bibliographical aids to study equal, if they do not surpass, those of the rest of the country combined.

18. De Geer. Mémoires pour servir à l'histoire des insectes. Stockholm. 1752-58. 7 v. 4°. B.A. P.L.

Copies may also be found at the Astor library and Peabody institute.

19. Gladbach. Beschreibung neuer europäischen schmetterlingen. Frankfurt. 1777. 4°. M.Z.

According to Dr. Hagen, only three copies are known.

20. Gray. Notices of insects that are known to form the bases of fungoid parasites. London. 1858. 4°. M.Z. S.H.S.

Only a small edition was printed and privately distributed by the author, whose name appears only by the initials G. R. G.

21. Hartmann. Succini prussici physica et civilis historia. Francofurti. 1677. 8°. M.Z. S.H.S.

Very rare.

22. Hebenstreit. De locustis immenso agmine aerem nostrum implentibus. Jenae. 1693. 4°. M.Z. S.H.S.

Prange is not mentioned as author in either copy. Cf. Hagen's Bibl., I. 351.

23. Hoefnagel. Archetypa studiaeque patris. Francofurti. 1592. Oblong 4°. M.Z.

This copy is a very great rarity, printed on thin, pale pink paper, with a water-mark of Mercury's staff and snakes, differing from the ordinary copies. It is the only copy known to Dr. Hagen certainly colored at the time of original issue; a colored copy in Von Heyden's library was apparently painted at a later date. A third copy is quoted by Brunet, but has not been seen by Dr. Hagen (See Hagen's Bibl., I. 371). This is the first illustrated colored work on entomology ever printed. Dr. Hagen's copy is, however, defective in lacking eighteen of the fifty-two plates. The originals of Hoefnagel's plates, painted on parchment, still exist in the museum at Oxford, — formerly in the library of Disraeli, the father of Earl of Beaconsfield.

24. Hoefnagel. Diversae insectorum volatiliu icones. (Amsterdam.) 1630. Oblong 4°. M.Z.

This work, also from Dr. Hagen's library, is even much rarer than the plain copies of the preceding. From 1840 to 1867 only a single copy was quoted for sale; since then, according to Dr. Hagen, two have appeared on antiquarian catalogues, but one of them falsified by the introduction of some plates from the preceding work, the insects figured in the two being the same.

25. Hübner. Beiträge zur geschichte der schmetterlinge. Augsburg. 1786-89. 2 v. 8°. P.L. S.H.S.

27. Hübner. Geschichte europäischer schmetterlinge. Augsburg. 1806-18. 4°. P.L.

28. Hübner. Sammlung exotischer schmetterlinge. Augsburg. 1806-24. 3 v. 4°. H.C. S.H.S.

There is also a copy at Buffalo. My copy of this and the following works of Hübner came from the library of Brebisson, and appear to have been those of an original subscriber.

29. Hübner. Tentamen determinationis... lepidopterorum. [Augsburg, 1806?] S.H.S.

The only copy known to exist, from which my reprint of 1873 was taken.

30. Hübner. Beiträge zur sammlung exotischer schmetterlinge. Augsburg. 1818-37. 4°. H.C. S.H.S.

There is also in my library a pamphlet without title (4 pp. 4°), giving names to a part of the insects in the first century of the Zuträge, often differing from those of the Zuträge, and evidently preceding it in date: perhaps it formed part of a prospectus of that work.

31. Hübner. Index exoticorum lepidopterorum. Augustae Vindelicorum. 1821. 4°. S.H.S.

32. Hübner. Systematisch-alphabetisch verzeichniss. Augsburg. 1822. 8°. P.L. S.H.S.

33. Linné. Dissertationes. A complete set of the 186 dissertations afterwards published in the Amenitates academicae. 8 v. 40. M.Z.

Dr. Hagen says the original copies are of great rarity, a complete set existing elsewhere, so far as he knows, only in Stockholm and Upsala. Dr. Hagen's copy was collected by Afzelius, a pupil of Linné's, and several of them bear Linné's autograph. A high price has been offered for this copy, which contains all the original plates, some of which—that, for instance, of the Pandora insectorum—being far rarer than the dissertations which contain them.

34. Maoleay. Horae entomologicae. London. 1819-21. 2 v. 80. S.H.S.

Extremely rare, as nearly the whole edition was burned. It contains the fullest exposition of the author's "quinary system of nature."

35. Majolus. Simonis Majoli Ostensis episcopi vultuariensis dierum canicularium, tom. vii., etc. Francofurti. 1642. fo. M.Z.

37. Melsheimer. Catalogue of the insects of Pennsylvania. Hannover. 1806. 120. M.Z.

38. Metaxa (Liugi) e Rolli. Osservazioni naturali intorno alle cavallette nocive della campagna romana. Roma. 1825. 40. S.H.S.

39. Moller. Meditatio de insectis quibusdam Hungaricis. Francofurti. 1673. 120. M.Z.

Very rare.

40. Moufet. Insectorum sive minimorum animalium theatrum. Londini. 1634. Sm. fo. H.C. M.Z. N.H.

Also in the Congressional library.

41. New England Farmer. The volumes or numbers containing the papers of Dr. Harris are in H.C. M.Z. N.H. S.H.S.

42. Newport. Collections of his anatomical and physiological papers, nearly complete, will be found in my library, and in that of Dr. Packard, in Providence.

43. Olearius. Gottorffische kunstkammer. Schleswig. 1674. 40. M.Z.

44. Olivier. Entomologie: coléoptères. Paris. 1780-1808. 8 v. 40. H.C. M.Z. N.H. P.L.

There is also a copy at the Peabody institute.

45. Pallot de Beauvois. Insectes recueillis en Afrique et en Amérique. Paris. 1805-21. fo. H.C.

An imperfect copy. There is also a copy at Baltimore.

46. Panzer. Fauna insectorum Germanicae initia. Nürnberg. 1793-1844. 190 fasc., oblong 80. M.Z.

Complete, with all the additions and catalogues. It is probably the only copy in the country.

47. Peters. Naturwissenschaftliche reise nach Mozambique. Insecten und myriopoden. Berlin. 1862. 40. M.Z.

48. Poey. Centurie de lépidoptères de l'île de Cuba. Paris. 1833. 80. S.H.S.

49. Quinones. Tratado de las langostas. Madrid. 1820. 40. B.A. M.Z. S.H.S.

50. Ray. Historia insectorum. Londini. 1710. 40. M.Z.

Dr. Hagen considers this the only copy in the country.

51. Rambur. Faune entomologique de l'Andalusie. Paris. 1842. 2 v. 80. S.H.S.

I possess only the second and rarer volume, containing all excepting the coleoptera. Most of the copies placed on sale were withdrawn by the author, and only a few found in his possession at his death. According to Staudinger, vol. ii. pp. 305-36 (in my copy) were never published by Rambur.

52. Rambur. Catalogue systématique des lépidoptères de l'Andalusie. Paris. 1858-66. 2 livr., forming partie I. S.H.S.

The second livraison does not appear to have been issued before 1870, and contains four plates of a third part, never published.

53. Roberg. De libella insecto lacustri et alato. Upsaliae. 1732. 40. M.Z.

54. Roesel. Monatliche insecten-belustigung. Nürnberg. 1746-61. 4 v. 40. M.Z. H.C. P.L.

I have also an imperfect copy, and copies are in Brown university, the Peabody institute, and Mr. C. V. Riley's library. The Dutch translation is also in the Public library of Boston. Dr. Hagen's copy is one in which the earlier parts were colored by Roesel himself before he was ennobled. These are now rather scarce.

55. Rondelet. Libri de piscibus marinis. Lugduni. 1554-55. 2 v. fo. M.Z.

56. Savigny. Description de l'Égypte (50 plates of insects). Paris. 1809-13. Elephant fo. H.C. S.H.S.

Also in Dr. Packard's library and that of the Peabody Institute; doubtless in others.

57. Say. American entomology. Philadelphia. 1817. 80. M.Z.

This preliminary part, issued many years before the first volume bearing the same title, is exceedingly rare,—"never properly published," says Say himself. Only one other copy is known in this country,—in the library of Dr. Le Conte.

58. Say. Descriptions of new species of North American insects, and observations on some of the species already described. New Harmony. 1820-33 [1830-34]. 80. N.H. S.H.S.

One of the rarest of Say's New Harmony pamphlets, since twice republished; typographically, one of the most irregular pamphlets ever issued.

59. Schiffermüller. Systematisch verzeichniss der schmetterlinge der wiener gegend. Wien. 1776. 40. M.Z. S.H.S.

Probably the only copies of the author's edition in the country. I have also the edition of 1775, which is given as a separate work by Hagen, but which differs from the later only in the date on the two title-pages, a different frontispiece, and a preliminary title-page: Ankündigung eines systematischen werkes von den schmetterlingen der wiener gegend. 1775. (Cf. Hagen, Bibl. 11. 122.)

60. Sepp. Surinaamische vlinders. Amsterdam. 1848-55. 3 v. 40. N.H.

61. Stroem. Physik och oekonomisk beskrivelse over fogderiet Söndmör. Sorae. 1762. 40. M.Z.

62. Thunberg. Dissertationes. Upsaliae. 1781-1828.

A very nearly complete set of his entomological papers, some of them very scarce, will be found in M.Z. S.H.S.

63. Uddman. Novae insectorum species. Aboae. 1753. 40. M.Z.

64. Villiers et Guenée. Tableaux synoptiques des lépidoptères d'Europe. Paris. 1835. 40. S.H.S.

65. Walker. Diptera britannica. London. 1851-56. 3 v. 80. S.H.S.

Scarce. Also in Mr. E. Burgess's library.

66. Wigand. Vera historia de succino borassico. Jenae. 1590. 80. M.Z.

According to an inscription made in this copy a century ago, this was even then "liber perrarus."

67. Wotton. De differentiis animalium libri decem. Lutetiae Parisiorum. 1552. fo. M.Z.

69. Zinnani. Delle uova e dei nidi degli uccelli libro primo; osservazioni giornali sopra la cavallette. Venezia. 1737. 40. M.Z. S.H.S.

Henry IV., 1632, £4 18s. There is a copy in BPL.
Lear, 1608, £20 10s. This is the commoner of the 1608 editions, with 44 leaves while the other has 41 leaves. This copy, originally Steevens's, bringing at his sale in 1800, £2 2s., passed successively through the following sales: Duke of Grafton, £6 6s.; Roxburghe, £6 12s.; Halliwell, 1857; Tite, 1874, £11 1s. It is, perhaps, the copy held by Quaritch, 1875-79, "with Steevens's autograph," £16.

Richard, duke of York, 1600, £63. This is the highest price yet brought for a copy, and it passed to Mr. Barton, and is now in BPL. Halliwell has written in it, "The present is the second [edition] and is of the greatest rarity in an absolutely perfect state."

Henry IV., 1622, £9. This copy is now in BPL.

Othello, 1655, £3. There is a copy in BPL. See 1859, no. 3.
Othello, 1630, £4 14s. 6d. Halliwell described it as a peculiarly fine copy of a play almost always found in a cropped state. It brought £6 at Tite's sale.

Henry IV., 2d part, 1600, £100. The catalogue has the following notes: "The present is the rarest of any of Shakespeare's genuine plays that have occurred for sale during the last twenty years." "Nothing would induce me to part with it, had I not a copy largely made up with excellent fac-similes which, though of slight comparative pecuniary value, is as useful to me for purposes of collation."

This is the edition of 1600 having 43 leaves, the other having 41 leaves. Cf. note under vol. xxi. of the series given under 1862-1871.

Lear, 1655, £11. "The rarest of the later quartos." "With the exception of a copy sold, 1856, £10 10s., we do not trace another for many years." It had been Jolley's copy; and passed from Halliwell to Barton, and is now in BPL.

Taming of the shrew, 1613, £5 5s. There is a copy in BPL. See 1859, no. 3.

Henry IV., 1599, few leaves inlaid, £75. It was described as "probably the finest copy known of one of the most intrinsically valuable of all the early quartos." Mr. Halliwell adds in a note, "The difficulty of obtaining [the early quartos] even with the extensive searches instituted by me during nearly eighteen years" prove their "undeniable rarity. Among many other localities that have been tried, recollecting the occupation of Flushing by the English in the time of Shakespeare, — early editions might have been carried thither, especially as English plays were performed there, — I was at the expense of sending an intelligent agent through Zealand, unfortunately without any useful results. In fact, bearing in mind the expenses of searches of this kind and the necessity of buying duplicates for the sake of securing others, I may safely say no Shakespeare quarto ever came into my hands at a reasonable rate." Cf. Winsor's Bibliog. of Shakespeare, p. 14.

Richard II., 1608, £30 10s. It was bought by Tite, and sold at his sale in 1874, for £16 5s. This is the edition of this year, which does not mention the "additions" on the title.

Troublesome reigns of John, King of England, 1611, £17 10s. Halliwell bought it at Loscombe's sale, June, 1854, for £10 10s.; and it now passed to Barton, and is at present in the BPL.

Pericles, 1610, £5. This copy had the "long imprint," and is now in the BPL. See 1859, no. 3.

Love's labour lost, 1631, £3. — now in BPL.

3. Halliwell-Phillipps, J. O. Early editions of Shakespeare. BPL.

This tract, without title-page, of 14 pages, is dated June 22, 1857, and enumerates various copies, described as "absolutely genuine and not perfected from any other copies." Early quartos beginning with the Hamlet of 1603, are described.

4. Halliwell-Phillipps, J. O., editor. Books of characters, illustrating the habits and manners of Englishmen from the reign of James I. to the restoration, selected by J. O. Halliwell. London. 1857. 4^o.

1. Sotheby, S. Leigh, and Wilkinson, John. Catalogue of rare and curious books illustrative of the English drama and early English literature, the property of the well-known Shakespearean commentator [J. O. Halliwell.] Date of sale, June 14, 1858. London. HC. BPL.

The BPL. copy is priced, with Barton's purchases marked, and is endorsed, "It possesses much interest to Shakespearean bibliographers on account of the enormous prices paid for some of the lots." The chief Shakespearean numbers are as follows:—

Hamlet, no date, £24 10s. "Probably the finest copy known," and is presumably the one described in Halliwell's "Hand-list," 1859, as "one of the few of so early date" in an uncut condition.

Hamlet, 1611, £18. There is a copy in BPL.

Merchant of Venice, Robert, 1600, £14 15s. There is a copy in BPL. See no. 3 under 1859.

Merry wives of Windsor, 1619, £13 13s. There is a copy in BPL.

Sonnets, 1600, £154 7s. This copy had the Wright imprint, and was bought by Henry Huth. See Winsor's Bibliog. of Shakespeare's poems, p. 8. Halliwell made the following note in a copy of the 1600 Romeo, now in the British museum: "Shakespeare 40s rise in value in geometrical progression. In Brand's sale 1807 the Sonnets, MS. title, fetched ten shillings & sixpence. At Utterston's sale, 1854, I gave upwards of £30 with title & one leaf MS!"

Troublesome reigns of John, king of England, 1611, £10.
Romeo and Juliet, 1609, £86. "The first perfect copy that has appeared for sale for many years." It was bought by Tite, and brought at his sale, 1874, £43 10s.

Richard II., 1615, £11. There is a copy in BPL. See no. 3, under 1859.

Poems, 1640, £5 7s. 6d. See no. 1, under 1859.

Mortgage deed of a house in Blackfriars, March 11, 1612-13, signed by Shakespeare. 300 guineas. Bought by the British museum.

2. Famous victories (The) of Henry the Fifth. Containing the Honourable Battell of Agincourt. As it was acted by the Kinges Maiesties seruants. London. Imprinted by Barnard Alsop, and are to be sold by Tymothie Barlow, at his shop in Paules church-yard, at the Signe of the Bull-head. 1617. Fac-simile.

Halliwell caused ten photographic fac-similes of this quarto to be made (Shakespeareana, 1862, no. 777), before he disposed of the original to the British museum. The original bears this note by Halliwell: "This beautiful copy of the Famous Victories of Henry the Fifth, though corresponding in text with the known editions of 1617, and one without date printed about the same time, is in itself, as far as I know, unique. The other copies of 1617 are stated to be 'Imprinted by Barnard Alsop, dwelling in Garter Place in Barbican, 1617.' Even that edition is very rare. No copy has, I think, been sold since Heber's, part 2, no. 4636."

Halliwell described this copy in 1857, as "edges entirely uncut" and "perfectly genuine throughout, not a single leaf being supplied from any other copy." Bohn is in error in quoting a copy in the Wilks sale, 1847. Halliwell's "Warehouse catalogue," 1876, shows a copy. In his folio edition of Shakespeare he gives a fac-simile of the title.

1. Halliwell-Phillipps, J. O. An introduction to the evidences of Christianity. 2d ed. London. 1859. 16^o. HC. BPL.

2. Nares, Robert. A glossary; or, Collection of words, phrases, names, and allusions to customs, proverbs, etc., which have been thought to require illustration, in the works of English authors, particularly Shakespeare and his contemporaries. A new ed. with considerable additions, by J. O. Halliwell [Phillipps], and Thomas Wright. 2 vol. London. 1859. 8^o. HC. BPL.

The editors' additions are distinguished by a † prefixed, and the examples thus added amount to between five and six thousand.

The anecdote at the top of the page loses its point from calling Kozlof, a common Russian name, Kozlaf, which to a Russian looks more like a Scandinavian name. The mistake of speaking of Nicolas I. as the son of Alexander I. on the same page, is more serious, as much bloodshed would have been saved had Alexander I. left a son.) — The revolutionary movement in Russia. Russland vor und nach dem Kriege. von J. Eckardt. Leipsig. 1875.

An English translation of this valuable work, with a preface by Mr. Fairfax Taylor, is reprinted under the title "Russia before and after the War," with latest additions from the author, by Harper Bros. in their Franklin Square Library. This work has been extensively reviewed. See the Westminster Review, January, 1880, "Russia and Russian Reformers," which contains a digest of the interesting chapters on Alexander Herzen, Michael Bakunin and Prince Tsherkassky. "O. K.," a lady of high standing in Russian society, and author of a clever political treatise on the relations of Russia and England, reviewed Mr. Eckardt's work adversely in Frazer's Magazine, March, 1880.

See also "Der Pionier" for 1878 and 1879, published until recently by Mr. Karl Heinzen, of Roxbury, Mass., who, greatly interested in all revolutionary movements of Europe, and of Germany and Russia, in particular, succeeded in making his paper a reservoir for all the stray articles on nihilism that appeared in Germany in the "Neue Freie Presse," "Kölnische Zeitung," "Augsburger Allgemeine Zeitung," etc. It can be found in the Boston Public Library.

Forty-one of the woodcuts of the series known as Holbein's "Dance of death" appear to have been engraved by Hans Lützelburger from Holbein's designs, at Basel, as early as 1527. Copies of them exist printed on separate leaves. The first edition with a text, and printed on both sides of the leaves was published at Lyons by Melchior and Gaspar Trechsel, in 1538, under the title Les simulachres & historices faces de la mort, autant elegamment pourtraictes, que artificiellement imaginés. Above each cut was a verse from the Vulgate, and beneath quatrains in French by Gilles Corrozet.

Two editions followed in 1512, one of them with the title Imagines de Mortis, the French verses being translated into Latin; both published by Jan and François Frellon.

In 1545 an edition appeared entitled Imagines Mortis with the Latin text, and a second, also with the same title and the Latin text, and with the number of the cuts increased to fifty-three.

In 1547 there were four impressions, — three with the Latin, one with the French text.

In 1549 there was an impression with an Italian text.

In 1554 an edition, Icones Mortis appeared at Basel with five more cuts, making fifty-eight in all, and in 1562 an edition at Lyon.

This was the last edition in which the original blocks were used. There have been many reproductions by various methods.

For the full bibliography of this precious little work, the most important single work in the history of German art and wood-cutting, see Massmann, Literatur der todtenähne, Leipzig, 1840; Woltmann, Holbein und seine zeit, Leipzig, 1868, theil ii. pp. 407-410; the Holbein society's Fac-simile reprints, vol. i.; The dance of death, Manchester and London, 1869, pp. 260-276; Douce, The dance of death exhibited in elegant engravings on wood, etc. London, 1833, pp. 82, 103-109. C. The library has also the original edition of 1636 [4382.18]. Harris, Notes sur la Nouvelle France, no. 62, says the book is hard reading, which explains the little use made of it by historians. Charlevoix, Shea's ed. i. 78, says, "He gives us on the whole few interesting facts," but compare Shea's note, ii. 50. E. Chevalier, in his introduction to the present edition, arraigns Charlevoix for this judgment. The original is now rare and costly. Dufosse, Americana, 1876 and 1877-78, prices copies at twelve and fifteen hundred francs. Cf. Field's Indian bibliography, 342; who says the second and fourth parts are little more than an extension of Le grand voyage of 1632. Of this latter book, — of which this library has also the original edition [4382.20], Harris, Notes, etc., no. 53, says that after the Solar sale, where it brought 320 francs, it became an object for collectors, and Dufosse, in 1877, priced it at 550 francs, and Ellis & White, the same year, at £42.

The brief text concerning them is found in the London edition at i. 406-13, and ii. 74-79; in the American edition at i. 306-11 and ii. 74-79; in the German at pp. 453-63. The additions by Agassiz consist of a couple of unimportant notes. A new edition by Frank Buckland (London, 1858) I have not seen, and the London edition examined is the second, apparently agreeing in every respect with the first, published in 1836.

3. Halliwell-Phillipps, J. O. A hand-list of upwards of a thousand volumes of Shakespeariana added to the three previous collections of a similar kind, and of which lists have been previously printed. London. 1862. 80. BPL.

"Only twenty-five copies printed."

The collection consists of articles costing from one shilling to £63. The editor says: "In lists of Shakespeariana in bookseller's catalogues rarely occurs a single tract of any scarcity."

In a private note, Mr. Halliwell-Phillipps gives some account of his experience as a collector of bibliographical rarities, from which, with his consent, a few paragraphs here follow:—

"About the year 1836, when I first began hunting for old books at the various stalls in our famous London city, black-letter ones and rare prints were 'plenty as blackberries,' and I have often found such things in unlikely places and amidst a mass of commonplace rubbish, exposed for sale in boxes labelled, These books and pamphlets, 6d. or 1s. each, outside an old bookseller's window, where another notice informed the passer-by that Libraries were purchased or books bought; and thus plainly showed how such now indeed rarities came into the possession of an ignorant bibliophile! It was not, however, till about 1840, that I turned my attention to the more special work of collecting Shakespeare quartos, in which I may say I have been very successful. It was at one of George Chalmers's sales I first bought one or two, and after that I hunted for them in all parts of the country and met with considerable success, often buying duplicates and even triplicates of the same edition and play. At one time I possessed no less than three copies of the very rare quarto edition of Romeo and Juliet, 1609, and sometimes even had four copies of more than one of the other quartos. Not so very long before this period, old Jolley, the well-known collector, picked up a Caxton at Reading, Berkshire; and a Venus and Adonis of 1504, at Manchester, in a volume of old tracts, for the ignoble sum of one shilling and three pence. Jolley was a wealthy orange merchant of Farringdon street, London, and entertained me often with many stories of similar fortunate finds of rare books, which served to whet my appetite only the more. But I was soon stopped in my book-hunting career, by the appearance all at once on the scene of a number of buyers with much longer purses than my own, and thus I was driven from a market, I had derived so much pleasure from, with very great regret. Sometime afterwards circumstances rendered it desirable that I should part with a large number of my book treasures by auction and to the British museum; but even then I retained enough to be instrumental in founding the first Shakespearian library in Scotland, by presenting to the university of Edinburgh, among other rarities, nearly fifty copies of original quartos of Shakespeare's plays, printed before the Restoration, and to keep sufficient myself of the rarest and most valuable examples, which I am proud to feel makes my present collection of such books the largest in this county of Sussex. In fact more early quarto Shakespeares have been in my own possession, than it is now possible can ever fall to the lot of any other individual."

FAC-SIMILES OF THE SHAKESPEARE QUARTOS.

. It is deemed best to keep the following titles together, and not to scatter them through the years, covered by their dates of publication.

The general preface to the series says, "Every single letter has been traced from the originals by hand, and for all really practical uses, this series is as valuable as a collection of the early quartos themselves. But to assert that in delicate and minute points, references to the originals are rendered unnecessary, would be manifestly an exaggeration. There is no known process which could preclude the advisability of an occasional recourse, on special questions, to the early editions." What was true in 1871, it is feared remains so still, notwithstanding the advances in the utilization of sun-work in the processes of printing. This tracing for the lithographic stone was done by Edmund William Ashbee, Mr. Halliwell exercising a general supervision of the work. "I being the director, not the worker" he says, in the account of the series given in his Shakespeariana, 1867, p. 40. One side of the leaf only was printed on, and each copy is marked: "For private circulation only.

Only fifty copies printed, nineteen of which were subsequently destroyed, thus reducing the number preserved to thirty-one. The number of each copy then follows, and then the signatures of Ashbee, Tuckett (the binder), and Halliwell. The latter says in a private letter, "Owing to the late fire at the Pan-technicon," Feb. 13, 1874, when all the sets unsubscribed for were destroyed, "and the way in which sets have been broken up, I do not fancy that there are above fifteen sets in existence." It is not known that there is a complete set in Boston or its vicinity. The set which belonged to Mr. W. G. Medlicott of Longmeadow, Mass., was taken to England. Cf. Medlicott Catalogue, p. 330. The Lenox library in New York has a complete set; and others are in the private collections of Mr. C. W. Frederickson of New York, and of Mr. Horace Howard Furness of Philadelphia. There are parts of sets in the Shakespeare society's library in Philadelphia and in the Boston public library.

Shakespeare, William. A collection of lithographic fac-similes of the early quarto editions of Shakespeare, including every known edition of all the plays issued during his lifetime. By Edmund William Ashbee. 48 vol. London. 1862-71. 40.

In the following enumeration of contents the titles will not be given in full, but they can be found in Halliwell's Skeleton hand-list of the early quarto editions, 1860; and fac-similes of them are given in Winsor's Bibliography of the original quartos and folios of Shakespeare.

Vol. I. Contains the general title, preface, list of contents, and three fac-similes, variations of titles, namely: Richard the Second, 1608; Troilus and Cressida, 1609; and the Romeo and Juliet without date.

Vol. II. Venus and Adonis, 1593.

Vol. III. Lucrece, 1594.

Vol. IV. Venus and Adonis, 1594.

Vol. V. Romeo and Juliet, 1597.

This follows Garrick's copy in the British museum, several leaves of which are slightly mutilated. Cf. Winsor's Bibliog. of Shakespeare, p. 65, for enumeration of other copies, and his Boston public library Monthly reports, Aug. 1877, for a collation of the Museum copy. Furness, in his Romeo and Juliet, gives a reprint of this edition, and says that on collation the text of this fac-simile and the other three editions in this series, with the text of the Cambridge edition he found about twenty discrepancies, and as on verification of the museum copies, Ashbee was found correct, there were probably variations in the copies used by the editors of the Cambridge edition. Other reprints are given in Stevens's Twenty plays, iv.; in Tycho Mommsen's Shakespeare's Romeo and Juliet, 1859; in the Cambridge edition of Shakespeare; in P. A. Daniel's Romeo and Juliet, published by the New Shakspere society, and in his Parallel texts, 1874.

Vol. VI. Richard the Second, 1597. BPL.

Vol. VII. Richard the Third, 1597. BPL.

The Huth copy was bought at the Daniel sale in 1864, for the largest sum ever paid at auction for a Shakespeare quarto, £35. 15s., and it is the only copy ever publicly sold. There are perfect copies in the Bodleian and in the Devonshire collections, and a fragment only in the British museum. Cf. Winsor's Shakespeare bibliog., p. 60, and his Boston public library Monthly reports, July, 1877.

Vol. VIII. Love's labor lost, 1598.

Halliwell gives a fac-simile of title in his Shakespeare, iv. 212, and his Shakespeare are study-books, p. 31, shows a copy. The British museum copy had been Daniel's and Heber's. Cf. Winsor's Shakespeare bibliog., p. 45, and his Boston public library Monthly reports, March, 1877. Halliwell mentions a fac-simile reprint, made privately by Malone.

Vol. IX. Richard the Second, 1598.

Vol. X. Henry the Fourth, 1598.

Three copies of the original are known.—British museum, imperfect; Trinity college, Cambridge; the Devonshire collection. Halliwell gives a fac-simile of the title in his folio ed. of Shakespeare, x. 242.

This has been supposed to be the editio princeps, but Halliwell in a communication in the London Athenæum, Jan. 1875, announced that he had found a fragment of an earlier edition, and in his Shakespeare study-books, 1876, p. 18, he names "a unique fragment of the earliest and hitherto unknown edition of the First part of Henry the Fourth, the head-line being The History of Henry the Fourth," 4°.

Vol. XI. Richard the Third, 1598.

Halliwell gives the title in fac-simile in his folio ed. of Shakespeare, xi. 381. Originals are in the Capell collection, Trinity college, Cambridge; and in the Bodleian (Heber's); Garrick's copy in the British museum has the last two leaves in fac-simile. Halliwell says the title-page of this Garrick copy, put with an uncut copy of his own, described in 1857, as having title in fac-simile, would make the finest copy known; and this Halliwell copy is perhaps the British museum copy, acquired 9 Nov. 1858, and now numbered C. 34, k. 46. Cf. Winsor's Shakespeare bibliog., p. 61, and his Boston public library Monthly reports, July, 1877.

Vol. XII. Henry the Fourth, 1599. BPL.

Vol. XIII. Romeo and Juliet, 1599.

Halliwell gives fac-simile of title in his folio ed. of Shakespeare, xiii. 120. Copies in the Bodleian, British museum, etc. Reprints are in Mommsen's Shakespeare's Romeo und Julia, 1859, and in P. A. Daniel's New Shakespeare society's edition, 1874, with revision, 1875, and in his Parallel texts of the first two quartos, 1874.

Vol. XIV. Much ado about nothing, 1600.

George the Third's and Garrick's copies of the original are in the British museum. Stevens's copy is in the Boston public library. There is, or was, a copy in the collection of A. W. Griswold, New York city. Halliwell sold a copy in 1857 for £65; and his Warehouse catalogue names another. The Ellesmere copy was reproduced by photolithography in 1864, edited by Howard Staunton, and Halliwell's copy of this last, collated in the margin with the Charlemont copy, was given by him to Mr. Horace Howard Furness of Philadelphia. Halliwell gives a fac-simile of the original title and two other leaves in his folio ed. of Shakespeare. There is a type reprint in Stevens's Twenty plays, i. Cf. Winsor's Shakespeare bibliog., p. 52, and his Boston public library Monthly reports, April, 1877.

Vol. XV. Titus Andronicus, 1600.

There are two copies known,—in the Ellesmere collection, Bridgewater House, and in the library of the university of Edinburgh.

Vol. XVI. Midsummer night's dream. "Printed by James Roberts," 1600.

Copies are in the Boston public library, Lenox library, and in other American collections according to Winsor's Shakespeare bibliog., p. 51. Garrick's and George the Third's copies are in the British museum. Winsor's Boston public library Monthly reports, April, 1877. There is a type-reprint in Stevens's Twenty plays, i.

The Boston public library's copy of the original was Heber's no. 2012 of part ii. of his catalogue. There are copies in the British museum, Bodleian, etc.

Vol. XVIII. Merchant of Venice. "Printed by I. R. for Thomas Heyes," 1600.

There are originals in the Boston public library (formerly Heber's) Lenox (also Heber's), and Griswold collections. The British museum has Garrick's copy, and two which belonged to George the Third,—one of them formerly the Roxburghe copy. Cf. Winsor's Boston public library Monthly reports, March, 1877; and his Shakespeare bibliog., p. 46, for other copies. Halliwell gives a fac-simile of the title in his folio Shakespeare, v. 279. There are variations of texts in different originals. Cf. Halliwell's Shakespeare study-books, p. 35, and Collier's Reasons for a new edition of Shakespeare, p. 12.

Vol. XIX. Merchant of Venice. "Printed by J. Roberts," 1600.

There are originals in the Boston public library, Lenox library and in other American collections, according to Winsor's Shakespeare bibliog., p. 47. Mr. Furness has a copy with Capell's collations and notes. The British museum has Garrick's and George the Third's copies,—the latter marked as "used by S. J.," probably Dr. Johnson. Cf. Winsor's Boston public library Monthly reports, March, 1877. It was reprinted in Stevens's Twenty plays, i.

Vol. XX. Henry the Fourth, part ii. (sig. E has four leaves, making 41 leaves in all). 1600.

The British museum has an original of this earlier unperfected edition, placed there by Halliwell, who has written in it, "Second Part of Henrie the Fourth. 1600.—There is only one early edition of this play, but some copies have an enlarged sheet E, with an additional scene, consisting of six leaves. The fact clearly is that, as originally published, sheet E contained only four leaves. The error was found out, and in copies issued afterwards, the sheet was altered. There are two copies in the Museum, but both have the enlarged sheet. The present genuine copy of the original sheet is taken from a duplicate in my collection." Stevens reprinted it in his Twenty plays, ii., from no. 5460°, part ii. Heber catalogue.

Vol. XXI. Henry the Fourth, part ii. (sig. E has six leaves, making 43 leaves in all). 1600.

Garrick's copy, and George the Third's (formerly Stevens's), are in the British museum. Cf. Winsor's Boston public library Monthly reports, Dec. 1876. Halliwell gives a fac-simile of title and first page in his folio ed. of Shakespeare, x. 20, where he mentions a copy in his possession having numerous stage directions in a nearly contemporaneous hand; and he has notes in his own 1857 sale catalogue (when the copy sold brought £100 and went to Henry Huth) and in the Sir Wm. Tite catalogue, p. 197. There are other copies in the Bodleian and in the Devonshire collection.

Vol. XXII. Henry the Fifth. 1600.

The king's copy in the British museum was bought at Dr. Wright's sale, 1787. Winsor's Boston public library Monthly reports, Jan. 1877. Halliwell gives a fac-simile of title and first page in his folio ed. of Shakespeare, x. 299, and there are other copies in the Bodleian, Devonshire collection, etc. It is reprinted in the Cambridge edition, iv., and by the New Shakespeare society, edited by Dr. B. Nicholson with introduction by F. A. Daniel, the text following this Ashbee fac-simile, compared with the Capell and Huth copies.

Vol. XXIII. Merry Wives of Windsor. 1602.

Halliwell gives a fac-simile of title in his folio edition of Shakespeare, ii. 210, and calls it of "excessive rarity, only four copies being known to exist, and it is carefully printed in large type, evidently being produced hastily for the purpose of sale." See the note to Halliwell's Shakespeare society reprint under 1842.

Vol. XXIV. Henry the Fifth. 1602.

Vol. XXV. Richard the Third. 1602.

Vol. XXVI. Hamlet. 1603.

There are two copies of this edition known, beside the imperfect copy mentioned in Halliwell's Warehouse catalogue, 1876. The first of these two lacks the last leaf, and made a part of a volume containing twelve old plays, which as Sir Henry Bunbury says, "was probably picked up by my grandfather, Sir William Bunbury," who was a nephew of Sir Thomas Hamner. Sir Henry says, "I exchanged the volume with Messrs. Payne and Foss for books to the value of £180, and they sold it for £230 to the duke of Devonshire." See Correspondence of Sir Thomas Hamner, p. 80; Athenæum, London, 18 Oct. 1854; H. H. Furness's ed. of Hamlet; Winsor's Shakespeare bibliog., p. 25.

The second copy lacks the title, and was discovered among the books of a student of Trinity college, Dublin, in 1856, who had brought it from Nottinghamshire, and who sold it for one shilling to M. W. Rooney of Dublin, who printed a narrative of its discovery, with a fac-simile of the lost leaf—now first known—at Dublin, 1856. Cf. Furness's Hamlet, p. 397, and Winsor's Shakespeare bibliog., p. 26. It is stitched in paper covers, interleaved and has MS. notes and printed extracts from subsequent editions. Winsor's Boston public library Monthly reports, Nov. 1876. Boone, the London bookseller, bought it

SUGGESTIONS OF SUBJECTS FOR STUDENTS' WORK IN PHYSICS.

By Professors WOLCOTT GIBBS (Nos. 1-12) and JOHN TROWBRIDGE (Nos. 13-30).

1. Apply the principle of Edison's Tasimeter.
 - a. To the determination of differences in the force of gravity with the latitude and height above the level of the sea.
 - b. To the measurement and registration of variations in atmospheric pressure.
 - c. To the construction of a manometer by which extremely minute pressures and variations of pressure may be estimated.
 - d. To the construction of a thermometer and calorimeter.
 - e. To the construction of balances, of various degrees of sensibility.
 - f. To the graphical representation of sound waves.
 - g. To measurements of the variations of the intensity of the earth's magnetism.
2. Settle the question of the existence of electrical currents in the earth's surface.
3. Determine the electro-motive force of the cyanonitride of titanium, with reference to zinc; the point being to determine whether this force is greater or less than in the case of titanium alone; that is, to what extent the force is modified by the combination of the titanium with nitrogen and carbon.
4. Determine in like manner the electro-motive forces of the compounds of tungsten having respectively the formulas WO_2Na_2 , WO_2K_2 .
5. Examine these three compounds by means of the spectroscope and induction coil, so as to determine whether they yield respectively the spectra of carbon and nitrogen as well as of titanium, and of oxygen potassium and sodium, as well as of tungsten.
6. In crystals of elements or compounds which are conductors of electricity, determine whether the faces of the different crystalline forms which make up a complete crystal exhibit differences in electro-motive force when tested with insulated proof planes of platinum or zinc. Thomson's electrometer would probably be the best instrument to employ.
7. Recent investigations by Rowland have shown that very sensible corrections must be applied to the mercurial thermometer to reduce its indications to those of the absolute scale of Thomson; a scale, in other words, the divisions of which are absolutely independent of the nature of the thermometric substance employed. Rowland has shown that upon the absolute scale the specific heat of water diminishes from zero, to thirty degrees centigrade, instead of increasing as supposed by Regnault and other physicists who employed the mercurial thermometer in their investigations. It therefore becomes necessary to revise a large number of calculations involving data yielded by the mercurial, or even by the air, thermometer. The student will do well to examine the whole subject and to deduce new empirical or rational formulas for coefficients of expansion of solids, liquids, and gases, for specific heats of liquids and gases, for latent heats and for tensions of vapors.
8. Determine whether a measurable amount of work is done when a galvanic current is made to traverse a helix surrounding a cylindrical rod of heavy glass in such a manner as to produce a sensible rotation in the plane of polarization of a ray of light which traverses the glass parallel to the axis of the helix.
9. Since the passage of a galvanic current under the circumstances detailed in suggestion 8 produces a deflection of the plane of polarization of a transmitted ray, it would seem to follow that when a cylinder of quartz or other material exhibiting permanent power of rotation is plunged into, or removed from, a helix connected with a galvanometer, a current should be induced in the helix. Determine this point by experiment. The failure of the attempt to generate a current under these circumstances would seem to show that the effect of the current in producing a rotation of the plane of polarization is only a temporary statical change in the positions of the molecules of the glass or other medium employed, and not an actual rotation of these molecules around the axis of the cylinder. On the other hand, a negative result might also be explained upon the supposition that the action of the current is upon the particles of the ether alone, and not upon the molecules of the material substance, since in this case a measurable inverse effect could hardly be expected.
10. Find the ratio of the two specific heats of phosphorus vapor at high temperatures, using the method employed by Kundt and Warburg in determining the same ratio for the vapor of mercury. The question is one of much theoretical interest because the molecule of phosphorus is tetraatomic.
11. Recent experiments appear to show that the molecules of chlorine bromine and iodine undergo dissociation at high temperatures. Determine the ratio of the two specific heats for such dissociated gases. Does it approximate as the temperature rises to the ratio which obtains in the case of monatomic mercury vapor?
12. Study the relations of volume and pressure in gases at pressures less than a single atmosphere.
13. Investigate the effect of pressure on absorption spectra; and trace continuity of absorption from the liquid to the vapor.
14. Extend Loschmidt's results on the diffusion of gases.
15. Pyroelectricity. A study of the subject.
16. Surface tension. Extension of Quincke's results.
17. Temperature of sublimation with especial reference to testing laws of thermodynamics in regard to change of state.
18. Extension of Herwig's results on change of state.
19. Repeat Minchin's experiments on the transformation of electricity into light.
20. Rate of propagation of magnetic induction.
21. Ratio between longitudinal and torsional vibrations of cylindrical rods. See Wüllner's Experimental Physik, pages 554 and 639.
22. Effect of great cold on magnetism.
23. Thermo-electric lines below zero.
24. Study the changes in the zero of a mercury thermometer with especial reference to measurements below zero.
25. Review the conclusions of various physicists in regard to average height of auroral discharges, and make experiments on the greatest distance at which discharges in rarefied gases are affected by a magnetic field of known strength.
26. Examine the methods used in the diffusion of liquids and invent a new method of observation.
27. Discussion of relations between specific heat of two metals and their thermo-electric relations.
28. Osmose under magnetic effect.
29. Diffusion of electrified strata of gases.
30. Sensitiveness of selenium compounds to light.

- The title-page is surrounded by an engraved border, and printed in red and black. The preface is dated (Oct. 18, 1607).
 Thirty-two of the designs in this volume, though professing to be taken from the paintings in the Dominican cloister at Basel, are enlarged and altered copies of the Holbein series. Hence have arisen much confusion and many errors in regard to the original paintings. A large number of the cuts show the initials G. S. with a minute representation of the graver's knife; these initials are supposed to stand for the name of Sigmund Gelenius or Gheleenn, of Basel. The engraving of the Expulsion from Paradise bears the date 1576.

 Printed on only one side of each leaf.

- This is mainly a reprint of the engravings and verses in the edition of 1608. The engraving of the Abbess, which is in the 1608 edition taken from Holbein's design, and engraved by G. S., is in this edition of a different and inferior design, and bears the initials D. R. — See also Graesse, iii. 318; Massmann, p. 31.

From the collection and with the book-plate of Yemeniz. The woodcuts in this volume (26 of which are copies from Holbein) are the same that first appeared in a work "of extreme rarity, which," says Mr. Douce ("The dance of death, p. 112), "has escaped the notice of bibliographers," and which is insufficiently and incorrectly described in the Supplement to Brunet's Manuel du libraire, 1878, entitled, "Discorsi morali dell' eccell. Sig. Fabio Glisenti contra il dispiacer del morire, detto Athanaphilia. Divisi in cinque dialoghi . . . con trenta . . . ragionamenti, come tante piacevoli novelle interposti; et un molto curioso trattato della pietra de filosofi. Adornati di bellissime figure . . . In Venetia, Appresso Bartolameo de gli Alberti. M. DCIX. pp. (16), ff. 592." The license for printing is dated 16 June 1599. In the Supplement to Brunet the first edition is stated to be of 1599, probably by error for 1590. The edition of 1609 gives however no indication, beyond the date of the license, of an earlier edition. It contains 386 woodcuts, besides initial letters and tail pieces, most of them more than once repeated. They are, except the designs on the separate title-pages of the five dialogues, and the five times repeated portrait of the author, of the size of the cuts in Holbein's Imagines mortis, and thirty-one of them are copies from Holbein. Two of these copies, the King and the Astrologer, are reversed. In the design of the Pope and that of the Rich Man the devils are omitted. The copies are on the whole executed with great fidelity. The original designs, though far inferior for the most part in dramatic intensity to those of Holbein, are frequently not without depth of intention and force of expression, and many are of peculiar interest as containing representations of Venetian costume, localities, and modes of life. The Rialto and the Place of St. Mark's are among the scenes. Many of the woodcuts exhibit an hour-glass, apparently as the engraver's mark. — See also Douce, p. 113; Ellis & White's Catal. of rare old books, no. 45, p. 35.

Simpson, R., editor. The school of Shakspeare. With introductions and notes. 2 vol. London, etc. 1878. sm. 80. 14494.20

Upon the death of the editor, before the work had passed entirely through the press, it was taken up by F. J. Furnivall, with the assistance of J. W. M. Gibbs.

Vol. i. contains:—

1. SIMPSON, R. Biography of Sir Thomas Stucley.
2. STUCLEY, STUCKLEY, or STUCKELEY, Sir T. The famous history of the life and death of Capt. Thomas Stuckley, with his marriage to Alderman Curteis' daughter, and valiant ending of his life at the battle of Alcazar. 1605.

"Mr. Simpson thinks he traces four hands in the composition of this play, the strongest being Shakspeare's."—See Furnivall's pref. notice, vol. i. p. x. and Simpson's Biography of Stucley, i. 139-143.

3. NO-BODY and some-body. With the true chronicle historie of Elydure, who was fortunately three several times crowned king of England.

The original edition of this reprint "is alluded to in Shakspeare's Tempest, where Ariel's music is said to be 'played by the picture of Nobody.'"—See vol. i. p. 272.

1. HISTRIO-MASTIX; or, The player whipt. 1610.

According to Mr. Simpson, in his introduction, vol. ii. pp. 3-15, this "is a hash of two distinct forms of the play, one perhaps as written by Peele about 1590, the other as rewritten by Marston in one of his transient alliances with Ben Jonson about 1600." In the parody of Troilus and Cressida, p. 39, l. 273 is an allusion, which the editor thinks may relate to Shakspeare:—"That when he shakes his furious Speare."

2. PRODIGAL son (Comedy of the), in which despair and hope are very artificially introduced.

This play "is an excerpt from the interesting German collection of English plays, published in 1620, which are supposed to have been played by Shakspeare's company when in Germany, and to have been in part written by Shakspeare. It is alluded to in the play entitled, 'Histrio-mastix.'"—See vol. i. p. xi., ii. 12-15.

3. JACKE DRVMS entertainment, or The comedie of Pasqvil and Katherine. London. 1616.

"This play Mr. Simpson assumes to be one of the series of plays which relate to the quarrel of Jonson with Marston and Dekker, and he thinks it to be in the main written by Marston. He connects it with Shakspeare by the supposition that Planet, the Jacques-like character therein, 'to whom the sceptre of criticism' seems to be conceded, is meant for Shakspeare."—See vol. i. p. xi., ii. 127-131.

4. WARNING (A) for faire women, containing the murder of George Sanders; acted by M. Browne, Mistris Drewry and Trusty Roger; with their seuerall ends. London. 1599.

"This play is interesting as being one of the plays acted by the lord chamberlain's company (i. e. Shakspeare's), and as containing the possible origin of some of the ideas worked up in the play-incident of Hamlet."—See vol. i. p. xi., ii. 211-239.

5. [SHAKESPEARE, W., pseudon.] A pleasant comedie of Faire Em, the miller's daughter of Manchester; with the love of William the Conqueror. London. 1631.

"In the introduction Mr. Simpson seeks to show that the play is not by Robert Greene, but that it is by Shakspeare, though to some extent written by him in derisive imitation of Greene."—See vol. i. pp. xi., xii.

6. SIMPSON, R. An account of Robert Greene, his life and works, and his attacks on Shakspeare and the players.

of Rooney for £70, and sold it to Halliwell, who wrote in it, "This is the rare & most precious edition of the Hamlet of 1603, of which the only other known copy is in the collection of the Duke of Devonshire. I purchased this volume of Messrs. Boone in Sept., 1856, for £120. — J. O. HALLIWELL." Halliwell disposed of it to the British Museum, where it now is, marked C. 34. k. 1.

A lithographic fac-simile of the Devonshire copy, lacking last leaf, was made (40 copies) in 1858, under Collier's superintendence, and of this there are two copies in the Boston public library, and one in Mr. Furness's collection. A copy is named in the Medlicott catalogue. A fac-simile by a photographic process, with an introduction by F. J. Furnivall, has been issued, 1879, as the first of a new series of the quarto fac-similes.

It has been reprinted in type at London for Payne and Foss in 1825; at Leipzig; at Birmingham, published in London, 1860, edited by Samuel Timmins; in the Cambridge Shakespeare, viii.; in Furness's Hamlet, ii., where there is a bibliography, as also in Timmins's preface (as above) and in Notes and queries, 2d ser. ix. 378, 459.

Vol. XXVII. Hamlet. 1604.

There are three originals known, — the Devonshire, Lord Howe's, and Huth's. Cf. Winsor's Shakespeare bibliog., p. 26. Collier superintended a lithographic fac-simile of the Devonshire copy (40 copies), and there are copies in the BPL, in Furness's collection, and in the Medlicott catalogue. It was also reprinted by Timmins in connection with the 1603 reprint.

A copy in J. W. Reed's sale, 1790, brought £17 6s. 6d., the catalogue calling it unique, but against this statement in a copy of this catalogue there is written, "Of this play there are three copies known. G. S." [George Steevens]. Where is the Reed copy now?

Vol. XXVIII. Henry the Fourth. Part i. 1604.

Vol. XXIX. Hamlet. 1605.

Two originals known. one in the British Museum, lacking the last leaf, and the other in Capell's collection, Trinity college, Cambridge. See under 1860, Halliwell's fac-simile of some of the pages, for the purpose of showing it to be the same with the 1604 edition, and printed from the same forms. Furness, however, Hamlet ii., p. 35, gives a number of instances where the text varies. See also Winsor's Boston public library Monthly reports, Nov. 1876.

Vol. XXX. Richard the Third. 1605. BPL.

Halliwell has written in the BPL copy, "The incorrect arrangement of a few of the pages is followed from the extremely rare original in the British Museum, from which it was not thought right to deviate in the slightest degree." Halliwell wrote in the museum copy the following notes: "Cost me £84." "Richard the Third. 1605, a perfect genuine copy of this most rare edition, which is not even noticed in any bibliographical list, was unknown to all the other commentators, and first mentioned in Collier's recent edition. The only other known copy is in the Bodleian," which bought it of Halliwell in 1840 for £21. The Tite catalogue, 1874, however, disclosed another copy, which was sold for £16 15s. Halliwell gives a fac-simile of it in his folio ed. of Shakespeare, xi. 479.

Vol. XXXI. Lear. First, or "Pide Bull" edition, 41 leaves, 1608.

Halliwell gives a fac-simile of the title in his folio ed. of Shakespeare, xiv. 429, and p. 446; he gives fac-similes of two corresponding pages from different copies to show how they vary, though worked from the same forms. On this point see Halliwell's Shakespeare study-books, p. 26; Winsor's Shakespeare bibliog., p. 42. Both of the copies in the British Museum have passed through Halliwell's hands, and have notes by him in them. In one, which the Museum acquired in Nov. 1858, there is pasted to a fly-leaf a printed cutting which has the following note: —

"FIRST EDITION, a perfect and genuine copy. Only three perfect copies of this first edition have, to my knowledge, been sold by auction during the last thirty years, — two in Heber's collection and the present one. Both of Heber's copies are now in America, one in the collection of Mr. Lenox, the other in that of Mr. Barton. It is almost the only first edition not in the Daniel collection" (by Mr. Halliwell).

Mr. Halliwell, in the above note, is in error. The copies of this "Pide Bull" edition in this country, are one in the Lenox library, and the other, now or lately in the Griswold collection. It is not in the Barton collection of the Boston public library.

Mr. Halliwell in his Shakespeare study-books, p. 26, says he has "a large fragment of the original with singularly curious variations," and he adds, "I believe I was the first to point out that there were only two editions of King Lear issued in the year 1608, but for many years I was at a loss to account for the variations between different copies of the Pide Bull edition. This difficulty has unquestionably been solved by Mr. Aldis

Wright, by supposing that the corrections were made before the sheets were all worked off, and that the corrected and uncorrected sheets were bound up indiscriminately."

The other museum copy is thus inscribed by Halliwell: "Purchased of Garrett of Newcastle for £20, J. O. H." Also, on a slip pasted in, "This copy of the first edition of Lear, wanting the title, should be preserved with my perfect copy, on account of its containing an extraordinary number of curious textual variations, although both copies are evidently printed from the same forms. Compare, for example, the reverse of G, 2, the reverse of H, 3, the first page of H, 4, and various other places."

Vol. XXXII. Lear. Second edition. 44 leaves. 1608.

Halliwell gives a fac-simile of the title in his folio ed. of Shakespeare, xiv. 429, and says "all copies exactly correspond." There are originals in the Boston public Lenox, and other American collections, according to Winsor's Shakespeare bibliog., p. 43. Garrick's, the king's, and a third imperfect copy in the British Museum are described in Winsor's Boston public library Monthly reports, Feb. and March, 1877. It is reprinted in Steevens's Twenty plays, ii.

Vol. XXXIII. Richard the Second. 1608.

This title does not mention the addition of the "Parliament scene;" but some copies have a title which does mention it, and this last title is given in fac-simile in the introductory volume of this series; and in Winsor's Shakespeare bibliog., p. 58, and pl. 41. There is a photographic fac-simile mentioned under 1857.

Vol. XXXIV. Henry the Fourth. Part i. 1608.

This follows a copy, now in the British Museum, in which is this note by Halliwell: "This is one of only two perfect copies known. It is not in the Capell or in any other collection except the Bodleian, which has the single copy that passed through the various sales to Heber's time. So extremely rare is it that I gladly gave Garrett of Newcastle £25 for an imperfect copy. The present is in a perfect genuine state, not made up in any way." Cf. Halliwell's Early editions of Shakespeare, 1857; Bibl. Hebr., ii. 298; Winsor's Shakespeare bibliog., p. 29.

Vol. XXXV. Henry the Fifth. 1608.

Garrick's and the king's copies are in the British Museum; and Malone's in the Bodleian. Winsor's Shakespeare bibliog., p. 33, names copies in the Boston public, the Lenox, and other American collections. E. G. Assay, of Chicago, bought the copy in the Crauford sale, London, 1876, for £14 15s. Mr. Furness has a copy annotated by Capell. Steevens reprinted it in his Twenty plays, iii.

Vol. XXXVI. Romeo and Juliet. 1609.

The Bodleian copy is imperfect. The British Museum copy has notes in it, by Halliwell, as follows: "For this most rare edition (most rare in a perfect state) I gave Mr. Daniel in exchange The History of Tom Thumb. 1621, bought by me at Utterson's sale for £6. 2. 6, and a volume of curious Penny Romances, No. 1516, at Utterson's sale, which cost me (with commission) £33. 10. The present volume cost me altogether, therefore, £39. 12. 6." — "Heber's copy, now in the Bodleian Library, is imperfect, the last leaf being made up with MS." — "Another perfect copy of this edition has since been discovered, & sold at Messrs. Sotheby's for £86." It was reprinted by Steevens in his Twenty plays, iv.

Vol. XXXVII. Troilus and Cressida. 1609.

BPL.

A fac-simile of title and first page of the preface is given in Halliwell's folio ed. of Shakespeare, xii. 218. This title reads "Famous Historie;" but some copies omit the word "famous" in the title, and are without the preface. Fac-similes of this shorter title are in the introductory volume of this series, and in Winsor's Shakespeare bibliog., p. 71 and pl. 57. The British Museum has a copy of the "Famous" title which had been Halliwell's, with a note by him in it, as follows: "This beautifully clean perfect copy of the first edition of Troilus and Cressida with the preface has never been in any sale, and is perfectly genuine throughout, having been cut out by myself from a volume of tracts collected and bound at the period. This first edition is very rare in any state, but is most particularly so when quite complete with the prose preface, which is omitted in all copies of the second edition of the same year, and is only found in some copies of the first. Not more than three complete copies are known to exist. The present copy has the reading thrice-repeated, considered by Mr. Collier to be peculiar to the duke of Devonshire's." The British Museum has also the other variety. Steevens reprinted it in his Twenty plays, iii. The preface, above named, indicates that these quartos were sold for a "testeme," or six pence.

Vol. XXXVIII. Pericles. First edition. 1609.

BPL.

Garrick's copy is in the British museum, and Malone's in the Bodleian. Stevens's is now in the Boston public library. Winsor's Shakespeare bibliog., p. 56, and Boston public library Monthly reports, May, 1877.

Vol. XXXIX. Pericles. Second edition. 1609.

Critics differ as to this being a new impression with variations of text from the same forms as the previous, or an absolutely distinct edition. Cf. Winsor's Shakespeare bibliog., p. 57. The king's copy in the British museum is of this variety.

Vol. XL. Titus Andronicus. 1611.

The king's copy in the British museum is perfect, but the Garrick copy lacks the genuine title, as does the Barton copy in the Boston public library, a fac-simile by Harris being supplied. It was reprinted by Stevens in his Twenty plays, iii.

Vol. XLI. Pericles. 1611.

Halliwell gives a fac-simile of the title in his folio ed. of Shakespeare, xvi. 72. He secured the only copy known, probably lacking two leaves, which had been lost sight of since 1804, but is now in the British museum. Halliwell's note in this copy is as follows: "Although the present volume wants two leaves in sheet D (unless, indeed, the omission is to be ascribed to the printer, the catchwords being right), it is of great literary curiosity and importance, being not only unique, but unused by and unknown to all the editors of Shakespeare. Mr. Collier is the only one who even names it, at first with doubt as to its existence, and afterwards only on my information. The present is no doubt Edwards's copy, which sold in 1804 for what was in those days the large price of £14, since which time it seems to have disappeared until purchased privately by me."

Vol. XLII. Hamlet. 1611.

Heber's copy is now in the Boston public library. The Daniel copy, afterward Tite's, is now the property of Mr. Furness, who in his Hamlet, ii. 34, points out variations in two copies of this edition. E. G. Asay of Chicago has a copy. The British museum copy was Garrick's. Stevens reprinted it in his Twenty plays, iv.

Vol. XLIII. Richard the Third. 1612.

The copy in the British museum is in the king's library. A copy once owned by Dyce, and another formerly belonging to Stevens, are in the Lenox library. Mr. Furness has a copy. Reprinted in Stevens's Twenty plays, iii.

The next edition, 1622, is not given in this series; but Halliwell has inscribed the following note in a copy of it in the British museum: "The only curiosity of this imperfect copy of the 1622 edition of Richard the Third arises from the circumstance of the title-page being perfect, the imprint being almost invariably cut off. Indeed, so rare is it to meet with a copy with the date of 1622, Mr. Collier, in his ed. of Shakespeare, declares that 'the existence of a copy of that date is more than doubtful.' There are, I believe, two copies in the British museum, the imprints of both of which are imperfect."

Vol. XLIV. Henry the Fourth. 1613.

Stevens's copy with his MS. notes is in the Lenox library, and he reprinted it in his Twenty plays, ii. Another copy, once owned by Stevens, is in the British museum, where is also another copy with this note by Halliwell: "This copy wanting the last leaf should be preserved with my other copy, which is perfect, on account of the curious variations in sheet H which, in this one, was evidently corrected after the other was struck off. Thus at sig. H. 1, line 5, from bottom, the arrangement of the line, 'Were it good,' is corrected, and at sig. H. 4, verso, line 4, where every other copy of this edition reads, 'He came but to the duke of Lancaster.'" See note under 1845, no. 6.

Vol. XLV. Richard the Second. 1615.

There are originals in the Boston public and Lenox libraries. Reprinted in Stevens's Twenty plays, ii.

Vol. XLVI. Romeo and Juliet. No date, and without Shakespeare's name.

Some copies have Shakespeare's name on the title, as given in the fac-simile in the introductory volume of this series, and in Winsor's Shakespeare bibliog., p. 67 and pl. 52.

Vol. XLVII. Merry wives of Windsor. 1619.

The British museum copies are Garrick's and the king's. The Boston public library, the Lenox, and other American libraries have originals. Winsor's Shakespeare bibliog., p. 49. Reprinted in Stevens's Twenty plays, i.

Vol. XLVIII. Othello. 1622. BPL.

Halliwell gives a fac-simile of the title and preface in his folio Shakespeare, xv. 126. There are copies in the Boston public and Lenox libraries. In the British museum, Garrick's copy is imperfect, and another copy is slightly so. Reprinted by Stevens in his Twenty plays, iv.

RUSSIAN SOURCES ON NIHILISM.

Dietoubistvo, sovershaieiemoie russkim pravitelstvom. Zhenshtshini protsessa Moskovskikh Sotsialistof. Isd. Redactsii Ukrainskavo Sborika "Gromada." Zheneva, 1877. Tsiena, 25 santim. (Infanticide, committed by the Russian Government. The women of the trial of the Moscow Socialists. Published by the editors of the Ukraina Review "Gromada." Geneva. Price 25 centimes.)

Professor Dragomanoff, the editor of the Review, mentioned in the title of this work, gives in a long preface interesting details of several of the prisoners. Some of the speeches of the Nihilists made in court are printed here, as in Russia they were not allowed to be published.

Vnutrenneie rabstvo i voina sa osvobozhdenie. M. Dragomanova. Zheneva, 1877. Tsiena 1 fr. (The Slavery at Home and the War for Freedom. By M. Dragomanoff. Geneva, 1877. Price 1 fr.)

Protsess 196. P. Alissova. 50 santim. (The Trial of the 196. By Peter Alisoff. Price 50 centimes.)

Aleksandr II. Osvoboditel. Sotsh. P. Th. Alissova. Tsiena 1 frank. (Alexander II. the Liberator. By P. Th. Alisoff. Price 1 franc.)

This pamphlet, containing a catalogue of most of the Nihilist Trials in Russia during the last twenty years, is translated into French and Italian, which versions, however, have greatly softened the bitterness expressed in the original against the present emperor of Russia.

Ssud nad Tshernishefskim i Shto Dielat Roman napissanni im v zakluchenii 1862-3. Vtoroye isdanie Michaila Elpidina. (The Trial of Tsheznishefski, and "What is to be done?" a novel written by him in prison, in 1862-3. Second edition. Michael Elpidin, publisher. Genève, Bâle, Lyon, 1876.)

"What is to be done?" is translated into French and German.

Nov. (Virgin Soil.)

These two novels have been translated into almost all modern languages. The German translation published at Mittau, Courland, was done under the immediate supervision of the author.

Until about the middle of the year 1878, the political trials were stenographically reported in the Russian daily papers. The proceedings against those that took part in the demonstration on the Kazan Square, in St. Petersburg, on the 18th of December, 1876, are found in the "Sankt-Peterburgskia Vedomosti" (St. Petersburg News) of the 21st, 22d, 23d, 24th, and 25th January, 1877 (old style). The trial of Viera Fassulich is stenographically reported in the "Golos" (Voice) of St. Petersburg of April 1st and 2d, and 3d, 1878 (old style). Here also is found the speech of her attorney, Mr. Alexandroff.

The Government having forbidden the papers to mention the trials afterward, the Russian press in Geneva began to furnish the reports. See "Obshtsheie Dielo" (La Cause Générale), which is published monthly, and contains many of the speeches delivered by the defiant Nihilists in court.

The most valuable material for the history and thorough understanding of Nihilism is furnished by the journal "Vpered" (Forward!). This journal has very high connections which enable it to publish the secret circulars of the government to its officials, etc. It is published in London. For convenience, it issues at the end of the year a volume containing the most important material of the year. In the fifth volume, for the year of 1877, is found the official indictment, and a report of the trial of those accused of propagating Nihilism among the soldiers, and several other important trials, about which the home press could not utter a word.

MISCELLANEOUS.

— On the 19th of March was issued No. 1 of the Harvard University weekly calendar, under the charge of the librarian, making announcements for the following week of all lectures, readings, concerts, etc., open to the public or to the students in general, and also of all such exercises of the departments as are not named for fixed days in the tabular views and other programmes of the University. Those calendars so far issued (Nos. 1 to 5) have chronicled, among other things, Professor J. P. COOKE's lectures on England, illustrated with the stereopticon; Professor LANMAN's on the Vedas; Professor HEDGE's on German literature; Professor JAMES's on physiology and hygiene; Professor LOVERING's on electricity and magnetism; Dr. G. STANLEY HALL's on contemporary German philosophers, and his Boston course on pedagogy; also readings from Plato by Professor ALLEN; from Chaucer by Professor CHILD; from the German drama by Professor WILLIAM COOK, Mr. HODGES, Mr. SHELDON and Mr. LUTZ; from Molière by Professor JACQUINOT, and from Boccaccio by Mr. BENDELARI. Lectures are also noted before the Harvard Philological Society by Professor W. D. WHITNEY of Yale College on the history of the art of writing; by Dr. CHARLTON T. LEWIS of New York on the Blues and the Greens, a chapter of Byzantine history. A single lecture was given before the Harvard Historical Society by Professor MOSES COIT TYLER of the University of Michigan on the Tory side of the American Revolution, as illustrated in its literature. Col. CARROLL D. WRIGHT began a course of three lectures on the Factory system, its origin and growth. Dr. J. LAURENCE LAUGHLIN lectured before the Harvard Finance Club on The funding bill and the panic. Professor LANE read a paper before the High and Latin School Teachers' Association in Boston on Latin conjugation, and Professor CHARLES L. JACKSON gave a public lecture in Cambridge on porcelain and its manufacture.

— It is proposed to print a list of the publications of the officers of instruction and government in the University (including librarians, curators, demonstrators, and assistants, together with instructors annually appointed), for the academic years 1870–71 to 1879–80, both inclusive; that is, from September 29, 1870, to September 30, 1880. The classes of works to be included are these: (1) Independent works as author or editor; (2) joint works as author or editor; (3) contributions, bearing the author's name, to serial, periodical, or occasional publications, including transactions of learned societies; (4) lectures, delivered within or without the University, which have been subsequently printed. A separate list of the contents of the Annals of the Observatory, the Memoirs and Bulletin of the Museum of Comparative Zoölogy, the Reports of the Peabody Museum, the Library Bulletin, and the Bulletin of the Bussey Institute will also be given.

Catalogue of the collection of engravings bequeathed to Harvard college by Francis Calley Gray. By LOUIS THIES. Cambridge, 1869. 4to. pp. xlv, 530. Price $10.00.

Library of Harvard University. Special publications, No. 1. Catalogue of scientific serials of all countries, including the transactions of learned societies in the natural, physical and mathematical sciences, 1633–1876. By SAMUEL H. SCUDDER. Cambridge, 1879. 8vo. pp. xii, 358. Price, in cloth, $4.00; printed on one side of the leaf and unbound, $5.00.

Harvard memorial biographies. Two vols. Cambridge, 1867. 12mo. This work is edited by Col. T. W. HIGGINSON, and contains biographical sketches, by various hands, of graduates who fell in battle in the civil war, or died, in consequence of wounds or disease. Price, $3.00.

Necrology of alumni of Harvard college, 1851–52 to 1862–63. By JOSEPH PALMER. Boston, 1864. 8vo. pp. viii, 536. Price, $1.00.

— Beginning with the present number of the Bulletin, library accessions will be classed under separate heads, for greater convenience to those following special studies. As the headings are brief, some of the subjects which will fall under each (other than those which are perfectly apparent) are here indicated.

Works of a (1) General and miscellaneous nature come first, including general bibliography. This heading is followed by (2) Theology and philosophy, under which are placed both general and physiological psychology, ecclesiastical and biblical subjects, ethics and ethnic religions. (3) Science embraces medicine, veterinary science, pseudo-science and magic. (4) Useful arts includes all forms of industrial science, manufactures and handicrafts, the combative arts, agriculture, landscape-gardening, building (but not architecture), navigation and aeronautics. (5) Fine arts embraces music and the archæology of art. (6) Antiquities (including folk-lore) takes other departments of archæology; popular ballads and tales as well as mediæval romances find their place here, while ballads not of popular origin appear under the final head. The scope of (7) History and geography (including politics and general biography) is sufficiently indicated by its title, but it should be explained that biographies of artists should be looked for under Fine arts, of astronomers under Science, etc.; genealogies and heraldry fall here, as well as legislation and constitutional and international law. Under (8) Law and sociology appear statistics, commerce, finance, political economy, jurisprudence, reforms, charities, education, public morality and hygiene, and public works, together with manners and customs, sports and games. (9) Philology embraces all departments, not only of language, but also of classical and oriental studies, excepting such as more properly fall under the second and sixth heads. Finally, (10) Literature includes elocution and rhetoric.

1. EDWARD S. HOLDEN. Index-catalogue of books and memoirs on the transits of Mercury.

2. JUSTIN WINSOR. Shakespeare's poems: a bibliography of the earlier editions.

This edition is the same as that of 1877, except it has a changed title, and after the introduction, there is an account of "The Indian covenanting confession," occupying pp. xli.-liv. It gives a fac-simile of the "Confession" from a copy preserved in the university library at Edinburgh and says of the original, "It is most probably the only one now in existence." There is a copy of this Confession, supposed unique, in the Congregational library at Boston, and it proves on comparison to vary in text and in type from the fac-simile here given.

Dedicated to Thomas Goodrich, lord chancellor of England, with his coat-of-arms on the reverse of the title-page. The title is enclosed in an illustrated border.

This copy contains the following MS. note by J. O. Halliwell-Phillipps: — "This first edition of Huloet's Abecedarium, 1552, is, next to the Promptorium Parvulorum, the most valuable early English dictionary known to philologists. The second edition, issued in 1572, is so modernized and altered as to be almost another work. No copy of the first ed. is cited by Lowndes [original edition], and the present is the only one I have seen for sale. It was not well described in the sale catalogue, and I obtained it for a mere trifle, my commission for it to Bumstead being, however, no less than twenty pounds. It appears from a memorandum on the last page that the present copy was a gift from William Riddel, the printer, to Richard Stonley, the note being evidently in the autograph of one of those persons."

Imperfect. — The title-page, signatures Bii., Biii. in the preface and LBii., ii. at the end are wanting. The title-page is supplied in lithographic fac-simile and the two leaves of the preface are in manuscript. Through the incorrectness of the copy, or the negligence of the printers, there are many and gross errors in this first edition; not only words and lines, but even pages and leaves, according to the original MS., have been altogether omitted. In the fourth book, between signatures M. i. and ii. is inserted a manuscript leaf of 67 lines, supplying one of the above-named omissions; by the signatures, this is evidently not an imperfection in the book, but an omission by the person who undertook the printing from the MS. There are also many errors in the paging, so that the last leaf numbered cclclxxx is inaccurate. According to some authorities some copies contain 381 leaves and others 382; this one corresponds with the one described in Herbert's edition of Ames's Typog. antiq., i. 356, 357. On a fly-leaf is the signature "Patrick Kennald." MS. notes in various handwritings are scattered through the book.

This is the first metrical version of a classic (except Boethius) into any British language. It includes the thirteenth book by Maffeo Vegio. — See Ellis's Specimens of the early Eng. poets, i. 392-403; Græsser, vi. 355; Bohn's Lowndes, v. 2782; Warton's Hist. of Eng. poetry, 1824, iii. 112-123; and for a list of the omissions and errors see the preface to the reprint, Edinburgh, 1710 [4.106].

REFERENCES FOR SENIOR FORENSICS.

I. Is there any good reason to doubt whether Shakespeare wrote the principal plays that bear his name?

The partial authorship by Shakespeare of some of the least important of the plays commonly ascribed to him, where he had perhaps worked upon foundations laid by others has long been recognized, but a sweeping doubt was first suggested in a paper, "Who wrote Shakespeare?" in Chambers' Edinburgh Journal, August 7, 1852, but no substitute name was determinately fixed upon. In Putnam's Magazine for January, 1856, Miss Delia Bacon first offered her doubts in "William Shakespeare and his plays," and in 1857, in her Philosophy of Shakespeare's Plays Unfolded, (reviewed in National Review, vol. v.), she assigned their authorship to Bacon, Raleigh, and a club of wits. Hawthorne wrote an introduction to her volume, and in the Atlantic Monthly, January, 1863, (also in his Our Old Home), he has given his views of the way in which this belief possessed her. In September, 1856, Mr. William H. Smith, an Englishman, published a little tract Was Lord Bacon the Author of Shakespeare's Plays, and, in 1857, he more fully presented the affirmative in his Bacon and Shakespeare. The same year George Townshend (?) published in London a statement on the other side, — Shakespeare not an Impostor. Nine years later the affirmative proposition gained a strong and skillful adherent in Judge Holmes of St. Louis, who had known Miss Bacon's book, but not Mr. Smith's, and who published his Authorship of Shakespeare in 1866, which appeared in a second edition in 1875, with an appendix of additional proof, and a correspondence between Judge Holmes and Spedding, the editor of Bacon, who utterly discredits the theory.

Late discussions of the question have been — Fraser's Magazine, 1874, copied in Living Age, No. 1584; Scribner's Monthly, April, 1875, by E. O. Vailie, a summary of the question; Thomas King's Bacon vs. Shakespeare, A Plea for the Defendant, Montreal and New York, 1875; C. M. Ingleby's Shakespeare—the Man and the Book, 1877, part i. p. 38, in the negative; George Wilkes's Shakespeare from an American Point of View, London, 1877, parts of which originally appeared in the Spirit of the Times, New York, takes the negative side, and there is an essay appended by J. W. Taverner, in which a rhetorical test is applied to prove that Bacon's prose and Shakespeare's verse could not have been written by the same person; Appleton's Journal, February, June, 1879, and June, July, 1880, "The Shakespeare Myth," by Appleton Morgan, an elaborate presentation of the views in the affirmative, reciting the various theories growing out of the anti-Shakespeare belief; North American Review, February, 1881, "Did Shakespeare write Bacon's works," by James Freeman Clarke, an essay to show the fallacy of the affirmative by maintaining the correctness of the usual theory.

II. Ought the study of the Greek and Latin languages to be regarded as essential to a liberal education?

A review of the controversy in this country about classical studies is given in the introduction of S. H. Taylor's Classical Study, with brief citations from arguments and testimony on both sides, while in the body of the work are given longer essays, wholly in favor of the classics, written by Professor Joshua Jones, Professor Thiersch, Hugh S. Legaré, Dr. Whewell (from his Principles of English University Education), John Stuart Mill (from his Inaugural Address at St. Andrews), President Noah Porter, Joseph Payne, Professor B. B. Edwards (from Bibliotheca Sacra, January, 1851), Professor John Conington, William H. Gardiner, Professor James Pillans (a paper re-enforced by Sir William Hamilton in his "Conditions of Classical Learning," in Edinburgh Review, October, 1836, and also in his Discussions, p. 328), George B. Loring, Professor Sellar, President McCosh, E. D. Sanborn, Professor Masson, Philip H. Sears, President Felton, President S. G. Brown, D'Arcy W. Thompson, Goldwin Smith, and L. Campbell.

A brief synopsis of the later stage of the controversy will be found in Kiddle's Cyclopædia of Education, and in successive volumes of the Year Book of Education. The scientific side of the question is enforced strongly in the collection of essays and excerpts made and edited by E. L. Youmans in his Culture Demanded by Modern Life. In W. P. Atkinson's Classical and Scientific Studies there is an examination of both sides of the question, with a strong leaning in favor of science, and with numerous references to authorities, particularly in the voluminous government report (1864) about the great schools of England, which the author looks upon as representing a "one-sided and obsolete system of education." The government commission was instigated by strictures which appeared in the Cornhill Magazine, i. 608, ii. 641, iii. 257, and in the National Review, 1861. Dr. Whewell's views of the misuse of classical training are given in his book of a liberal education in his Lectures on Education, 1854, and as cited in Professor Atkinson's monograph, p. 44.

Grave doubt has been thrown upon the value of classical study as pursued in England in the collections, edited by F. W. Farrar, of Essays on a Liberal Education, whose substance is mostly stated in Fortnightly Review, new series, vol. iii., p. 95, and in the same volume, p. 233, Professor Farrar reiterates the opinions he holds. The system thus set forth is also examined by John Fiske in the North American Review, 1868, p. 117. In the Contemporary Review, ix. 37, Mr. I. Gregory Smith examines the arguments against the classics as adduced by Lowe and Huxley. W. E. Gladstone, who has advocated the classical side, has been answered in the National Review, November, 1864, and in the Edinburgh Review, July, 1864. This side is also supported in J. W. Donaldson's Classical Scholarship and Classical Learning, Cambridge, England, 1856; in T. W. Higginson's Atlantic Essays, 327; International Review, i. 780, by Charles Elliott, D.D.

Dr. Jacob Bigelow read at the American Academy of Arts and Sciences a paper on Classical and Utilitarian Studies (also contained in his Modern Inquiries), in which he took ground against "classical studies as an organ of education," and was answered, at a later meeting, by Francis Bowen in his Classical Studies, Cambridge, 1867, also contained in his Gleanings from a Literary Life. Dr. Peabody restates the argument in favor of the classics in his Address at Dartmouth College in 1843, and Address at Phillips Exeter Academy in 1872.

Modern languages, as well as science, have been urged as a substitute for classical studies for their disciplinary value, and this view is urged in National Review, November, 1864, p. 296, and Westminster Review, October, 1853; and in this connection see — "Classical studies as information or as training," and an abridgment of it in Popular Science Monthly, i., p. 707; also "English in Schools" by Professor Seeley, Macmillan's Magazine, November, 1867.

similar climate; 4th, all are wood or leaf eaters, excepting some water beetles and a Geotrupes. This paper appears to have been read before the Jena meeting of the Deutscher naturforscher und uertzte, in 1835, but I have been unable to consult the report of that meeting.

The first part, with the exception of the introduction and the addition of the plates referred to in the text, is an exact reproduction of the paper published six years earlier in the report of the Saarbrück gymnasium, no mention being made of the author's own additions to the carboniferous fauna since it was issued. These and others appear in the second part, where the insects occupy pp. 8-34 and pl. 1. The order Palaeodictyoptera is here instituted for the Dictyoptera (nom. praeocc.) of Dohrn. The number of species treated is twenty-seven, not however all confined to Saarbrück; this brings the number of Saarbrück insects as given in the catalogue, pp. 50-51, to thirty-eight, and renders this work the most important contribution to palaeozoic entomology that has ever appeared. A nominal list of 76 fossil cockroaches, based on that of Heer, is given on pp. 19-21. A Supplement-haft is promised.

These three papers contain a careful review of the literature of fossil insects: each geological formation is separately treated, containing references to all the genera, and in very many cases to the species found in it, with full bibliographical references. It will be found very useful to the general student.

This series of papers covers much the same ground as the preceding series of three; but the formations are followed in an ascending order, and the progress of insect life at each epoch is compared to that of other contemporary animals and plants. The lists of the other series are omitted, and the references to insects are mostly by genera.

Goss, H. The geological antiquity of insects. Twelve papers on fossil entomology, reprinted, with some alterations and additions, from vols. xv. and xvi. of the Entomologist's monthly magazine. 80. London. 1880. pp. (2), 50.

The preceding series, collected into a pamphlet.

On p. 344 (misprinted 334), he mentions amber containing cicadas, gnats, emmetts, flies, and other insects. The edition of 1686 does not differ. Neither, apparently, do the editions of 1685 and 1694 which I have not seen.

1. Halliwel-Phillipps, J. O. Some account of Tofte's Alba, 1598. An extremely rare poem, containing the earliest extrinsic notice of Shakespeare's comedy of Love's labour's lost. London. 1865. sq. 24°. HC.

"Strictly limited to twenty-five copies." Marked in MS.: "Fifteen Copies destroyed 14 Feb. 1866. Ten only preserved. J. O. H."

The editor knows of but two copies of the original, one sold at Caldecott's and again at Bright's sale, and the other at Chattermont House, Dublin. The part containing the allusion to the Shakespearean play is quoted at length, p. 12.

2. West, Eliza M., compiler. Shaksperian parallels, chiefly illustrative of The tempest and A midsummer night's dream, collected from Sir Philip Sydney's Arcadia. [Edited by J. O. Halliwel-Phillipps. London.] 1865. sq. 24°. HC.

"Strictly limited to twenty-five copies." Marked in MS.: "Fifteen Copies destroyed, 14 Feb. 1866. Ten Copies Only Preserved. J. O. H."

These citations follow the 1538 ed. of the "Arcadia."

3. Field, Nathan. The remonstrance of Nathan-[iel] Field, one of Shakespeare's company of actors, addressed to a preacher in Southwark [Mr. Sutton], who had been arraigning against the players at the Globe theatre in 1616. Now first edited from the original manuscript [by J. O. Halliwel-Phillipps. London.] 1865. sq. 24°. HC.

"Strictly limited to twenty-five copies." Marked in MS.: "Ten Copies only preserved. The rest destroyed, 1865. J. O. H."

There is an account of Field in Collier's Memoirs of the principal actors in the plays of Shakespeare, London, 1846, pp. 206-223.

4. Clopton, Sir Hugh. The will of Sir Hugh Clopton, of New Place, Stratford-upon-Avon, and citizen, mercer, and alderman of London, 1496. Now first printed from the original record. [Edited by J. O. Halliwel-Phillipps. London.] 1865. sq. 24°. HC.

"Strictly limited to twenty-five copies." Marked in MS.: "Five Copies destroyed by me, 18 Nov. 1865. Ten Copies burnt at the fire at the British Museum in July, 1865. Ten Copies only preserved."

5. [Herbert, Sir Gerrard]. A copy of a letter of news written to Sir Dudley Carleton, at the Hague, in May, 1619, containing a curious account of the performance of the drama of Pericles at the English court. [Edited by J. O. Halliwell-Phillipps. London.] 1865. sq. 24°. HC.

"Strictly limited to twenty-five copies." Marked in MS.: "Fifteen Copies destroyed by me 5 April, 1865. Ten only preserved. J. O. H."

The editor says in a note: "I suspect that no complete copy of Pericles has been preserved, otherwise it is difficult to account for the popularity of a drama, which though artistically constructed, and certainly by Shakespeare, is in its present mutilated form, one of his worst pieces."

6. Halliwell-Phillipps, J. O. Some account of Robert Chester's Loves martyr, or Rosalins complaint, a very rare volume published in 1601, including a remarkable poem by Shakespeare. The facsimiles by E. W. Ashbee. London. 1865. sm. 4°. HC.

"Limited to twenty-five copies" Marked in MS.: "Ten Copies only preserved. J. O. H."

The fac-similes give pp. 170-172 of the original, which contain the "Let the bird of lowest lay," ending with "Threnos," and signed "William Shakespeare," and also the subordinate title, introducing the commendatory verses. Cf. no. 2 of the Bibliographical contributions of the library, p. 9.

7. [Halliwell-Phillipps, J. O., editor]. Two indentures respecting the Cage, a house in High street, Stratford-on-Avon, inhabited by Thomas Quiney, son-in-law to Shakespeare, 1616-1633. Now first printed from the original manuscripts. [London.] 1865. sq. 24°. HC.

"Strictly limited to twenty-five copies." Marked in MS.: "Ten Copies only preserved. J. O. H."

8. [Bodenham, John, compiler]. Those songs and poems from the excessively rare first edition of Englands Helicon, 1600, which are connected with the works of Shakespeare. Edited by J. O. Halliwell [-Phillipps]. London. 1865. sm. 4°. HC.

"Limited to twenty-five copies." Marked in MS.: "Ten Copies only preserved. The rest destroyed, 1865. J. O. H."

Bodenham was the compiler of the original collection from which these songs were extracted, one of which, "The passionate shepheards song" signed "W. Shakespeare" is given in facsimile. The editor says that but three copies of the 1600 edition are known, one in the Bodleian, a second sold at auction in 1856, and one the property of W. C. Hazlitt. The present selection gives a list of the names of the authors of the pieces in the original collection, following a MS. in the British Museum, MS. Harl. 280. In this, "On a day alack the day," being the song above referred to, is assigned to Shakespeare; but "My flocks feed not" is left without name, though Taggard had assigned it — incorrectly Halliwell thinks — to Shakespeare in 1599. The volume closes with an index to authors' names, and to first lines, referring for pages to Brydges' reprint of the original, 1812, which followed the 1614 edition.

See Bohn's Loudes, 226; Collier's Bibliog. acct. of early Eng. lit., i. 90-93; Hazlitt's Bibliog. of old Eng. lit., 43.

9. [Halliwell-Phillipps, J. O., editor]. The abstract of title to the house in Henley street, Stratford-upon-Avon, in which Shakespeare was born, drawn up by the vendor's solicitors when the premises were about to be sold in 1847; the first document recited being the poet's will of 1616. London. 1865. sm. 4°. HC.

The editor says, "The object was to prove the history of the descent of the estate from the great poet."

10. [Rich, R.]. Newes from Virginia. (1610.) A poetical tract, describing the adventures supposed to be referred to in Shakespeare's Tempest. Reprinted from a copy believed to be unique. Edited by J. O. Halliwell [-Phillipps]. London. 1865. sq. 24°. HC.

"Strictly limited to twenty-five copies." Marked in MS.: "I destroyed fifteen Copies, 18 Nov. 1865. J. O. H. Ten selected Copies only preserved."

"Newes from Virginia. The lost flocke triumphant. With the happy Arriuall of that famous and worthy Knight St Thomas Gates: and the well reputed and valiant Capitaine Mr. Christopher Newport, and others, into England. With the manner of their distresse in the Iland of Deuils (otherwise called Bermoothaw) where they remayned 42. weekes, and builded two Py-naces, in which they returned into Virginia. By R. Rich, Gent., one of the Voyage. LONDON Printed by Edw. Asple, and are to be solde by John Wright, at Christ-Church dore. 1610"

This little poem was entered in the Stationer's Registers, Oct. 1, 1610 (cf. Arber's Transcripts, p. 200, b.), and Halliwell follows a copy, which he found in 1864 in the Earl of Charlemont's library at Dublin, bound up with others "in a thick pot quarto volume." This volume escaped the fire, June 29, 1865, which destroyed the greater part of the Charlemont library in the auction rooms in London, and made part of the sale, Aug. 11, 1865, of those saved, bringing £63. Allibone's Dictionary, ii. 1785.

There was a second private reprint of this tract in 1874.

It was again reprinted in 1878 in Neill's Early settlement of Virginia and Virginiola. The latter name was applied to the Bermudas. In July, 1610, Strachey, who was with Gates, wrote at Jamestown his True repository of the wreck and redemption of Sir Thomas Gates, etc., which is printed in Purchas's Pilgrims, iv. It gives an account of the wreck of Somers and his companions in the "Sea Vulture" at Bermuda, July, 1609, and of the arrival in Virginia. Cf. Tyler's American literature, i. 42.

16. Halliwell-Phillipps, J. O., compiler. Collectanea respecting the birth-place of Shakespeare at Stratford-on-Avon, copied from the manuscript collections of R. B. Wheler. 1862. With a few additions by J. O. Halliwell [-Phillipps]. London. 1865. sm. 4°. HC.

1. Halliwell-Phillipps, J. O. A handbook index to the works of Shakespeare, including references to the phrases, manners, customs, proverbs, songs, particles, &c., which are used or alluded to by the great dramatist. London. 1866. 80. HC.

Marked in MS.: "Fifty copies only. J. O. H."

This supplements the verbal indexes of Twiss and of Clarke to the plays, as it includes references to the poems and to "numerous important allusions" necessarily left unnoticed by the others. It is "simply a copy of a manuscript compiled for private use."

2. Halliwell-Phillipps, J. O. Some account of the popular belief in animated horse-hairs, alluded to by Shakespeare in the play of Antony and Cleopatra. [London.] 1866. sq. 24°. HC.

3. Halliwell-Phillipps, J. O. A discovery that Shakespeare wrote one or more ballads or poems on the Spanish armada. [London.] 1866. sm. 4°. HC.

"Strictly limited to twenty-five copies." Then in MS.: "Fifteen copies destroyed, 9 April, 1866. Ten only preserved. J. O. H."

The evidence for the "discovery" is drawn from Henry Chettle's Englandes mourning garment. London. 1603.

4. Halliwell-Phillipps, J. O., editor. Abstracts and copies of indentures respecting estates in Henley street, Stratford-on-Avon, which illustrate the topography and history of the birth-place of Shakespeare. London. 1866. sm. 4°. HC.

Marked in MS.: "Ten Copies Only. J. O. H."

The papers here noticed "were discovered among the sweepings of a solicitor's office at Birmingham in 1864, — of value in an investigation of the history of the birthplace [of Shakespeare], one, 20th of September, 1575, referring to a house next 'to the tenement of John Shakesper yeoman'; another, 20th of July, 1609, in which the Birth-place is referred to as 'the tenement late of William Shakespere,'" and as Shakespeare did not die till 1616, Mr. Halliwell adds he "has not satisfied himself of its correct interpretation."

5. [Pettie, George]. The tale of Tereus and Progne, referred to several times by Shakespeare. Edited by J. O. Halliwell [-Phillipps]. London. 1866. sq. 24°. HC.

Marked in MS.: "Ten Copies only. J. O. H."

This tale is the second of a collection of twelve with the title, A Petite Pallace of Pettie His Pleasures, first printed in 1576; Halliwell in his preface says "it has long been my conviction that he [Shakespeare] was well acquainted with the 'Petite Palace,' etc., and that the tale of Tereus and Progne, as given in that curious work, was the version in his recollection when he referred to the story, in the second act of Cymbeline." — See Brydges Brit. bibliog., ii. 392-396; Collier's Bibliog. acc't of early Eng. lit., iii. 107 n; Hazlitt's Bibliog. of old Eng. lit., 455; Watson's Hist. of Eng. poet., iv. 330, 337.

6. Booke (The) of merry riddles, together with proper questions, and witty proverbs, to make pleasant pastime. Now first reprinted from the unique edition printed at London in 1660. [Edited by J. O. Halliwell-Phillipps.] London. 1866. sq. 24°. HC.

"Strictly limited to twenty-five copies." Marked in MS.: "Fifteen copies destroyed, 9 April, 1866. Ten only preserved. J. O. H."

With a reproduction of the original title-page. Halliwell in his Old-book rarities says of the original edition "Unique. The few early editions of this work are only preserved in single copies. It is mentioned by Shakespeare as popular in his day." It is mentioned as early as 1575. Apparently "the Book of Riddles" mentioned by Slender, one of the characters in "The merry wives of Windsor." The "proper questions and witty proverbs" mentioned on the title-page are wanting, but the book is nevertheless obviously complete as it has the word Finis. — See Collier's Bibliog. acc't of early Eng. lit., ii. 228, iii. 322-326; Hazlitt's Bibliog. of old Eng. lit., 508, 509; Bohn's Lowndes, 2093.

O. A list of works illustrative of the life and writings of Shakespeare, the history of Stratford-on-Avon, and the rise and progress of the early English drama, printed for very limited and private circulation at [his] expense. 1850-1866. London. 1867. sm. 80. HC. BA. BPL.

Presentation copy to Sir William Tite. The preface contains Halliwell's defence of his policy of issuing books in very small editions, — the only practicable plan, "in the hands of one at least, who is not a millionaire," to preserve a "vast quantity of Shakespearian material, too diffuse or too technical for the general public."

The editor contributes a supplemental note to the effect that Shakespeare was buried in the chancel of the church because he was part-owner of the tithes of the parish.

There have been various other accounts of Stratford and its localities associated with Shakespeare, — by J. C. M. Bellevue, F. W. Fairholt, C. V. Grinfield, R. E. Hunter, W. Irving (in his Sketch book), J. M. Jephson, G. May, J. Walter, R. B. Wheeler, J. R. Wise, etc.

Marked in MS.: "Ten copies only. J. O. H."

The conclusion reached is that it was the Geneva version.

4. Juan Manuel of Castile. The Moorish marriage, bearing some similarity to the story of Shakespeare's Taming of the shrew. UNIVERSITY NOTES.

Gifts.

— CONCORD, 14 March, 1870. To President ELIOT. Dear Sir: I am requested to communicate to you, and through you to the Corporation, the desire of THOMAS CARLYLE, Esq., of London, to give to Harvard College, by a bequest in his will, the books named in the enclosed catalogue. I know not how I can explain his wishes so well as by citing some extracts from his letters.

In a letter to me, dated 5 Cheyne Row, Chelsea, London, 18th November, 1869, Mr. Carlyle writes: "For many years back a thought which I used to check again as fond and silly, has been occasionally present to me, of testifying my gratitude to New England . . . by bequeathing to it my poor Falstaff regiments of books, — those I purchased and used in writing Cromwell, and ditto, those on Friedrich the Great. This could be done, I often said to myself: 'this could, perhaps, and this would be a real satisfaction to me. But who would march through Coventry with such a set!' The extreme insignificance of the gift, — this and nothing else always gave me pause. Last summer I was lucky enough to meet with your friend, —, and renew many old Massachusetts recollections in free talk. . . . To him I spoke of the affair, candidly describing it, especially the above questionable feature of it, so far as I could, and his answer then, and more deliberately afterwards, was so hopeful, hearty and decisive, that in effect it has decided me, and I am this day writing to him that such is the poor fact, and that I need further instructions on it so soon as you two have taken counsel together. To say more about the infinitesimally small value of the books would be superfluous. Nay, in truth, many or most of them are not without intrinsic value; one or two are even excellent as books; and all of them it may perhaps be said, have a kind of symbolic or biographic value, and testify (a thing not useless) on what slender commissariat stores considerable campaigns — twelve years or so long — may be carried on in this world. Perhaps you already knew of me, what the Cromwell and Friedrich collection might itself intimate, that much buying of books was never a habit of mine, — far the reverse even to this day. Well, my friend, you will have a meeting with — and let me know what is next to be done." . . . My reply to Mr. Carlyle was delayed for several weeks; but on the same day on which his letter to me was written, Mr. Carlyle wrote to — a letter to which he replied immediately, . . . and on the 4th January, 1870, Mr. Carlyle sends me —'s letter, and himself writes: "Mr. —'s hints [about making the college the recipient, etc.] are such a complete instruction that I see my way straight through the business, and might, by note of bequest and memorandum for the Barings, finish it in half an hour. . . . I have now got two catalogues made out, approximately correct, one to be here till the bequest be executed; the other I thought of sending you against the day. Approximately correct; absolutely I cannot get it to be. But I need not doubt the pious purpose will be piously and even sacredly fulfilled, and your catalogue will be a kind of evidence that it is."

Immediately on the receipt of these letters, I wrote to Mr. Carlyle expressing my hearty satisfaction in the thus unlooked-for beneficence to the country and the college, and declared my readiness to communicate his decision to the President and Corporation as soon as he should authorize me. On the 24th of February, 1870, Mr. Carlyle writes: "Your copy of the catalogue which accompanies by book post to-day, is the correctest I could manage to get done. All the books mentioned in it I believe to be now here, and, indeed, except five or six tiny articles, have seen them all, in one or other of the three rooms, where my books now stand, and where I believe the insignificant trifle of tinies to be; . . . and if any more tinies, which I do not remember, should turn up (which I hardly think there will), those also will class themselves as Cromwelliana or Friedrichiana, and be faithfully sent on with the others. . . . So soon as I hear from you that Harvard accepts my poor widow's mite of a bequest, I will proceed to put it down in due form, and so finish this small matter which for long years has hovered in my thoughts as a thing I should like to do."

The catalogue enclosed carefully enumerates the authors, translators, or editors of the books, and, in some instances, adds a distinct opinion from Mr. Carlyle on the literary value of the book. There appear to be in all about three hundred and twenty-five volumes.

I believe, Mr. President, that the corporation will be gratified by the good will to our people herein signified by this eminent man and writer, who could hardly have chosen a more significant mode of conveying his sympathy and hope for the virtue, the intellect, and the culture of America. I am, with great respect, yours,

R. W. EMERSON.

The list thus sent is indorsed "Catalogue, Harvard, for R. W. Emerson, when his ansr comes. 3d or 4th editn; not yet quite correct, nor capable of being made so in prest circs! T. C. 16 Dec. 1869." The Friedrich books are much the larger part. When the books are received a list will be printed, with Carlyle's comments as found in the list or in the books.

The following extract is from the will of THOMAS CARLYLE. The will contains no other public bequest.

[Copy.]

"I Thomas Carlyle, of 5 Great Cheyne Row, Chelsea, in the County of Middlesex, Esquire, declare this to be my last Will and Testament, Revoking all former Wills.

"Having with good reason, ever since my first appearance in Literature, a variety of kind feelings, obligations and regards towards New England, and indeed long before that a hearty good will, real and steady, which still continues, to America at large, and recognizing with gratitude how much of friendliness, of actually credible human love, I have had from that Country, and what immensities of worth and capability I believe and partly know to be lodged, especially in the silent classes there, I have now after due consultation as to the feasibilities, the excusabilities of it, decided to fulfil a fond notion that has been hovering in my mind these many years; and I do therefore hereby bequeath the books (whatever of them I could not borrow, but had to buy and gather; that is, in general whatever of them are still here) which I used in writing on Cromwell and Friedrich, and which shall be accurately searched for and parted from my other books, to the President and Fellows of Harvard College, City of Cambridge, State of Massachusetts, as a poor testimony of my respect for that alma mater of so many of my Trans-Atlantic friends, and a token of the feelings above indicated towards the Great Country of which Harvard is the Chief School. In which sense I have reason to be confident that the Harvard authorities will please to accept this, my little bequest, and deal with it, and order and use it, as to their own good judgment and kind fidelity shall seem fittest. A certain symbolical value the bequest may have, but of intrinsic value as a collection of old books it can pretend to very little. If there should be doubt as to any books coming within the category of this bequest, my dear Brother John, if left behind me as I always trust and hope, who already knows about this Harvard matter, and who possesses a Catalogue or List drawn up by me, of which the counterpart is in possession of the Harvard authorities, will see it for me in all points accurately done. In regard to this, and to all else in these final directions of mine, I wish him to be regarded as my second self, my surviving self."

"In witness whereof I the said Thomas Carlyle the Testator have to this my last Will and Testament set my hand this sixth day of February one thousand eight hundred and seventy-three.

Upon the receipt by the authorities of the University of the foregoing extract from the will, Professor NORTON, with whom, being in London, the testator had conferred at the time of writing that document, sent to the Library another interesting memorial of Cromwell and Carlyle, accompanied by the following letter and memorandum:—

"CAMBRIDGE, March 24, 1881.

"DEAR MR. WINSOR,—I send to you herewith, and through you present to the President and Fellows of Harvard College, for the Library, a cast taken from the mask of Cromwell's face, made after his death, which was given to me in 1873 by Mr. Carlyle. The mask was then, and, I suppose, is now in the possession of Mr. Woolner, the eminent sculptor; and I send with the cast a memorandum concerning the history and character of the mask drawn up by Mr. Woolner at Carlyle's request, and certified to by him.

"Mr. Woolner, as Mr. Carlyle told me, had had seven casts of the face taken from the mask; one of these he had given to Oxford, one to Cambridge, one to the British Museum, a fourth (the present one) to Mr. Carlyle.

"Mr. Woolner in his memorandum points out the difference between this cast and the common casts obtainable in the statuary's shops.

"Mr. Carlyle spoke of it as doubtless much the most faithful image of Cromwell's face now extant, far to be preferred to the common cast, in which all finer points of likeness had become obliterated. He set great value on it, but he could part with it, for it would not be long that he could look at it, and he had one of the common casts which John Sterling had given him many years ago, and was dear to him for John Sterling's sake; and which, ever since, had hung on the wall of his dressing-room, till now it was all blackened by London smoke and fog. 'So I give this one to you,' said he. 'You'll not be sorry to have it, and there are some, may be, in your country who would like to see how that man's dead face looked, just one of the strongest and tenderest of human faces,—a great expression of gentleness in it.'

"In his 'Letters and Speeches of Cromwell' (London, 1850, vol. iii., p. 311), Carlyle describing Cromwell's aspect says: 'Massive stature; big massive head, of somewhat leonine aspect, "evident workshop and storehouse of a vast treasury of natural parts." Wart above the right eyebrow; nose of considerable blunt-aquiline proportions; strict yet copious lips, full of all tremulous sensibilities, and also if need were, of all fiercenesses and rigors; deep loving eyes, call them grave, call them stern, looking from under those craggy brows, as if in lifelong sorrow, and yet not thinking it sorrow, thinking it only labor and endeavor:—on the whole a right noble lion-face and hero-face; and to me royal enough.'

"The cast is in an old cigar-box, packed with papers by Carlyle's hand.

"I give it now to the Library that it may be preserved with those books relating to Cromwell which Mr. Carlyle has bequeathed to Harvard College with such memorable and affecting words.

"I am, very truly yours,

"CHARLES ELIOT NORTON.

"JUSTIN WINSOR, Esq., Librarian, Harvard College."

"From the original cast of Oliver's face, taken after death, now (1870) in the possession of Mr. Woolner, sculptor.

"It was presented by the Royal Society to Mr. Shipley, afterwards bishop of St. Asaph, who married a sister of Dr. James Miller's great-grandfather; and at Dr. Miller's death Mr. Garbanati of Glasshouse Street bought it at the sale of his effects in June, 1853.

"This cast differs from those usually sold in plastermen's shops. The width of brow is $5\frac{1}{2}$ inches; the common cast is $5\frac{3}{4}$ inches. The height is $9\frac{1}{4}$ inches; the common cast is $9\frac{1}{2}$ inches,—being exactly $\frac{1}{4}$ of an inch less in width and $\frac{1}{4}$ less in height.

"There are various cuts, indentations, and inequalities on the forehead, brow, cheeks, and nose. The cuts are done with a chisel by an unskillful hand in knocking the waste mould off the cast; the indentations are caused by the plaster-of-Paris having been improperly mixed and making air-bubbles; the inequalities are where the mould was broken in taking it from the face itself, and, in consequence either of imperfection in the material used, or of clumsiness in the caster, the joints have not fitted well together.

"In the common cast all these imperfections have been handsomely remedied; for not only has every cut, indentation, and inequality been carefully filled up and made smooth, but even the wart on the right brow, which is but just visible in the original, has been made a most emphatic and prominent feature.

"Every time a cast or mould is made in plaster-of-Paris it swells to the thickness of a sheet of letter paper or of a visiting card, and the intelligent reader has only to calculate how many of these will make a $\frac{1}{4}$ of an inch, to judge how many times the common mask has been remoulded and recast, and what effect these processes must have had upon the features."

"Autograph of THOMAS WOOLNER (29 Welbeck Str. London): recd by me at Chelsea this morning, 26 May, 1870. T. CARLYLE."

— The following circular has been issued, under date of March 11, 1881: "The need of a Laboratory of Physics has long been seriously felt in the University. The lack of a suitable building and of the necessary apparatus has been a great obstacle to thorough instruction and successful investigation in the physical sciences. Instruction in the known laws of gravitation, heat, light, sound, electricity, and magnetism must always be an important part of the functions of the University. New researches in this field not only enlarge the bounds of scientific knowledge, but conduce to economy of human effort and to comfort of living. The letter printed herewith, signed by members of the medical profession, points out the importance of a knowledge of physical science in the study and practice of medicine.

"A friend of the University has promised to give $100,000 for the erection of a Laboratory of Physics, and $15,000 for the purchase of the appliances which make part of the building. These gifts are made on condition that the further sum of $75,000 be obtained from other sources, to be held as a permanent fund, the interest of which shall be applied to the purchase of apparatus and to the payment of the annual expenses of the establishment. Your aid in securing this sum, and thereby placing the department of Physics on an adequate footing, is earnestly requested. Signed by Alexander Agassiz, Joseph Lovering, David Sears, Wolcott Gibbs, Francis Blake, Josiah P. Cooke, Edward C. Pickering, John Trowbridge.

"In view of the relations of physical investigations to the progress of the science of medicine, we regard the need of an endowment for a Laboratory of Physics at Harvard University as urgent. In modern physiological investigations a knowledge of physical science and a command of physical instruments and methods have become essential, and in medical diagnosis physical instruments are a chief reliance. A Laboratory of Physics for the training of students who intend to enter the Medical School is much to be desired; and a laboratory for original investigation would afford the means of advancing the knowledge of laws which underlie the science of medicine. Oliver, Robert T. Edes, Edward S. Wood, T. M. Rotch."

— The last will and testament of EDWARD M. BARRINGER of the city of Schenectady, N. Y.:

First. I direct my executor to pay all my funeral and testamentary expenses and my debts out of my estate.

Second. I give and bequeath to DAVID CADY SMITH of the city of Schenectady the sum of $5,000, in trust, to invest the same one year after my death, and to re-invest the same from time to time thereafter as may be necessary, and to collect the income thereof, and, after paying thereout the necessary expenses of the trust, to pay over the remainder of such income, in semi-annual payments, to my cousin JACOB BARRINGER, son of DANIEL BARRINGER, deceased, during his natural life, and upon his death to pay over such principal sum of $5,000 to my residuary legatees hereinafter named.

Third. I give and bequeath to VASSAR COLLEGE, Poughkeepsie, the sum of $3,000, to be invested and held by it as a permanent fund, to be called the "Barringer Scholarship Fund," the net annual income of which shall be paid to the best scholar in the graduating class of each year who shall be a daughter of a physician, or of one who was a physician in his lifetime, and who shall offer herself as a competitor for the prize. The award of such income shall be made and announced by the faculty of said college during the first term of the graduating year, and be paid in equal sums at the end of each of the terms. If there shall be no student in the graduating class who shall come within the conditions aforesaid, then the award of such income shall be made and paid in the manner above specified to such student in the class next below the graduating class who shall come within the terms of such conditions.

Fourth. All the rest, residue, and remainder of my estate, real and personal, and wheresoever the same may be situated, including the capital of the fund covered by the second clause of this will, and including also any and all bequests hereinabove made by me, which may fail or be void from want of capacity to take on the part of the legatee, or from any other cause whatsoever, I give, bequeath, and devise to the "President and Fellows of Harvard College," a corporation established under the laws of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, their successors and assigns forever, the same to be invested and held as a permanent fund by them to be called the "EDWARD M. BARRINGER FUND," the income thereof to be used and applied (except as directed below) according to their best judgment and discretion for the use and benefit of that department of said college known as and called the "Medical School." And I direct that the said "President and Fellows" forever maintain from the income of said rest and residue (if the same shall be sufficient) two scholarships for students in said Medical School, the annual amount or value of such scholarships to be fixed from time to time by the said President and Fellows in their best discretion, but at not less than $300 and $200 respectively, and with such conditions as to them shall seem best, to be called respectively "Edward M. Barringer Scholarship, No. 1" and "Edward M. Barringer Scholarship, No. 2."

Fifth. I appoint DAVID CADY SMITH of Schenectady sole executor of this my last will and testament, and authorize and empower him to lease, insure, repair, sell, and convey all real estate I may own at the time of my death; and I revoke all other wills heretofore made by me.

Included in the property thus bequeathed to the Medical School was Dr. BARRINGER's private library of 625 volumes, mostly best editions of standard authors, in fine and sometimes elaborate bindings. By an arrangement with the Medical School 581 of these volumes, being those not of a medical character, have become a part of the College Library.

— BOSTON, 27 State street, March 23, 1881. To the PRESIDENT AND FELLOWS OF HARVARD COLLEGE: — Gentlemen: Mrs. SAMUEL HOOPER requests me to offer to you, on her behalf, the sum of thirty thousand dollars ($30,000) to increase the principal of the STURGIS HOOPER PROFESSORSHIP FUND to the sum of one hundred thousand dollars ($100,000). This gift is made on the condition that the whole yearly income of the fund, up to the sum of five thousand dollars ($5,000), shall be used for the salary of the professor, and that the balance of the income, if any, shall be placed at the disposal of the professor for the current expenses of his department; provided, however, that, in case of a vacancy in the office of the said professor, the income of this donation is to be appropriated in the same manner as that of the original fund. I am, very respectfully, your obedient servant, etc.,

LEMUEL SHAW.

— Last year certain manuscripts of Scottish ballads were offered for sale in Edinburgh, and the resources of the College not being sufficient to warrant an appropriation for the purchase, a subscription was proposed by Professor CHILD for the purpose of acquiring these, and also originals or copies of a few other manuscripts of the kind not in possession of the College Library, the balance, if any, to be available for the acquisition of books in the line of traditional ballads and tales. The Kinlock MSS., six volumes, were bought for about $500. Measures have been taken for procuring copies of the Skene MSS., and of certain MSS. formerly in possession of Alexander Fraser-Tyler; but as yet this object has not been reached. A few important printed books have also been acquired by the Library through this very timely subscription.

Literature and Art.

— Abstract of a course of six public lectures on the Vedas, by Professor LANMAN, given in Sever Hall, on Tuesday, February 22, 1881, and the following five Tuesdays:

First Lecture. — India: its physical features and diversities of climate; Punjab and Hindustan; the name India; the peoples of India: Kolarians, Dravidians, Aryans; the continuity of Indian history; its periods: (1) the period of isolation, or the native period—from the earliest times until 1000 after Christ; subdivisions: (a) the Vedic period; (b) the Brahmanical period—the rise of the system of caste; (c) the Buddhistic reformation; (2) the period of invasion, or the foreign period—from 1001 until now; (a) Turks and Afghans; (b) the Moghul empire; (c) British India; the Indo-European family of languages; its ethnological significance; our relation to the Aryan branch of that family.

Second Lecture. — The place of the Vedas in the literature of India; three phases in the history of Sanskrit studies: (a) exaggerated estimate of the value of the classical Sanskrit works; (b) reaction; (c) European study of the Vedas; the two periods in the history of Indian literature: (1) the Vedic period; (2) the Sanskrit period; great diversity between the works of the two periods—(a) in language, and (b) in subject-matter; chronology of the literature; monuments of the Vedic period: (a) the Sanhitas, or hymns; (b) the Brahmanas, or productions of the arrogant priesthood; (c) the Sutras, or systematic digests concerning the ceremonial, domestic usages, and other traditional priestlore; illustrations of the character and contents of these monuments; absurd interpretation of the hymns by the Brahmins; the god "Who"; Hindu dictionaries; productions of the Sanskrit period; Epos: Maha-bharata, Ramayana; drama: Cakuntala; didactic works; proverbs; beast-fables; novels; science; law; Buddhist writings; the study of Vedic and Sanskrit an historical study of life and growth in language, religion, and other institutions.

Third Lecture.—Veda means the (sacred) "knowledge"; the three canonical Vedas: (1) Rig-veda; (2) Sama-veda; (3) Yajur-veda; their general likeness in form, contents, and language; chief importance of the Rig-veda; its extent; it is made up of hymn collections belonging to the tribes of different priestly patriarchs; it contains the hymns with which the ancestors of the Hindu people invoked, thanked, and praised their gods, accompanied their sacrifices, sang of heroic deeds, and besought long life, goodly posterity, riches in herds, and success in battle. Incidentally it furnishes many data for the earliest period of Aryan history. The later, uncanonical Atharva-veda; its incantations, charms, and ancient superstitions; rhabdomanancy and other methods of divination; historical development of the old Vedic religion; its degeneration; origin of the Rig-veda; origin of popular poetry in general, illustrated by the history of the modern Servian folk-songs; the date of the Rig-veda; commerce of the Egyptians with India; the ships of Hiram and Solomon; the Rig-veda probably originated in the first half of the second thousand years before Christ, say between 2000 and 1500.

Fourth Lecture. — The land of the Veda determined from the geographical data of the text; Vedic names for the four cardinal points; the Vedic Aryans migrated from the west. Their name for "east" means "forward." Rivers of the Punjab mentioned in the Veda; the people of the Veda inhabited the region of the eastern and western tributaries of the Indus; the Vedic Aryans a warlike folk; their struggles with the aborigines and with each other; legend of the feud between the clans of Vasishtha and Vijva-mitra, of the latter's prayers to the rivers, and of their answer; translation of the dramatic hymn of Vijva-mitra and the rivers; the Vedic Aryans in times of peace; their pursuits and way of life; the building and consecration of the house; their trade, barter; their pecunia, cattle; description of the wedding ceremonies; hymn of the wedded pair to the god of their new home; Vedic superstitions; the old woman of the wood; hymn to the Genius of Forest Solitude; Vedic mythology; dramatic hymn of Sarama, messenger of the sky-god, and the Panis, who stole the rain-clouds.

Fifth Lecture. — The Vedic religion; nature-religion; Cârlyle's explanation of it; attitude of the Vedic people towards the phenomena of the world about them; recognition of the powers of nature as personal agencies; their transformation into gods; the myths based on the struggles of light and darkness, and of life in nature striving with death; Finnish analogues; sketch of Ushas, the goddess of dawn; the worship of Ostara by our Teutonic heathen ancestors; how her name was retained by the people and tolerated by the church as the designation of Easter, the feast of the Saviour's resurrection; translation of hymns to the dawn; the gods of "the place where the light dwelleth." Dyaus, Zeús, Tiw (the god of Tuesday); Varuna, Oúpanós, the creator and sustainer; he is the avenger of iniquity and the merciful judge; hymns to Varuna; God's revelations "at sundry times and in divers manners."

Sixth Lecture.—The Vedic religion; the gods of the earth and atmosphere; fire-worship; Agni, the god of fire; myths of his origin; Prometheus and the descent of fire; translation of hymns to Agni; the troop of Maruts, gods of the storm-winds; Indra, god of the strife of the elements in the region of clouds, and god of the clear blue sky after the storm; hymns to Indra; his battles with the hosts of Vritra, the dragon; the burst of the Indian monsoon; Indra, a specifically Indian god, supersedes the old Aryan Varuna in the supremacy; history of this change; translation of the poem, Rig-veda iv. 42, in which this movement is reflected; the Veda fruitful for the history of development in religion and mythology; the doctrine of a future life; the Vedic burial service; hymns for the dead; immortality; the Vedic cosmogony; the mystery of existence.

—Professor LANMAN's book, On Noun-Inflection in the Veda (New Haven, 1880, 277 pp., 8vo) aims at an exhaustive and systematic discussion of the noun-forms in the Rig- and Atharva-vedas. It is primarily a grammatical investigation of the actual usages of the Vedic dialect, and upon it Professor W. D. Whitney has based his treatment of the subject in his Sanskrit grammar recently issued at Leipzig. Secondly, however, it treats of a great many questions of exegesis, metre, and the text criticism of individual passages. Scattered throughout the work, also, are numerous statistical researches, which shed interesting light upon broader problems of Vedic criticism. It is provided with an index of citations, an index of Sanskrit words, and a general index.

This monograph has just been reviewed in the Deutsche Literaturzeitung (1881, No. 13) by Albrecht Weber, the Professor of Sanskrit in the University of Berlin. Weber says: "The great laboriousness of such an investigation, requiring as it does the most painstaking conscientiousness, is patent to all. And equally clear is the gain to be had from results obtained in this manner, some of them being of decided significance for linguistic philosophy. . . . The work itself bears excellent testimony to the industry and carefulness of its author. Such sober and detailed investigations are the ones that are to serve as firm foundations for science. That the author, moreover, has worked not merely as an industrious scholar, but also fully in the spirit of a circumspect investigator, is evidenced by his highly interesting remarks on the relative frequency of ancient and modern equivalent grammatical forms as a criterion of the age of different Vedic texts. . . . The criticism of the Vedic texts is still in its beginnings, but the materials for it, brought together by skilful and zealous hands, are fast increasing; and Lanman's book belongs to the best that has been produced in this department."

—A Sanskrit Reader, with dictionary and notes, by CHARLES R. LANMAN, Professor of Sanskrit in Harvard University, is now going through the press. The most serious obstacle to the progress of Sanskrit studies in America has been the utter lack of suitable text-books. This difficulty has been removed in part by Professor Whitney's Sanskrit Grammar. Böhlingk's abridged Sanskrit-German Dictionary will probably be finished in several years, and will be very complete and cheap. His Reader is also cheap and good, but contains neither glossary nor explanatory notes. Williams' Dictionary costs $24; the St. Petersburg Lexicon about $75. Few students can be expected to buy these costly works at the outset, when they are uncertain whether Sanskrit will be of sufficient interest or use to them to warrant their continuing it. At the end of the first year, however, a decision will be easy. A well-made and inexpensive manual for the first year's work in Sanskrit is, therefore, a real desideratum. This the handbook whose title is given above will attempt to supply. It will furnish enough material for about forty weeks in a course of three hours a week. It will consist of three parts: text, dictionary, and notes. Of these, the first part is in the Sanskrit characters. The Sanskrit words of the other two will be in English letters. The first part is stereotyped, and embraces the first five chapters of the story of Nala from the Mahabharata, twenty of the best and most celebrated fables of the Hitopadesa, six tales from the "Thousand and One Nights of Cashmere," and about one twentieth of the so-called "Laws of Manu." Then follow twenty-three pages of the hymns of the Veda, ten legends from the Brahmanas, and those chapters of the Sutras which give the wedding and burial ceremonies. In all, there are 105 large octavo pages, two thirds being classical Sanskrit, and the last third belonging to the Vedic period. The easy Nala is the Xenophon's Anabasis of Sanskrit students, and quotations from it appear very often as examples in the grammars. The first five cantos form a complete story. The fables were chosen according to their intrinsic excellence and their interest as originals of well-known Occidental fables (Gellert, Perrette, etc.). The same is true of the tales. The selections from Manu give a picture of the life of a Brahman in its four stadia, the legend of the creation, and the details of the doctrine of the transmigration of souls. Among the Vedic hymns are, first, some of the easiest; then some taken on account of their literary merit; and, finally, some taken because of their historical importance. The Brahmana pieces are chosen in such a way as to show the relation of this kind of literature to the hymns. Thus, some of the legends are amplifications of allusions in the hymns. The Sutra chapters on wedding and burial are given for the interest of their contents. Since these rubrics prescribe that certain numerous verses of the Rig-veda be repeated at these ceremonies, care has been had that all those verses may be found among the Vedic selections. The dictionary will be absolutely complete for the text given. It will also combine some of the features of Professor JOHN WILLIAMS WHITE's projected Greek word-book: that is, about each root—not only verbal root, but also those of nouns and pronouns—will be grouped all the derivatives of that root occurring in the reader. There will probably be brief mentions of the cognate Greek, Latin, and English words. The notes will be short, but will give ample assistance. They will explain allusions to the history and antiquities of India, contain references throughout (especially for irregular forms) to Whitney's Grammar, and give concise literary introductions to the various selections.

—The following statement regarding the motives which have governed Professor PAINE in writing the music of Œdipus tyrannus is reported: "A part, surely, of the result which is aimed at in the production of the Greek play is the impression which the spectators will receive from the faithful and effectual representation of human nature, which is the chief source of its immortality. In this human nature there is no larger factor than emotion: it appears both as the cause and as the effect of thought and action. Hence the music—an efficient mode of expressing this emotion—is an element of great importance in the production of the play. For human emotion, generally speaking, changes but little from age to age. Joy and despair are essentially and distinctively what they were more than two thousand years ago. But that art, which most adequately expresses emotion, was known to the Greeks, even in the Periclean age, only in a very rude and primitive form; and it has in recent time undergone a development in all its branches so unexampled as to warrant one's saying that its peculiar significance as an art of expression is the growth of the last two centuries. Hence, an attempt to imitate the music of the Greeks with any closeness,—even if such imitation were likely to succeed,—or the use of the art in any narrowly partial form, would not only produce an irritating sense of its incongruity, but would be so nearly laughable as sadly to mar the impression produced by the play. We should hardly appreciate a pianoforte work of Bach's, were we to hear it performed upon an instrument of his time. These considerations have led Professor PAINÉ to employ his art, in the music which he has composed for the play, in the full development of its present form. The composition of this music has occupied him unremittingly for the last five months. It consists of a prelude and six choral numbers and is written for male chorus and full orchestra. The prelude is based on two themes: that expressing the confidence of the people in the innocence and goodness of their king (the second theme of the second chorus), and that expressing their pain at finding him the victim of ruthless fate (the theme of the sixth chorus). Thus the prelude reflects that strong contrast which is so large an element in the temper of the tragedy. A free use of the unisonous grouping of voices, together with the broad scope of the choruses and the elevated spirit of the themes, gives a unique and vigorous character to the music, and one quite in harmony with the classic dignity of the play. Those who are sensitive to this wonderful modern art of expression will discover the currents of emotion—that inner and essential life of the play—with a clearness which they otherwise would not attain; and not a person who listens to the last chorus will fail to receive a more vivid impression of the tragic power of this master-drama. As a work of musical art, in the form in which it is to be published,—op. 35,—it promises to be of great importance, and to take a place beside his Spring Symphony,—op. 34." B.

— The Oedipus tyrannus of Sophocles will be performed in the original Greek in the Sanders Theatre May 17, 19, 20 and 21; Oedipus by Mr. GEORGE RIDDLE, and the other parts by students. The music for the choruses has been composed by Professor J. K. PAINÉ, and will be sung by a dramatic chorus of fifteen students, assisted by a supplementary chorus composed chiefly of graduates, with orchestral accompaniment. Five hundred tickets (reserved seats) for the first performance, at $3.00 each, and eight hundred for each of the other performances, at $2.00 each, have been offered to the public at the University Bookstore.

— Professor CHILD, through a circular, which will be sent to anybody that may apply for it, invites co-operation in an effort to collect English popular ballads, from oral tradition, among people of Irish birth. These lines, extracted from the circular, will explain what is wished:—

"It should be understood by both parties that NO BALLADS THAT HAVE BEEN LEARNED FROM BOOKS, by the reciter or by predecessors, ARE WANTED, but only such as have been passed on from mouth to mouth.

"Ballads should be written down literally as they are recited; without any sort of attempt, then or afterwards, to make better sense, or any sense, better rhyme or any rhyme; without altering the arrangement, though it may appear to be wrong, and without the slightest addition on the part of the collector. The collector ought to note any explanations offered by reciters, and to record those bits of narrative with which they may eke out an imperfect remembrance of the verse. The copy that has been taken should be read carefully to the reciter, to secure correctness.

"Ballads will often have a burden, especially those that are sung. This burden may have little meaning, but should be noted with care. It need not be repeated in the transcript after the first stanza. It is also very desirable that the airs should be noted, when they are remembered, and when a collector is able to write them down.

"The name and age of the singer or reciter, and the previous history of the ballad, so far as known (where learned, from whom, etc.), and also the name of the collector, the place where the ballad was obtained, and at what time, should in every case be recorded. FRAGMENTS are on no account to be despised, however brief."

— In a recent lecture on "Troy and Mycenae," by Professor GOODWIN, the chief question discussed was, whether Dr. Schliemann's discoveries have made it more probable that there was an actual city, called Troy, in Asia, which was sacked and burnt by an actual king of Mycenae. Before he began his explorations, no ruins claiming to be those of Troy were visible, and it was uncertain where any such were to be sought. But the fortress of Mycenae, with its gate of lions, was known to be the traditional castle of Agamemnon, and its strong walls showed that a powerful race of kings once ruled in Peloponnesus. But Mycenae is of little account in historic times, when it was either decaying or ruined; while in the mythical period before the Dorian conquest (i.e. before 1000 B.C.) no name is more celebrated. To testify to the manners and customs of this prehistoric age, we had only the Homeric poems, which show great elegance of life, acquaintance with foreign works of art, and a civilization far beyond any which could have existed in the Peloponnesus in historic times, when the Dorians ruled the land. Dr. Schliemann has brought to light, in the contents of the six royal tombs opened at Mycenae, works of art and articles of gold and silver, which evidently belong to the heroic age, to which the story of Troy also belongs. These confirm the evidence of Homer and that of the walls of Mycenae, showing that the early Achaeans were rich and powerful and had intercourse with Asia.

In Asia Minor, on the hill of Hissarlik, where the Greek city of Ilium claimed for centuries to be the successor of Homer's Troy, Schliemann discovered the ruins of six prehistoric cities beneath those of the Greek Ilium. This hill was one hundred and twelve feet high, but fifty-two and a half feet of this proved to be ruins. The third city from the bottom had evidently been consumed by fire, and in its ruins were found gold and silver treasures not unlike those found at Mycenae, with other marks of refinement and wealth. As this hill is the only traditional site of the Pergama of Troy, we cannot resist the conclusion that the "Burnt City" is the famous Troy, whose fate was the subject of the Homeric epic, while Mycenae is the Greek city which sent forth the conqueror of Troy.

The royal tombs of Mycenae can easily supply us with more than one original for Agamemnon, and the hill of Hisarlik shows us a city with which it is not absurd to suppose that a Greek army once came into conflict. It seems more probable, therefore, that the tale of Troy arose from the poetic embellishment of some such early conflict in arms, than that it was a pure invention of poets with no historic basis.

— Dr. J. L. LAUGHLIN, instructor in Political Economy, is engaged on the preparation of a History of bi-metallism in the United States, which will cover the monetary history from 1792 to the present day, so far as it affects the double standard. The aim will be to present in accessible shape, in the text or by notes and references to other works, all the facts and statistics bearing on the subject. For the periods after 1834 there is no lack of material; but for the period between 1792 and 1834 there are difficulties arising from imperfect quotations of silver. The result of work on this period, however, has, after a laborious tabulation, set at rest one previously existing uncertainty. It has been somewhat confidently asserted that the change in the relative values of the two metals before 1834 was due to the resumption of specie payments by England, and to the supposed greater demand for gold; that is, that gold rose, and that silver did not change, in value. An elaborate tabulation of the average prices of thirty-three articles for the years from 1782 to 1830 furnishes conclusive evidence that there was a considerably higher range of prices in the last ten years of that period than in the first eight, which is proof that the purchasing power of gold had decreased; and, consequently, fallen in value relatively to other commodities. Other investigations reveal that the change was one in silver and not in gold, as the charts prepared for this purpose will clearly show. The cause was undoubtedly the largely increased silver production, as compared with that of gold, in the years between 1781 and 1810, and whose effect only began to be generally felt about that latter year.

— The collections of paintings, drawings, engravings, photographs, and casts which are forming in the Fine Arts Department of the University, may be seen for the present at Sever Hall on Saturday afternoons from two to four o'clock. It is hoped that before long arrangements may be made to keep the rooms open at all times. The object of the collections is twofold: first, to illustrate by selected typical examples the essential characteristics of the great historic schools of art, and second, to guide the exercises in drawing—in the courses on Principles of Design—which have for their object the cultivation of the faculty of seeing, and to convey knowledge of art as language.

The collections are yet very incomplete; indeed, a beginning only is made, but they nevertheless already afford materials for study such as have not before been, and are not yet elsewhere, accessible to students in America. They now present a tolerable compend of much that is most exemplary and significant in the arts of the world. A collection suitable to the needs of the University—where the study of art is conducted purely as a branch of liberal education—cannot be hastily or easily formed. Casts and photographs, of all that can be illustrated by these means, may be obtained with sufficient ease, it is true; but in the department of painting—the most comprehensive and important branch of the fine arts—the formation of useful collections is attended with difficulty. Original masterpieces are, of course, altogether unobtainable. Even second and third-rate original works by great masters are rarely obtainable, and would not serve the objects of an educational collection were they easy to obtain. It follows that painting can be illustrated by copies only. But good copies are well-nigh sufficient for educational purposes. The Fine Arts Department now contains a few trustworthy copies which illustrate the leading characteristics of the finest painting in the early and central schools of Florence and Venice, and of Turner's art. It also contains original plates by Turner and original drawings by Ruskin. A catalogue with explanatory notes is in preparation.

— Professor TOY reports: "Two manuscripts have recently been put into my hands:—

"1. An Arabic history of the prefects and sultans of Cairo. The MS. is defective at beginning and end. At present it contains 23 leaves, vellum paper, 26 by 18 cm, and gives the history from the accession of Asami ibn Zeid al Ma'afari, A. H. 169, to the death of Ibek and the accession of his son Ali, A. H. 655, that is, A. D. 785-1257. It furnishes no new information, and seems to be a modern compilation.

"2. A Coptic Lctionary, 137 leaves, on vellum paper, 26 by 18 cm, much worn, defective at beginning and end. The headings are in Arabic. The MS. is slightly illuminated."

— Professor TOY reports: "In the obscure question of the origin of the Semitic personal pronouns, the following conclusions may be regarded, I think, as well supported: (1) That the t- and k-stems, one of which most grammarians have supposed to be derived by interchange from the other, are independent and parallel, and that, in general, all the personal pronouns, as they now stand, have been formed by the combination of independent stems; (2) that the suffix-forms are the earlier, that is, they were the first to be employed as pronouns; (3) that the resemblance between the Libyan, Egyptian, Ethiopian, and Semitic pronouns is not accidental, or the result of borrowing, but a sign of genetic relationship."

— Dr. G. STANLEY HALL has recently given a course of lectures on Contemporary German philosophers. A digest of E. von Hartman's writings was given, especially to contrast the absurdity of the metaphysics of pessimism with the sublimity of its ethics. The former assumes that God, or the Absolute, created or evolved the universe to ameliorate his eternal and transcendental anguish, the world acting as "a plaster to draw out the pain of the absolute." The ethics teaches the duty of devotion to altruistic ends to the point of complete and unreserved self-sacrifice. Lotze's philosophical writings were characterized as illustrating his remarkable mental sanity and classic harmony of intellectual character. His opinions were at bottom determined by æsthetic considerations, and therefore individual, and as he formerly antagonized chiefly the mechanical, so now he opposes the positivistic tendencies of modern thought. Zeller, the historian, first of the Tübingen movement, and then of Greek philosophy, occupied the third hour.

The last three lectures were devoted to three typical empirical philosophers: First, Helmholtz, whose optics and acoustics were spoken of, and the root of whose nativism was traced to his conception of the origin of geometrical axioms. The origin and development of non-Euclidian conception of the nature of space was described. Wundt's fundamental conceptions of physiological psychology were characterized, especially those of the mechanism of neural action; and finally, Fechner's psycho-physic theories were discussed.

Dr. HALL also gave twelve lectures on Pedagogy, in Boston, which were occupied in about equal proportions with the history of educational theories and practice, the psychology of education, and an account of personal observation of foreign schools. The subjects were as follows: I. The kinder-garten. II. Religious training and instruction. III. Reading, writing, and elements of drawing. IV. Arithmetic and rudiments of higher mathematics. V. Geography and history. VI. Modern languages. VII. Ancient languages. The German gymnasium. VIII. Leisure. The German real school. IX. Physical culture, including singing, etc. X. Teachers and normal-schools. XI. School organization (discipline) and legislation. XII. Educational history, theories, and literature.

— A Dante Society has been recently organized at Cambridge with the following officers: President, HENRY WADSWORTH LONGFELLOW; Vice-President, JAMES RUSSELL LOWELL; members of the council, CHARLES ELIOT NORTON, JUSTIN WINSOR, PHILIP COOMBS KNAPP, JR.; Secretary and Treasurer, JOHN WOODBURY. One of the objects of the society is to establish a library of Dantesque literature, to be a part of the College Library, which shall contain all necessary books for the study of Dante. The society has already appropriated a sum of money for the purchase of books. A gift of the early and valuable Landino comment on the Divina commedia (1529), sent to the society from Florence by Mr. ROBERT N. TOPPAN (H. C. 1858), encourages the society to hope for similar gifts from other individuals. The council, who have the general direction of the work of the society, are considering the possibility of printing the valuable but hitherto unpublished comment of Benvenuto da Imola. In order to accomplish these and other similar objects, it is desired to include in the society not only Dantesque scholars, but also all those interested in the purposes of the society. Any one desiring to become a member of the society is requested to send his or her name to the secretary. The annual fee of the society is fixed at five dollars. An annual meeting (for the election of officers and for the presentation of the report of the council), and occasional meetings for the reading of papers and transaction of business will be held in Cambridge. The annual report of the council of the work and financial condition of the society will be made in print for distribution to members.

— Mr. T. S. PERRY is editing the Life and Letters of the late Dr. Francis Lieber. The book will contain copious extracts from Dr. Lieber's correspondence with Bluntschli, Mittermaier, Laboulaye, Sumner, etc.

— The second volume of Biographical sketches of graduates of Harvard university, by JOHN LANGDON SIBLEY, librarian emeritus, and covering the years 1660-1667, will be issued before Commencement. The first volume was published in 1873.

Science.

— Professor WILLIAM JAMES contributes the following notes on the Sense of Dizziness in Deaf-mutes: "An immense amount of evidence, collected within the last few years, tends to show that the semicircular canals of the internal ear have nothing to do with the function of hearing, but are organs of a special sense hitherto unrecognized as such: the sense, namely, of translation through space, which in its more extreme degrees becomes the feeling of dizziness or vertigo. It occurred to me that, if this theory were true, some, at least, of the inmates of deaf and dumb institutions ought to prove insusceptible of experiencing this latter sensation, for in some either the whole auditory nerve is probably degenerated, or else its ampullar terminations will have shared the local fate, whatever it be, which has abolished the hearing functions of the cochlea. An inquiry was accordingly set on foot, of which the results already most beautifully confirm the modern theory. A very large number of the deaf-mutes examined are either wholly incapable of being made dizzy by the most violent rotations, or experience but a slight and transient giddiness. Others, as was to be expected, are strongly and normally affected. The difference in the demeanor of the two extreme classes of patients is so striking as to leave no room for mistake, and to banish doubt from the most sceptical spectator's mind. In the Horace Mann School in Boston, where 54 children were whirled in a rotary swing, (by far the purest and most powerful means of inducing vertigo,) only two were made dizzy. At the Hartford Asylum, out of 155 pupils, 49 are reported not dizzy, and 49 hardly dizzy. At the National College for Deaf-mutes in Washington, out of 62 persons examined, 19 are not at all dizzy, and 2 hardly dizzy. I have also received 58 answers to a printed circular of questions: 18 of these report complete absence, 12 a slight degree of dizziness; in all, 326 cases, of whom 131 were not dizzy, and 63 but slightly so. The deficiency in question seems quite independent of the age at which deafness began, semi-mutes and congenitals being found indifferently in all three classes. The number of deaf-mutes who are afflicted with disorders of locomotion seems never to have attracted the attention of physiologists, although it has long been notorious in asylums. The connection of these disorders with the loss of the semicircular canal sense becomes now a most interesting problem, into which I have begun to inquire. The matter is evidently complicated by the fact that the disease causing deafness may also leave central disorders expressing themselves in anæsthesia of the legs or by ataxia. That this is so appears from the number of semi-mutes who stagger and zigzag in walking, especially in the dark, but who are normal as respects dizziness. Congenital mutes are hardly ever found with disorders of locomotion. The evidence I already have in hand justifies the formation of a tentative hypothesis, as follows: The normal guiding sensation in locomotion is that from the semicircular canals. This is co-ordinated in the cerebellum (which is known to receive auditory nerve fibres) with the appropriate muscles, and the nervous machinery becomes structurally organized in the first few years of life. If, then, this guiding sensation be suddenly abolished by disease, the machinery is thrown completely out of gear, and must form closer connections than before either with sight or touch. But the cerebellar tracts, being already organized in another way, yield but slowly to the new co-ordinations now required, and for many years make the patient's gait uncertain, especially in the dark. Where the defect of the auditory nerve is congenital the cerebellar machinery is organized from the very outset in co-ordination with tactile sensations, and no difficulty occurs. To prove this hypothesis a minute medical examination of many typical cases will be required. If this prove confirmatory, it will then appear probable that many of the so-called paralysees after diphtheria, scarlet-fever, etc., may be nothing but sudden anæsthesiæ of the semicircular canals.

A complete discussion, with further details, is reserved for future publication.

— In the Anthropological Department of the University the Fourteenth Annual Meeting of the Trustees of the PEABODY MUSEUM OF AMERICAN ARCHAEOLOGY AND ETHNOLOGY took place on March 7th. Mr. SAMUEL H.

SCUDDER took his seat at the board as the successor of Mr. THOMAS T. BOUVÉ, late President of the Boston Society of Natural History. The Hon. CHARLES FRANCIS ADAMS, an original member of the board, appointed by Mr. Peabody in 1866, resigned, and Mr. JOHN C. PHILLIPS was elected as his successor. The Hon. STEPHEN SALISBURY, who has had the charge of the funds since they were given by Mr. Peabody, resigned the office of Treasurer, and Col. THEODORE LYMAN was elected Treasurer. The other members of the board are the Hon. ROBERT C. WINTHROP, Chairman, Professor ASA GRAY, and Dr. HENRY WHEATLAND, Secretary.

The reports of the Treasurer and Curator were read and, as heretofore, will be presented to the President and Fellows in print. The following items are taken from the Curator's report: Two rooms, with their galleries and adjoining halls, and the floor of a third room are now open to the public from nine to five o'clock on week days. The collections thus far exhibited in the new and permanent cases are so arranged as to exhibit both their ethnological and archaeological bearings. The object of this arrangement is to show as far as possible the recent condition of a people, and to trace its history, its connections, and, if possible, its origin in far distant time, by the records which we have of its life, its arts, and its industries. The principles of this arrangement must not be understood to exclude the presentation of other important subjects, such as the corresponding developments of implements, weapons, art, and customs among different peoples and other auxiliary collections illustrative of the general history and development of man from geological time.

The collections now on exhibition consist of those from the mounds and caves of the southern, western, and central states, filling all the cases in the first northern room; those from Mexico, Central America, and Egypt on the first gallery; the Pueblo collection in the second hall; those from California, Alaska, etc., and a few small lots from recent Indian tribes, in the second northern room; the large South American collections in the second southern room; and those from the Pacific Islands, Africa, India, China and Japan on the second southern gallery. It is expected that two more galleries will be open to the public during the present year, — one to contain the European collection, the other that relating to the North American Indians. The large collection of human crania and skeletons is not yet open to the public, but is of ready access to special students in that department.

The largest and most important accessions during the past year were the Peruvian collection presented by Dr. W. Sturgis Bigelow, of Boston; the several hundred crania transferred from the Museum of Comparative Zoölogy by Mr. Agassiz; the collections made from the mounds in Arkansas by the late Edwin Curtis, who had for several years been engaged in explorations for the museum; and those from burial caves in Northern Mexico obtained by Dr. Edward Palmer. The total number of entries in the catalogue for the year reaches over four thousand, representing several times that number of specimens. Numerous volumes and pamphlets have also been added to the museum library. The researches by Dr. Abbott in the Trenton gravels were continued during the year, and many palæolithic implements found by him have been received. A very interesting collection of stone implements of palæolithic forms were also received, having been collected in Massachusetts by Mr. David Dodge.

In closing his report, the Curator called attention to the necessity which had forced the discontinuance of the several explorations in various parts of North and Central America, from which most valuable material and important results were being obtained, and expressed a hope that additional means would be secured for their continuance before it should be too late.

— Three investigations have been in progress in the Physical Laboratory during the winter: —

1. The laws of the propagation of magnetic waves, by HAROLD WHITING.

The results of a series of experiments extending over four years show that the mean velocity of a long magnetic pulse over a rod of soft iron, half an inch in diameter, is about twenty-five feet per second, or nearly half a million times less than the corresponding velocity of the electric pulse over the French Atlantic cable, and that the parallelism between lines of magnetic force and lines of electric flow (already established for a state of equilibrium) probably extends throughout the whole process of the development and disappearance of these lines.

These results seem to throw light upon several anomalies in the action of electric engines (especially on their inefficiency under high velocities); and suggest improvements in the construction of machines both for the consumption and production of electricity.

2. Effect of great cold upon magnetism, by JOHN TROWBRIDGE and J. B. GREENOUGH.

The effect of low temperatures upon the magnetism of steel is very marked. Previous observers had not carried their observations below -25°C . By the use of solid carbonic acid late experiments in the Physical Laboratory have shown that a magnetic bar can be deprived of sixty per cent of its magnetic condition.

3. A research upon thermoelectric lines, by C. B. PENROSE.

A careful study has been made of the strength of the electrical currents which arise when a junction of pure copper and pure nickel is submitted to low temperatures. This work also involves a study of the behavior of other thermometers when used to test very low temperatures.

— Abstracts of two papers, by Mr. N. D. C. HODGES, Assistant in Physics, read before the American Academy of Arts and Sciences: —

1. Thermodynamic basis for the kinetic theory of gases, by N. D. C. HODGES.

A gas, when looked at as a collection of groups of molecules, each group containing those of the same intrinsic energy, may be considered as a case of the equilibrium of heterogeneous substances, and may be examined analytically by the method of J. Willard Gibbs. Taking the equation

$$\mu = \frac{de}{dm}, \quad -p = \frac{de}{dv}, \quad t = \frac{de}{d\eta},$$

we have, letting $f(x + T)$ represent the part of the unit of mass of the gas having energy at the rate $x + T$ per unit of mass,

$$\mu = \frac{de}{dm} = \frac{f(x + T) d(x + T)}{df(x + T)},$$

$$\therefore f(x + T) = A e^{-\frac{1}{\mu}(x + T)}. \quad \text{Maxwell's Law.}$$

We get $p = p\mu$ from the second partial differential coefficient and $Rt = \mu$ from the third;

$$\therefore p\mu = Rt. \quad \text{The Law of Boyle and Charles.}$$

If intermolecular forces are considered the pressure

These results come from the fundamental equation when restrictive forces are not considered. A body free from such forces is then a perfect gas.

2. Molecular cohesion at the absolute zero of temperature, by N. D. C. HODGES.

From the consideration that, if superficial tension could exist at the absolute zero, it would be possible for a liquid to rise in a capillary tube at the expense of no other form of energy, we must conclude that, as superficial tension would exist if there were any molecular cohesion, molecular cohesion must reach a maximum at some point short of the absolute zero, and become nothing at the absolute zero of temperature.

The same result comes from the fact that in any reversible cycle $\int \frac{dQ}{T} = 0$.

— The Anniversary memoirs, a quarto volume of over 600 pages and 42 plates, which the Boston Society of Natural History has just issued in celebration of the semi-centennial of its foundation, contains the following papers by officers of the University:—

Propositions concerning the classification of lavas considered with reference to the circumstances of their extrusion, by N. S. SHALER (15 pp.). The Devonian insects of New Brunswick, by S. H. SCUDDER (41 pp. 1 pl.). The Gymnosporangia or Cedar-apples of the United States, by W. G. FARLOW (38 pp. 2 pl.). A structural feature, hitherto unknown among Echinodermata, found in deep-sea Ophiurans, by THEODORE LYMAN (12 pp. 2 pl.). The development of the squid, Loligo Pealii Lesueur, by W. K. BROOKS (22 pp. 3 pl.). The anatomy, histology, and embryology of Limulus Polyphemus, by A. S. PACKARD, Jr. (45 pp. 7 pl.). On the identity of the ascending process of the astragalus in birds with the intermedium, by E. S. MORSE (10 pp. 1 pl.).

There only remain the History of the Society (250 pp. 2 pl., 9 portr.), by T. T. BOUVÉ, an honorary alumnus; and a paper by S. F. CLARKE, of Johns Hopkins University, on the development of a double-headed vertebrate (6 pp. 1 pl.).

— Professor SHALER reports on Appalachian geology: From the geological sections across the Appalachian system of mountains made during the several campaigns of the summer school of geology, have become satisfied that certain very curious changes in the thickness of strata occur along that line. The most conspicuous of these is found in the section of sub-carboniferous rocks between Pound Gap and Cumberland Gap on the boundary line between Kentucky and Virginia. East of Pound Gap, on the line of the road to Abingdon, Virginia, the sub-carboniferous series consists principally of shales and sandstones, and has a thickness of about five thousand feet. At Cumberland Gap these shales and sandstones have shrunk to about one twentieth of this thickness, and are composed of much finer materials, while the limestones have become thicker, the total thickness at the last-named point being seven hundred feet. The same thinning of the shales and sandstones occurs to the westward and northward, though not at such a rapid rate. It seems likely that this region of thick sandstones and shales marks the neighborhood of the mouth of a great river that in pre-carboniferous times came from the Appalachian island on the east. A careful study of the sediments along this face of the old Appalachian continental island may enable us to determine the places where its greater streams entered the sea.

— Professor SHALER reports on the Effects of the Cincinnati anticlinal on the distribution of sediments: The Cincinnati anticlinal that extends from near Lake Erie to Southern Tennessee, and existed as a ridge on the sea floor from the early stages of the Cincinnati group to the carboniferous age, exercised a great effect on the distribution of sediments derived from the Appalachian island. Its principal effect was to retain near the shore the coarser sediments derived from that mass of land, and prevent their passing into the deeper sea on the west. The consequence was that many formations which are quite arenaceous on the eastern face of this axis are very free from sandy matter to the west of the ridge. It was not until the later part of the millstone grit period that this sinus between the Appalachian island and the Cincinnati axis was obliterated.

The effect of submerged ridges on the sea floor in regulating the distribution of sediments derived from the land, is thus seen to be a matter of importance to the geologist, and must be taken into consideration in the interpretation of sedimentary deposits.

— HOLT & Co. of New York have in press a book upon the Structure and Life-histories of Butterflies, by S. H. SCUDDER, Assistant Librarian. It relates particularly to American butterflies, and is mainly a reproduction of lectures given several years ago before the Lowell Institute. It deals with the general problems suggested by a study of the structure, development, seasons, distribution, and coloring of butterflies from an "evolutionary" point of view, and will discuss more fully than has heretofore been attempted the ancestry of this group of insects. Nearly three quarters of the two hundred illustrations have been prepared for the work, while the others are borrowed principally from Harris and Riley.

— In a paper upon the Carboniferous insects of Great Britain, recently read to the Boston Society of Natural History, and to be published with illustrations in its Memoirs, Mr. S. H. SCUDDER showed that the only two hexapod insects, which, besides a cockroach, had been found in the English coal, should be referred to the Neuroptera, and not to the Orthoptera, as recently maintained by Woodward and Swinton. The structure of the wings in both these insects, viz., Gryllacris Brongniarti and Lithomantis carbonarius, was shown to be similar to that of the Planipennian Neuroptera, and very different from, though superficially resembling, that of the Gryllacridae and Mantidae to which they had been thought allied. This view is the same as that originally held for the former by Audouin on its discovery nearly fifty years ago, and being shown distinct from the modern genera, Gryllacris and Corydalis, to which it had been referred, the new name of Lithosialis was proposed for this fossil. A year ago a second species of the same genus was described by Novák from the Bohemian coal, under the name of Gryllacris bohemica. Two new forms were added by Mr. Scudder to the English coal-fauna, Archaeoptilus ingens, the largest palæozoic insect known, and Brodia priscotineta, remarkable for the admirable preservation of the colored bands of the wings; both belong to the same general group as those already mentioned.

— At the meeting of the Boston Society of Natural History (section of entomology), March 23, Mr. EDWARD BURGESS, of the Bussey Institution, described the structure of the pharynx in the Orthoptera, and particularly in Anabrus, where its muscular development is as well marked as in the case of the Lepidoptera. A closely similar arrangement of longitudinal and annular, or transverse, muscular layers, as well as suspensory muscles, obtains in both orders; and thus the evolution of a powerful sucking pharynx from one possessing only an ordinary function of deglutition is made easy.

Mr. BURGESS spoke also of the very uniform character of the endocranium in mandibulate insects. This portion of the interior skeleton has received almost no notice, but will be found an interesting study, and its modifications throughout the hexapods deserve to be followed up.

— Among the recent acquisitions of the Museum of Comparative Zoölogy we would call the attention of the public to the glass models of the Sea Anemones and of the Jellyfishes now on exhibition in the Systematic Room of Radiates. The difficulty of exhibiting the objects themselves is very great, and for many of the pelagic animals there is nothing more satisfactory than these exquisite models.

— The collection of New York fossils purchased for the Museum from Professor G. Washington Taylor is specially rich in Cephalopods. Some of the Orthoceratites are of gigantic size, the complete tube of some of them measuring more than twenty-four feet in length. The collection is also very rich in Graptolites. The principal formations represented are the Birdseye, Black River, Hudson River, Helderberg, Trenton, and Goniatile Limestones.

— In the Preliminary Report on the Starfishes of the "Blake" Expeditions, Professor PERRIER of the Jardin des Plantes calls special attention to a most interesting genus, Hymenodiscus, intermediate between the true Starfishes and Ophiurans. He insists specially on its many-sided affinities, which are real and not fanciful, as in the case of Bursingia, which thus far has erroneously been considered to represent such an intermediate type, and to be at the same time the representative in the present epoch of some of the early synthetic Starfish types. Previously to the explorations of the "Blake," the number of species of Starfishes known from the Gulf of Mexico did not exceed twenty-seven. Professor Perrier now enumerates seventy.

— In one of the forthcoming numbers of the Bulletin of the Museum (Bull. M. C. Z., vol. viii. no. 10), Mr. C. D. WILCOTT will have an important paper on the structure of the Trilobites, illustrated by a number of plates showing the various appendages he has discovered while making sections of a number of well-preserved Trilobites from the Trenton Limestone.

— Under the auspices of the Woman's Educational Association, a seaside laboratory, affording opportunities for studying the development, anatomy, and habits of common types of marine animals by those of either sex who have already made a beginning in the study of natural history, will be open at Annisquam, Mass., from June 15 to September 15, under the direction of the Boston Society of Natural History. It will be carried on under the care of the curator, Professor A. HYATT, and the immediate supervision of Mr. VAN VLECK, assistant in the museum of the society. Terms may be learned of the curator at the society's museum.

— At the last stated meeting of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences, on January 12th, the Rumford Premium, consisting of a gold and a silver medal, was presented to Professor J. WILLARD GIBBS, of New Haven, for his Researches in Thermo-dynamics. The Proceedings of the Academy (vol. xvi.) will contain the Address made by its President (Professor JOSEPH LOVERING) on this occasion, and the reply by Professor GIBBS. In the same volume will appear a communication by Professor LOVERING on the "Anticipation of the Lissajous curves." In this paper, the analysis and the experimental illustration of these curves is traced back, from the date (1857) of the publication by Lissajous, through a long ancestral line, to their birthplace in Salem in 1815. The so-called Lissajous curves are properly called the Bowditch curves, except that the earth itself has been experimenting upon one set of them for thousands of years.

— Messrs. LITTLE, BROWN & Co. will shortly publish Ideality in the physical sciences, by the late Professor BENJAMIN PEIRCE. This is the title of the six lectures which attracted great attention when they were delivered, two winters ago, at the Lowell Institute in Boston. They were subsequently given at the Peabody Institute, in Baltimore; and two or three of them have been read, from time to time, in various private circles. They embody views in religion and philosophy of deep general interest, and an original discussion of the scientific questions which arise in connection with the Nebular Theory. They were in part prepared for the press by the author, who desired to leave on public record this expression of opinions to which he had been led by the thought of a lifetime.

— Professor PICKERING reports: "The latest discovery at the Observatory is the detection of another star whose spectrum consists of bright bands. There have been four similar stars previously known, one of which was discovered in Cambridge last summer. The new object is very near o' Canis Majoris, so that it is visible in winter when the others are below the horizon. It is easily seen with a small telescope, while the other stars, which are much fainter, can be studied to advantage only with instruments of the largest size. The spectrum consists of three bands, the central one, which is very faint or wanting in the other stars of the same class, coinciding with the F line of hydrogen."

— The Observatory has recently undertaken to furnish, for the Selenographical Society of London, a series of photometric determinations of the brightness of points on the Moon's surface selected by the Society, in order to establish a standard scale of brightness in future observations.

FROM THE RECORDS OF THE CORPORATION.

“CHEMICAL LABORATORY OF HARVARD COLLEGE,

“President ELIOT.

“DEAR SIR, — Will you have the kindness to present to the ‘Corporation,’ for the Library of the University, the accompanying volume, which is a collection of most of the original papers published by the officers of the Laboratory during the past ten years, and chiefly during the last five years?

“As Director of the Laboratory I take pride in this volume, as an evidence that, although the chief work of our department of the University is elementary teaching, we have done our duty in seeking to advance our department of science by careful and laborious investigation. I would also call attention to the fact that, however circumscribed the field of labor of any one of us has necessarily been, it has included in its whole scope the entire domain of Chemistry.

“Yours very truly,

(Signed) “JOSIAH P. COOKE.”

And it was thereupon Voted, that Professor Cooke’s interesting and welcome gift for the Library of the University be gratefully accepted, and that the President be requested to thank Professor Cooke on behalf of the Corporation.

The President communicated to the Board a letter from the Rev. Dr. A. P. PEABODY resigning his position as Preacher to the University and Plummer Professor of Christian Morals, the resignation to take effect on the 1st of September next.

Whereupon it was Voted that the University is deeply indebted to Dr. PEABODY for his faithful and devoted services as preacher and teacher during the period of twenty-one years.

That he has discharged the duties of his delicate and responsible office with kindness, independence, and dignity.

That he will retire with the grateful respect of all the officers and students of the University, past and present, who have known him.

That Dr. PEABODY’s resignation be accepted to take effect upon the day fixed by him and that his name be continued upon the University Catalogues as Preacher and Plummer Professor Emeritus.

MEETING OF APRIL 11, 1881. — Upon the consideration of the petition of the Board of Directors of the Harvard Dining Association that the President and Fellows approve of the vote of the Directors authorizing the use of a room in the Hall for the accommodation of the lady guests of members of the Association, it was Voted, that it being inexpedient in the opinion of the Corporation that such a use of rooms in Memorial Hall should be made, the President and Fellows disapprove of this measure of the Board of Directors, and the Treasurer is instructed to communicate this vote to the Board.

Voted, to appoint as Proctor, HENRY CHAMPION JONES. A.B.

Voted, to assign for the site of the new building for the Law School the land on Holmes Place now used for a stable together with that just purchased from the representatives of Royal Morse.

MEETING OF APRIL 25, 1881. — A letter was read from HENRY G. DENNY, Esq., executor of and trustee under the will of HENRY BARTLETT, and it was Voted, that the bequest from Dr. HENRY BARTLETT of $5,000, to establish a scholarship, be gratefully accepted upon the terms named in the will, and that the Treasurer be requested to make suitable acknowledgment to the executor therefor.

Voted, upon the request of members of the Class of 1860, to insert in the Quinquennial Catalogue the name of ARTHUR WILKINSON as of the Class of 1860.

The President submitted to the Board an offer from HENRY L. HIGGINSON, Esq., to provide, without cost to the College, for a series of six concerts, to be given during next winter in Sanders Theatre, — and it was thereupon Voted, that Mr. HIGGINSON's generous offer be gratefully accepted, and that the Treasurer be directed, on behalf of the President and Fellows, to thank Mr. HIGGINSON, and to place Sanders Theatre at his disposal for such days as may suit his convenience.

Voted, to appoint WILLIAM JAMES, M.D., Assistant Professor of Philosophy for five years from December 1, 1880.

Voted, to proceed to the election of a Professor of Italian and Spanish from September 1, 1881.

Whereupon, ballots being given in, it appeared that BENNETT HUBBARD NASH was elected.

Voted, to appoint EDWIN H. HALL, A.B., Ph.D., Instructor in Physics for the ensuing academic year.

A communication was received from the College Faculty in relation to the matters referred to them by vote of this Board on January 31, 1881.

To the President and Fellows of Harvard College.

The College Faculty have the honor to acknowledge the official communication of the following vote, adopted by the Corporation on the 31st of January, 1881: —

"The attention of the Corporation having been called by the Report of the President to the gradually increasing percentage of College students who are either unable to continue their studies with their classes or fail finally to be recommended for a degree, it was "Voted, that the College Faculty be requested to consider whether there be any remedy for this evil."

The Faculty, having given to this vote the full and careful consideration which its subject demands, now beg leave to report the result of their deliberations.

For the proper investigation of this subject, the Faculty have found it necessary to make a fresh examination of the facts. The tables contained in the President's Reports for 1877 and 1880, to which attention is directed by the Corporation, exhibit the net annual loss of a series of College classes, or in other words, "The difference between the number of persons who leave the class each year from all causes and the number who are admitted to the class with advanced standing." But this form of statement, although sufficient for the purposes for which it is used in the President's Reports, gives but little light on the subject now referred to by the Corporation. It is obvious that, if only the net annual loss is considered, those years in which a comparatively large number of students were admitted to advanced standing, as was usual until within a few years, would show but a small loss in comparison with more recent years, in which this process of repair goes on more slowly, although there were no change in the actual proportion of students withdrawn. Moreover, the statement of net loss alone must embarrass any analysis of the causes of withdrawal or failure, and thus destroy the only basis on which an intelligent opinion can be formed as to the question submitted by the Corporation.

The Faculty have therefore taken, as the starting-point in their inquiry, the whole number of students in College at the beginning of each academic year from 1870-71 to 1879-80. They have compared with this total number for each year the number of those who at the end of the year are found to have withdrawn from College, to have been removed to some lower class, to have failed to graduate, or in any way to have disappeared from the class-lists in which they appeared at the beginning. The number thus disappearing is the total loss of the College for the year; or, in the language of the Corporation, it is the number of those "who are unable to continue their studies with their classes, or fail finally to be recommended for a degree." The proportion which this total annual loss bears to the whole number of students is shown in the table subjoined to this communication, by column 3, which gives the annual percentage of loss from all causes. A review of these percentages, while it shows a greater proportionate annual loss for the last six years as compared with the preceding five, does not disclose any tendency to a progressive increase of loss, the maximum being found in the year 1876-77. So far, then, as concerns the total number of students annually disappearing from their class-lists, the Faculty believe that the evil suggested by the Corporation does not exist.

It appears to the Faculty desirable, however, to carry the inquiry farther, and to attempt some analysis of the causes of the considerable annual loss which is regularly exhibited. A complete analysis of this kind cannot now be made, as it would require a knowledge of the circumstances of many individual cases, not to be obtained from the records of the Faculty and no longer within the recollection of the College officers. The reports of the Dean of the Faculty, however, since the year 1870, have regularly given certain statements, made upon the personal knowledge of the officers at the time, which make it possible to distinguish with tolerable accuracy between losses occasioned by failure in scholarship and those resulting from other causes. From this source the number of students disappearing from their classes in consequence of the regulations of the Faculty respecting scholarship, whether by removal to some lower class, by voluntary or involuntary withdrawal from College, or by inability to comply with the conditions for graduation, has been obtained for every year of the period above named, and the proportion of all such losses by failure in scholarship has been computed, and is given in column 4 of the table subjoined. It will be seen that while this class of losses makes, upon the average, less than one half of the whole, it shows little tendency to increase if comparison is made with the average for the whole period, 5 per cent, and no tendency whatever to increase since 1873.

But, in the judgment of the Faculty, it is necessary to make an important deduction from the percentage of failures from scholarship, before the real loss of the College from this cause can be ascertained. Of those students who have disappeared from their class lists, some have subsequently complied with the conditions for graduation in their own classes, some have graduated with lower classes, and some are now in College pursuing their studies for the degree. These cases of subsequent graduation or of continued presence in College must be deducted from the apparent annual loss, before the final, real loss of the College by reason of failure in scholarship can be known. This deduction is made, and the resulting net loss from this cause is shown, in column 6 of the table. Here, as in column 4, the annual percentages exhibit no tendency to increase since 1873, but, on the contrary, are found to be remarkably uniform, when the smallness of the total number on which the percentage must be calculated is borne in mind.

"The losses from other causes by failure in scholarship, as shown by column 5, not only make the larger part of the whole number, but are far more irregular in their occurrence. For several years the effect of the general commercial depression appears to be well marked, and down to the year 1879-80 the annual losses of this kind may be said to exhibit a tendency to increase. But, in the opinion of the Faculty, with the disappearance of the causes operating between 1874 and 1879, this class of losses is likely for the present to remain below its average for the last few years.

The Faculty have not felt themselves called upon to make any inquiry into the number of students annually disappearing from their classes for any period before the last decade, since the tables contained in the President's Reports, to which the attention of the Corporation has been called, begin with the class of 1873. But, upon a careful review of their records for the period marked out for their consideration, they now respectfully represent that they find no such tendency to a gradual increase in the proportion of students unable to continue their studies or to graduate with their classes as is referred to by the vote of the Corporation.

For the Faculty, CHARLES F. DUNBAR, Dean.

This classical work is the most important ever published upon fossil insects, and may be called the first serious attempt at the classification of the tertiary species. Most of the material came from Oeningen and Radoboj, but it included all the author could examine from Aix and other localities. 462 species are described and figured, divided as follows: 119 Coleoptera, 39 Gymnognatha, 3 Neuroptera, 80 Hymenoptera, 9 Lepidoptera, 80 Diptera, and 133 Hemiptera. There are very few general observations, but attention should be called to an important excursus on the arrangement of the veins in the wings of insects and the elytra of Coleoptera, in the first part, pp. 76-95.

The fossil ants of Oeningen and Radoboj are winged and either ♂ or ♀, neuters being rarely preserved; three fourths are females. The individuals are very abundant and are preserved in large assemblages, and many species in close contiguity; most of them are Formicidae, and they form the best data for comparison of the Oeningen and Radoboj faunas.

General account of the relations of the Rhynchota of Oeningen, Radoboj, and Aix to existing faunas, followed by a list of the species described in the third part of his Tertiary insects. They agree better with the insects of the Southern zone than with those of Switzerland, and the Capisni and Ripari characteristic of temperate regions are wholly absent.

The paragraphs on pp. 134-135 of the original are very much expanded on pp. 196-205 of this translation, and include full tables of the families of insects and their numerical representation in the different European deposits of tertiary time. Besides this, M. Gaston de Saporta in his Examen des flores tertiaires de Provence, pp. 133-171, gives a paragraph, pp. 152-153, concerning the insects of Aix. Describes and figures 110 species, nearly all of them new. In an introduction of five pages, some general results of the study of Oeningens Coleoptera are tabulated, the most interesting of which appear to be that the fauna is more European in character than the flora and less rich in American forms; and that many species are related to those which now enjoy a wide distribution.

An important discussion of the problems suggested by a study of the Diptera of the Prussian amber, of which at this time 850 species were known to the author, and of which over 650, belonging to 101 genera, had been satisfactorily determined. These insects belong to a single district fauna, and represent only a fragment of that, viz.: those low flying Diptera which love moist places sheltered from the wind. The generic types which existed in the amber period have probably been preserved down to our time. Of all living types North American Diptera, especially those found from lat. 32° to 40° most nearly resemble the amber fauna; next to these, those of Europe.

4. Shakespeare, William. The first edition of Shakespeare. The works of William Shakespeare in reduced fac-simile from the famous first folio edition of 1623. With an introduction by J. O. Halliwell-Phillipps. London. 1876. BPL.

Halliwell says in his introduction: "A few of the dramas in the first folio were possibly edited from Shakespeare's original manuscripts. It is certain in several instances Heminge and Condell used printed copies of the old quarto editions." He enumerates the plays in order, and indicates the relative value of the authorities for the text.

The present average value of a perfect copy of the first folio is £500.

"It is not of course pretended that any fac-simile of any old book will in all cases of minute research entirely supersede the necessity of a reference to copies of the ancient impressions."

This is the second reproduction of the first folio by some photographic process. The first was made by Preston, by photolithography, in 1866, was superintended by Howard Staunton, and published in sixteen parts by Day and Son, London. It was of the size of the original, and was delivered bound to subscribers for £3 8s. It has since fallen somewhat in price. It has been complained that in minute particulars it is not always faithful, as in omitting the bar of an e, thus making it a c, etc. It is said that the present reduced fac-simile is from this earlier one, and not from an original.

The earliest type fac-simile was made in 1807, with "Printed by E. and J. WRIGHT, St. John's Square," on the reverse of title, and "Shakespeare, 1800," as a water mark in the paper. It was said to be edited by Francis Douce. Upcott pointed out 368 errors in it, of which about forty are important. Notes and queries, vii. 47; 3d ser. vii. 139. Mr. Furness has Upcott's copy, with his collations, made in 1832. American bibliophile, June, 1875. The BPL. has Britton's illustrated copy in four volumes.

The next printed reproduction was begun in 1861 by Lionel Booth, copying the general style of the original, but using a small type, and changing the page to a quarter shape. It was completed, having been issued in three parts, — comedies, histories, tragedies, late in 1864. The Cambridge editors call it probably the most correct reprint ever made. Charles Wright was the editor of it. Some copies have Pericles, copied from the 1664 folio, at the end.

— Extract from a letter of Mr. Carlyle to Mr. Emerson, dated Chelsea, April 6, 1870, concerning the completion of his bequest to Harvard College :—

"Day before yesterday your welcome letter came to hand with the welcome news in it : yesterday I put into my poor Document here the few words still needed ; locked everything into its still repository (your Letter, President Eliot's, Norton's, etc.) ; and walked out into the sunshine, piously thankful that a poor little whim, which had long lain fondly in my heart, had realized itself with an emphasis I could never hope, and was become (thanks to generous enthusiasm on New England's part) a beautiful little fact, lying done then so far as I had to do with it. Truly your account of matters threw a glow of light into my thoughts which is very rare there now ;—altogether a gratifying little transaction to me, and I must add a surprising, for the enthusiasm of good-will is evidently great, and the occasion is almost infinitesimally small. Well, well ; it is all finished off and completed,—and so we will only say Faustum sit, as our last word on the subject ;—and to me it will be, for some days yet, under these vernal skies, something that is itself connected with The Spring in a still higher sense ; a little white and red-lipped bit of Daisy pure and poor, scattered into Time's Seedfield, and struggling above ground there, uttering its bit of prophecy withal, among the ox-hoofs and big jungles that are everywhere about, and not prophetic of much."

Book Reviews and Notices.

— Glaciers. By Nathaniel S. Shaler and William M. Davis, Boston : J. R. Osgood & Co., folio.—Although many text-books and popular treatises on the natural sciences are already published, there remains ample room for works in which accurate illustration is made the first object. Since the invention of photography there has been a marked improvement in the cuts in geological manuals, yet in representing features of as varied and delicate detail as mountains and glaciers, there is still much to be desired ; but with the perfecting of the several processes by which photographs can be accurately and permanently reproduced, there seems to be an opportunity for an advance in popular scientific literature. To take advantage of this, Professor N. S. Shaler and Mr. W. M. Davis drew up a plan some eighteen months ago, for a series of "Illustrations of the Earth's Surface," of which the first volume, on Glaciers, has recently been published by J. R. Osgood & Co., of Boston.

It was at first proposed to provide only a page or two of text for each heliotype plate, and to make the descriptions entirely dependent in subject and order on the illustrations ; but it was soon found that although the photographic originals were drawn from widely separated regions, the Alps, Norway, the Himalaya and the Rocky Mountains, it was impossible to give them sufficient sequence to serve as a guide in the general discussion of the broad subject of glaciation. The early plan was then altered ; a special page of explanation was preserved for each plate, and an independent text that grew to 170 quarto pages was prepared, mostly by the senior author. With the size the cost of the book has necessarily increased, but it is hoped that its value also has been proportionately enlarged.

The first chapters of the text are given to describing what glaciers are, where they may be found, where they have existed, and what they have done. Then follows an examination of the causes and conditions of those peculiar periods in the earth's history when ice attained a development so far beyond that of the present time ; and finally come the effects of glaciers on the altitude of the lands and the relations of glaciation to the life of the Earth and to the history of man. Many of these topics are still matters of controversy among geologists : it may be therefore interesting to review the standing of the authors in regard to these disputed points. First among them, comes the extent of continental glaciers in post-Tertiary times : this is illustrated by a map at the end of the volume, from which it may be seen that the ice of the glacial period had by no means a symmetrical circumpolar distribution, but was developed most extensively on the lands that surround the basin of the North Atlantic. Indeed, the small fraction of the earth's surface shaded as having been glaciated may well be a surprise to those enthusiastic glacialists of the past twenty years who have excited public curiosity with the expressions "polar ice-cap" and "alternate glaciation of the northern and southern hemispheres." As to the effects of glaciers, they are allowed great power of erosion: our great lakes and the fjord form of high latitude coasts being attributed to their excavating force: on this point, however, the junior author expresses dissent.

Low temperature is not regarded as a characteristic of a glacial climate. Among the explanations of the conditions that brought about glaciation, much emphasis is laid on Mr. Croll's astronomical hypotheses, but many others receive a share of notice and are given due weight, and periods marked by a great increase of ice on the earth's surface are not considered as marking the maximum exertion of some single cause, but rather as the compound result of several independent causes, accidentally and irregularly combined. The date of the glacial period is therefore not so susceptible of close calculation from astronomical data as Mr. Croll has supposed. The alternations of subsidence and elevation during and following the glacial period are attributed in part to the weight of the ice on those lands where it lay as a great sheet, and in part to slow motions of the earth's outer layers of the kind that have produced the continents.

From the evidence of the human remains of Le Puy in France, and Calaveras County, California, and the rough spear heads of Trenton, New Jersey, it is considered probable that man existed during and probably before the last glacial period.

Following the text is a glossary and a list of works on glaciers and glaciation: the latter cannot claim completeness, as many articles of only local value were excluded; it is hoped, however, that no important memoir has been omitted. The plates, twenty-five in number and in several cases containing double illustrations, represent characteristic general and detailed views of glaciers of the Alps, Norway, and the Himalaya, as well as many of the effects of glaciation. Of special local interest are the views of the lenticular hills or drumlins (plate xxiv.) of unstratified drift that are of such great distinctness in the country around Boston.

— Henry Holt and Company have published a new edition of Otto's German Grammar, revised and in part rewritten by Professor William Cook.

— Professor COOKE has collected a number of essays bearing on the general subject of Scientific Culture, which is the title of the volume; published by D. Appleton and Co. of New York.

— Professor COOKE has prepared a revised edition of his work on Chemical Philosophy. The book has been largely rewritten, and comprises sections on the new methods of determining vapor density, on thermo chemistry, on molecular volumes, on the classification of elementary substances, and other subjects which have been developed since the first edition was printed in 1870. The book is already stereotyped and will be published in octavo form (625 pages) early in the autumn by John Allyn.

— Professor COOKE has collected the scientific papers which he has published during his connection with the University in a volume entitled Chemical and Physical Investigations. Of this work "intended for private distribution only" a copy has been placed in the College Library.

Literature and Art.

— On the ninth of May a lecture was read before the Harvard Historical Society, by Dr. Herbert B. Adams of Johns Hopkins University on the Towns of New England, their Germanic Origin and their Mission to the South. The following is an abstract: There have been various theories in regard to the origin of New England towns. The most popular and orthodox view is that they are the product of the Congregational church. Dr. Joseph S. Clarke, in his Sketch of Congregational Churches, Massachusetts, says the "Town corporation is the offspring of Puritan Congregationalism." This view is unsound; for it is more probable that the Congregational church was the offspring of the towns and parishes of old England, where local institutions of church government had existed from time immemorial and were quickened into aggressive life by the tyranny of prelates. A second theory concerning the origin of New England towns is that represented by Professor Joel Parker, in his paper read a few years ago before the Massachusetts Historical Society, advocating the idea that our towns are of "secular" origin, but indigenous to New England. He says they "were not founded or modelled upon precedent." Professor Parker wrote his paper in the year 1865, before the theories of Von Maurer concerning the origin of communal institutions had been brought into prominence by the writings of Sir Henry Maine. Upon the basis of these writings a third view is now in process of construction, and was represented in the above paper as "the Germanic theory."

This theory carries back the origin of New England towns, as a type of civil organization, not merely to the Saxon tuns of old England, but to the village communities of ancient Germany, as described by Tacitus. The description given in the Germania of the mode of laying out a Teutonic land community applies very well to the mode of settlement adopted at Plymouth. The Pilgrims, like the Germans, took up a tract of land as a communal domain, in proportion to the number of cultivators. The lands of the Plymouth plantation were divided by lot, according to the size of families. The outlying, undivided lands were known in Plymouth local records for more than a century as "commons." As late as 1710, Plymouth had within its town jurisdiction over thirty thousand acres of common land. There still remain more than 200 acres of so-called "town lands," largely forest, whence villagers sometimes help themselves in good old Teutonic fashion. For many years after the founding of Plymouth, the mowing lands were assigned by lot in town meeting. In the town of Sandwich, in Plymouth colony, townsmen were given liberty, in 1678, to improve land in the Town Neck "noe longer than ten yeares — then to be at the townsmen's ordering againe." The Town Neck of 130 acres still remains a common field under the control of a small company of proprietors, who are descendants of the first settlers, or who have purchased "cow rights." In Salem also there is a remarkable case of "survival" in the so-called "Great Pastures," which are still managed upon the principles of an old English common field. All these examples, together with Boston Common and the village greens throughout New England are bits of fossil history, which serve to link the communal life of to-day with the earliest beginnings of Teutonic society.

Town commons, town pastures, and other monuments of the old Germanic village community, once existed in Maryland and in other parts of the South. The Northern and the Southern States have a common inheritance of old Saxon institutions of local self-government. The South had its hundreds, its towns, and boroughs, which were once filled with the same communal spirit as the towns and parishes of New England. But the great extent of country in the South, the ease with which colonists acquired landed estates, the example of the English country gentry, together with the influence of slavery, climate, and extensive farming, led to a decay of municipal institutions and to the triumph of a rural civilization, which in Virginia and elsewhere was of an extremely high order. With the downfall of this civilization, through the desolating influence of war and wrong methods of reconstruction, comes the need of reconstitution for the South through old Saxon self-governing principles upon which the Southern States were founded. The Norman régime has ended in this country as well as in England. Saxon liberty is everywhere reviving in the old world as well as the new. This revival can be hastened at the South in three ways: (1) by historical science, which will show the common origin of local institutions throughout the whole country, and the true significance of counties, towns, parishes, and plantations; (2) by church establishments, which foster local interests of the highest type; (3) by common schools, which are the most solid foundation for enlightened self-government. New England's mission to the South is an indirect one, e. g. through the operation of the Peabody Education Fund.

— Professor TOY reports from Dr. ISAAC H. HALL, of Philadelphia, the title and description of a rare book, interesting also from its dedication to Increase Mather:

[The Dedication is:]

CRES-CENTIO | MATHERO, | Verbi Divini Ministro Vigi-lantissimo, atque Collegii Harvardini, quod est Canta-brigiae Nov-Anglorum Re-ctori & Doctori Celeberrimo ac Honorandissimo, con-versionem Indorum, in A-merica (und cum viginti qua-tuor, nuper Gentilibus, sed jam Christianis Pastoribus) felici-ter promoventi, cui omnia | fausta & felicia in conver-tendis Gentilibus precatur. | JOHANNES LEUSDEN.

After the dedication above, comes "JOHANNES LEUSDEN, | Lectori benevolo | S. P. |," which has "ALLOQUUTIO" as its running title, and occupies five pages. In this he speaks of it as his second Hebrew Psalter, "of a portable form, and in the same letters [types] as his Hebrew Bible of 1667"; but as he is not now "subject to a Jewish printer," he can be freer to edit as he likes; can leave a little more space between the Hebrew words and introduce "Jehova" and "Jah" (and not "Dominus") into the latin translation. In the first ten Psalms, for the help of learners, he joins together with a hyphen ("per virgulam quasi Macca-ph") the several Latin words which together represent one Hebrew word. He has also noted "ex versibus 2527 totius Psalterii, stellulis 564," in which all the words of the whole Psalter are to be found, and in order to make the work still more complete, he has added at the end of the volume a "Catalogus" of 546 verses of the Old Testament, "in quibus cetera voces Radicales, in Psalterio non occurrentes, inveniuntur"; and he refers to those texts which are printed in their order at the end of his "Manualis Hebraeo-Latino-Belgico." It would now be called a 32mo, but it is an actual 12mo. Its folios, not its pages (except title and Alloquutio etc.) are numbered.

Collation. — Title, Dedication, and Alloquutio, 8 pages., Sub-title (ספר הזללים | LIBER | PSALMORUM: | cum | Versione Latina |), Psalms in Hebrew and Latin on confronting pages, folios 1-240a. Catalogus, 5 pages not numbered. Signatures A to X 5.

The Hebrew verse-numbers are put in the body of the page, not in the margin, but a wide space, in the midst of which is the number, makes it all clear. The number of the Psalm is given in both Hebrew and Roman. The Latin is divided into verses and numbered, after the ordinary style. He prints "Halelu-Jah," and declines "Jehova" singularly, unless there are misprints. Thus Ps. cxli. 8 (his numbering) "Quia ad te יהוה Domine oculi mei." But it is Nom. Jehova; Gen. and Dat. Jehovæ; Acc. Jehovam. But in Ps. lxxi. 16 (same numbering) Gen. is JEHOVI, apparently; for the verse is "Ingrediar in potentias Domini JEHOVI: recordabor justitiae tuae solius."

— The curator of the Archæological Museum has given a series of lectures, or explanations of portions of the museum which are now arranged. These explanations were on Friday afternoons from four to five o'clock, and were free to all who wished to attend. The first was on the Mounds of the United States and objects obtained from them, and was held in the northern room on the first floor, where the collection from the mounds is arranged. The second was held on the first northern gallery, and consisted of an explanation of the several collections from Mexico and Central America. The third was an account of the Pueblo Indians and of the ruins of the pueblos and cliff-houses in Utah, Colorado, Arizona, and New Mexico. This was given in the hall on the second floor where there are a number of models of pueblos and ancient cliff-houses, and numerous specimens of ancient and modern pueblo pottery, as well as many other things from the old ruins, and a fine series of large photographs of the Moqui Towns in Arizona, the pueblo of Zuni in New Mexico, etc. The fourth and last of the series was given in the southern room on the second floor, which is devoted to the collections from South America, particularly from Peru, Bolivia, and Brazil.

The object of these explanations was to make known the character of the Museum and the plan that has been followed in its arrangement. The interest that has been taken in this brief and informal course has led the curator to plan a more extended one for the next term; but as the number of persons attending must be limited, tickets for the next course will be given out on application.

— The Museum has lately received from the Smithsonian Institution a series of the types of the Fossil Plants described by Professor Lesquereux in connection with his various Government publications.

Professor Lesquereux is also engaged in identifying a large collection of fossil plants made by Mr. Sternberg for the Museum. The collection contains nearly all the species thus far described from the cretaceous beds of Western Kansas.

— As a partial supplement to the Elective pamphlet, the instructors in the geological courses of the Natural History department have issued a four page circular descriptive of their under-graduate and post-graduate electives, giving, in addition to the name and number of hours of the study, a short statement of the subjects treated, and their relations to one another. Schemes are added suggestive of the order in which the electives may be advantageously taken. The circular may be had at the College office.

— In Nos. 2358 and 2376 of the Astronomische Nachrichten, Mr. Arthur Searle has called attention to the probable existence of faint permanent bands of light in the sky which may seriously interfere with observations of the zodiacal light. Some evidence is furnished in the second communication, tending to show that one such band, extending from Aquila through Aquarius to the Pleiades is due to a slight aggregation of small stars in the form of a stream. An account is also given of the phenomenon of "Gegenschein," originally noticed by Brorsen, as observed during the present year by Messrs. Searle and Wendell.

Observations of some astronomical value upon the various phenomena above mentioned may be advantageously made during the summer and autumn months, on mountains or at any places where the air is decidedly clear and transparent. These observations require no instruments, and no more experience than can very easily be acquired; they call, however, for some care and patience on the part of the observer. Exact information on the subject will be gladly furnished, to any one interested in it, by Mr. Searle, at the Observatory.

— Professor COOKE has printed in the Proceedings of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences a biographical sketch of the late Prof. W. H. MILLER of Cambridge, England, the eminent crystallographer.

— Professor COOKE has published in the Proceedings of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences, vol. xvii., the final results of his investigation on the Atomic Weight of Antimony. In this paper he shows that the value of this atomic weight is 120.00, both with reference to the atomic weight of bromine taken at 80.00 and also with reference to the atomic weight of silver taken as 108.00. The chief novelty in the methods employed consists in referring this atomic weight, not simply to one value assumed as known, but to two values between which the ratio has been established by several trustworthy investigators, whose results agree to within one ten-thousandth of the value of each quantity. This double reference very greatly increases the value of the result, which can be relied upon to one-thousandth and probably to one ten-thousandth of the whole amount. In Professor Cooke's investigation the causes of error in the processes used have been carefully investigated.

As the atomic weight of antimony was found to be a whole number to within one ten-thousandth of its value, and thus to conform to the hypothesis of Prout that the atomic weights are all exact multiples of the atomic weight of hydrogen, it appeared desirable to apply the method of double reference to some of the other atomic weights in order to test still further this celebrated theory. Accordingly under the direction of Professor Cooke Mr. Oliver W. Huntington of the graduating class has applied the method so successfully used in the case of antimony in revising the atomic weights of cadmium, an elementary substance which on many accounts was well adapted for the investigation. He finds that the atomic weight of cadmium is 112.31 with reference both to that of bromine as 80.00 and with reference to that of silver 108.00. In other words that to within one ten-thousandth of the value of either of the three quantities. This result appears to furnish positive evidence against Prout's hypothesis.

Mr. Oliver W. Huntington has also made an investigation of the spectrum of arsenic under the direction of Professor Trowbridge. Finding that the methods generally used for observing the spectrum of elementary substances gave no satisfactory result in the case of arsenic, Mr. Huntington was led by his experiments to contrive a form of apparatus with which the spectrum appears with great brilliancy. The spectrum is exceedingly characteristic and the apparatus may be of value in toxicological investigations. The most brilliant lines have the following wave lengths:

3	5813 " "	8	5103 " "
5	5563 " "	10	4593 " "

Among these lines, the lines 1 and 2 in the red (forming a double line of which the members are about the same distance apart as those of the D line) are very striking. Another interesting result of this investigation was the discovery of thallium in commercial arsenic and the line No. 7 is the well known green line of this element.

— Archæological Exploration at Madisonville, Ohio. By F. W. PUTNAM, Curator of the Peabody Museum of American Archæology and Ethnology.

In April last, by the kind invitation of the Madisonville Literary and Scientific Society, I made a partial exploration of the Ancient Cemetery at Madisonville, in the little Miami Valley, Ohio. This burial ground, which has now become famous in American archæology, is in close proximity to an old village site, on which can still be traced the circular ridges of earth indicating the places where once were the habitations of the people, and in the midst of which is an earth-mound about five feet high. For over two years several gentlemen of the Madisonville Society, which has, through the liberality of the proprietors, control of the land, have been engaged in a careful exploration of this old cemetery, and during this time very much of interest has been discovered.*

The cemetery probably extends over about fifteen acres of the extensive plateau, and is in places still covered with a growth of large trees of various kinds, forming what is termed the primeval forest. From twelve to eighteen inches of leaf-mould overlies the hard-pan of the plateau.

About three acres of the cemetery have been dug over, foot by foot, and many objects have been discovered, particularly with the skeletons which are generally found at a depth of two or three feet. Over six hundred skeletons have been thus far discovered. A number of crania have been secured, and I brought home several, for which the museum is specially indebted to Dr. C. L. Metz, who has paid particular attention to the human remains and has secured a valuable pathological collection.

There have been found with the skeletons a number of vessels of pottery, the most common of these are small cooking pots with rather pointed bottoms and with four handles. Most of these vessels are simply cord-marked, but occasionally one is found ornamented with incised lines, or with rows of circular indentations. Two have been obtained on which were small and rudely made medallion figures representing the human face, similar to many from the Missouri and Arkansas mounds. On one pot a similarly formed head is on the edge so as to face the inside of the vessel. About half a dozen small vessels have a very interesting form of decoration which seems thus far to be peculiar to this place. These are known as the "Lizard" or "Salamander" pots. On some of these vessels the salamander, which is fairly modelled, is on the surface of the broad flat handles on opposite sides, in others, they are placed between the handles, and in still others they take their place. In all the head of the salamander is on the edge or lip of the vessel, and in one or two it is even carried over a little on the inside, similar to some of the conceits on Japanese pottery. The four legs and the tail of the animal are bent so as to rudely give a slight artistic effect, and the potter who conceived the idea of thus decorating common cooking vessels probably had an artistic feeling above the common standard. A few other forms of vessels are represented by single specimens; such as an ordinary pot attached to a hollow stand a few inches high; two vessels joined together one above the other, the upper without a bottom; and a flat oblong dish with handles at each end. The salamander ornament and the character of the broad flattened handles may be said to be the principal peculiarities of the pottery thus far found in the cemetery. It is in general character and finish unlike the dark pottery of the Missouri type, but it evidently belongs to a corresponding period in the development of the art, and approaches both the Missouri type and the Michigan-mound type, so far as we can judge from the few specimens yet known from the latter region.

* The field work has been under the special direction of Dr. C. L. Metz, and the published journal has been edited by Mr. C. F. Low, both gentlemen acting under the general direction of the society, several other members of which have taken an active part in the work.

Pipes of various shapes, cut from several kinds of stone, some slightly carved, have been found with the skeletons and under the leaf-mould, as have also various implements of stone,—particularly chipped arrowheads, knives, drills, polished celts, hammer-stones, etc.; but I believe that not a single grooved-axe has yet been found in the cemetery proper, although they are common in all the region about. Numerous bone implements, and some shell and copper ornaments have also been found with the skeletons.

It is, however, to the singular "ash-pits" that have been discovered in this cemetery that I wish to call particular attention, and it was to their examination that I gave the greater part of the time during my visit.

These ash-pits, as they have been well named, are circular excavations in the hard-pan of the plateau, from three to four feet in diameter and from four to seven feet deep from the surface of the leaf-mould. Most of the pits are of about the same diameter from top to bottom, but several have been found which are one or two feet wider at the bottom than at the top. At the bottom of some of the pits a small circular excavation has been found, either directly in the centre or on one side.

That nearly all of the four hundred pits thus far discovered in the cemetery were made before the six hundred bodies whose skeletons have been exhumed were buried, is shown by the fact that a large number of the skeletons were found over the pits, and most of the burials seem to have been made just below the recent soil or leaf-mould, which so far as I could judge from my hasty observations, seems to have been formed over the pits. If this should prove to be the case, the antiquity of the pits would be, probably, considerably beyond that of the four or five hundred years indicated by the large forest trees growing over them. That the place had been also used as a cemetery at a time preceding the digging of some of the pits was conclusively shown by the fact that skeletons found at a depth of from one to two feet in the hard-pan, below the leaf-mould, had been disturbed when the pits were dug. In one instance, in my own exploration of a pit, the upper part of a human skull was found just outside the wall of the pit, the rest of the skeleton, probably, had been removed when the pit was dug. In a few other instances Dr. Metz has noticed that a skeleton had been disturbed and the bones placed in unnatural positions on the sides of a pit, as if when making the excavation the workers had come upon a skeleton, and had carefully taken up such of the bones as were in the way and placed them with the undisturbed bones on one side or the other. But this complication of facts in regard to the comparative age of the pits and the burials is only one of the many problems to be solved in relation to this interesting locality.

The contents of the pits themselves are of peculiar interest, and the purpose for which they were made is still, I think, a mystery, although, of course, several theories, more or less plausible, have been advanced.

The average pit may be said to be filled with ashes in more or less defined layers. Some of these layers, particularly near the top, seem to be mixed with the surrounding gravel to a greater or less extent, but generally after removing the contents of the upper third of the pit a mass of fine gray ashes is found, which is from several inches to over two feet in thickness. Sometimes this mass of ashes contains thin strata of charcoal, sand, or gravel. Below the mass of ashes burnt stones have been found in some of the pits, and also occasionally in the ashes. Throughout the whole mass of ashes and sand, from the top of the pit to the bottom, are bones of fishes, reptiles, birds, and mammals. Those of the larger species of mammals, such as the elk, deer, and bear, are generally broken, and all are, apparently, the bones of animals that have been used as food. In some pits, as in one which I opened, about half a bushel of such bones have been taken out. With the bones are the shells of several species of Unionidæ, of which from fifty to a hundred or more have been taken from a single pit. Many of the valves, but always of the species having massive shells, have a large circular piece cut out near the centre.* There are also found in these pits, many, and often large, pieces of pottery, but up to this time the only whole vessel obtained from a pit was the one found in the last of the six that were emptied during my visit.

A large number of implements made of bones and of deer and elk antlers have been found. Those made of elk antlers are in most cases adapted for digging, or for agricultural purposes, and are often so large and so well made as to prove that they were effective implements. One form of implement which, so far as I know, has not been found in any other place, is made from a leg bone of a deer or an elk. These singular longitudinally grooved bones have sharp edges, bevelled on the inside, and were evidently used as scrapers of some kind until the bone was gradually worn through in the centre, as shown by a large number of halves as well as by several perfect specimens showing various stages of use. One, which had been used but little if at all, was taken from one of the pits opened under my direction. The most common bone implements are the "awls," or pointed bones of many sizes, of forms similar to those found in other places. Among other objects made of bone are beads, and small whistles or "bird-calls" made from the hollow bones of birds, and also flat and cylindrical pieces with "tally" notches and marks cut upon them. Short cylindrical pieces of bone carefully finished at the ends * are often found. Two or three harpoon-points and a few bone fish-hooks have also been found.

Arrow-points, drills, scrapers, and other chipped implements of stone are common, and a few polished celts, and hammer stones have been found in the pits.

A number of ornaments of copper, particularly beads, have been taken from the pits, as have also several pipes cut out of stone and of various shapes.

This list of objects, which is far from being complete, is sufficient to show that anything used by the people who made these pits may be expected to turn up during future explorations; and, if the same care is taken in the continuation of the work as has thus far been given, very much of importance relating to the life of the people will probably be discovered.

It yet remains to call attention to the discovery of a large amount of carbonized corn at the bottom of two of the pits. In both instances the corn had been covered with bark, twigs, and matting, which were also burnt. In one of the pits were several bushels of corn, some of which was on the cob and below the rest. Above this corn the pit was filled in with the usual mass of ashes containing animal bones, shells, and other things.

At the bottom of one of the pits, and under the usual mass of ashes, animal remains, and pot-sherds, in a layer of ashes about a foot in thickness, there was found a perfect human skeleton. This is the only pit, of over four hundred that have been opened, in which human bones have been found, and this has been taken as evidence, as far as it goes, that these pits were the places of temporary deposit for the dead, which were afterwards removed for final burial in mounds or other places. It seems to me, however, that the fact that the skeleton was under the same materials, ashes, animal remains, etc., as found in the other pits, which are always in more or less perfect and undisturbed strata, is decidedly opposed to the theory that the pits were temporary graves. It rather indicates that in this single instance, for some special motive, the pit was utilized as a grave. The same reasons would hold good for not regarding the pits as caches for corn and other objects to be temporarily preserved.

This brief sketch of this interesting cemetery would not be complete without reference to two or three areas, about fifty feet in diameter, in which neither ash-pits nor skeletons have been found. It should also be noted that a large kitchen-midden, several feet in thickness and of considerable extent, exists at the head of a small ravine. An extended exploration of this great refuse pile by Dr. Metz, showed that it contained the same character of materials as found in the pits, and it evidently belongs to the same period.

I will only add that a large amount of interesting material was secured during my visit to this ancient cemetery, for which the Museum is indebted to the liberality of the Madisonville Society, which not only kindly permitted me to explore the place, but also gave me many objects that had been obtained previously. To Dr. Metz and to Messrs. Conkling, Cox, and Low, I am under special obligations for kind assistance during my visit as well as for many valuable specimens.

— Explorations in the Vicinity of the Tortugas. By ALEXANDER AGASSIZ, Curator of the Museum of

* Many similar pieces have been found in the grave-mounds in Arkansas.

Comparative Zoölogy. — During the months of March and April Mr. Agassiz made, under the auspices of the coast survey, an examination of the Dry Tortugas. The principal object of the expedition was the study of the pelagic fauna of the Gulf Stream. Owing to unfavorable winds, but little surface work could be done. Enough, however, was accomplished to show conclusively that by far the greater part of the pelagic animals known from the Atlantic coast of the United States south of Cape Cod are inhabitants of the surface of the Gulf Stream, and are driven on the northern shores by the prevailing south-westerly winds during the summer and autumn months. The surface fauna is very similar to that found at Newport later in the season, though of course far richer. The surface fauna of the Gulf Stream can undoubtedly be best studied at the Tortugas, though important additions to our knowledge of it have been made at Charleston, Beaufort, N. C., along the coast of New Jersey and Rhode Island. Mr. Fewkes, who accompanied Mr. Agassiz as his assistant, devoted his time to the study of the Discophores and Siphonophores. He will prepare for the Museum Bulletin a report of the Medusæ examined. Specially interesting are species of Glossocodon and of Lineræ, a very pretty small Discophore, which is found in large numbers all along the Florida reef, and has also been collected by the "Blake" off the Windward Islands and in the Caribbean Sea. Among the Ctenophoræ the discovery of a species of Eucharis is interesting from a geographical point of view, also a very remarkable Ctenophore intermediate in its structure between the Saccatæ and Lobatæ. The Siphonophores were found to be very numerous, and all but two of the genera thus far described from the Mediterranean were found either at Key West or the Tortugas.

Among the Pteropods and Heteropods the same species already observed at Newport were found to be quite common at the Tortugas. The same is also the case with the majority of the Crustacea. Mr. Agassiz will prepare a report of this expedition to the superintendent of the coast survey. He will also publish in the Museum Memoirs as soon as the necessary plates can be drawn a paper on the Velellidæ and Porpitidæ of Florida. The two species found in Florida, although they find their way, in common with Physalia, as far north as the southern shores of Massachusetts, are as yet very imperfectly known. Excellent series of both species in different stages of growth were examined. Mr. Agassiz will also prepare a map of the Tortugas giving the bathymetrical distribution of the common species of reef-building corals. With the aid of the steam launch placed at his disposal by Mr. Patterson, the superintendent of the coast survey, it was possible to examine every part of the reef, and ascertain the share the different species have taken in building up the Tortugas, the most recent of the Florida reefs.

— On an occurrence of Gold in Maine. By Dr. M. E. WADSWORTH, assistant in Lithology, Museum of Comparative Zoölogy. — This was found on Seward's Island, in the town of Sullivan, Hancock County. A dike of diabase about forty feet in thickness lies in a fine-grained mica schist. This dike is cut across by numerous veins of quartz, which rarely extend beyond the dike into the schist. These veins are segregated veins, and in places form a confused reticulated mass holding partially decomposed diabase in the meshes. The veins vary in width from a mere seam to even a foot in breadth. Some tremolite, calcite, and chlorite occur in the quartz, which also carries gold and tetradymite (a telluride of bismuth). The gold occurs principally in small visible grains in the veins and adjacent decomposed diabase. It especially is found in the veins in connection with the tetradymite, bits of decomposed diabase, and in the cavernous portions, but was not seen in the compact quartz of the vein itself. The tetradymite is in irregular grains and masses, showing a brilliant metallic lustre and a well-marked basal cleavage. This locality is worked for the gold, and was visited by the writer in December last.

— A microscopic study of the Iron Ore of Iron Mine Hill, Cumberland, Rhode Island. By Dr. M. E. WADSWORTH, assistant in Lithology, Museum of Comparative Zoölogy. — This ore has long been known and used in connection with other ores in the manufacture of iron. It was worked as early as 1703, and the cannon used in the celebrated Louisburg expedition of 1745 were cast, in part at least, from the iron thus obtained. It was extensively employed in the manufacture of charcoal iron in Massachusetts as late as 1834, and in 1869 was largely shipped to Pennsylvania to mix with other ores.

It does not appear that its true nature has ever been suspected, although numerous chemical analyses have been made of it; and it has been studied by Dr. Charles T. Jackson, Prof. Robert H. Thurston, and others.

A microscopic examination made by the writer showed that it was composed of magnetic iron and olivine. The magnetite forms irregular, more or less connected masses, making a sort of sponge-like structure. The rounded and irregular cavities and the interspaces between the magnetite masses are filled with the fissured olivine grains. It is found that, while the structure remains the same, the olivine has been altered to serpentine throughout a large portion of the rock. This iron ore is thus seen not to be an ore in the common acceptance of that term, but a rock which contains sufficient magnetite to allow of its being worked. It is a peridotite, and is closely related to the celebrated Taberg (Sweden) magnetic iron ore, worked for over three hundred years. This was studied microscopically by A. Sjören in 1876, and called by him "magnetite olivinite."

Triclinic feldspar crystals, giving a porphyritic structure to the rock, are locally found on one side of the hill formed by this peridotite. The structure and mineral composition of the rock indicate an eruptive origin for it, since such has been the case with all similar terrestrial rocks whose history has been carefully worked out. Such rocks as this and others of the peridotites are the nearest allies to the meteoric stones that are known, and, as has long been suggested, give us the best clue that we have to the interior structure of the earth.

This may be pointed out as one of the cases in which microscopical lithology bears upon the practical side of life, since the iron-master who desires to use this rock can now for the first time understandingly grapple with the metallurgical problems it presents; whether he desires to use the rock as a whole, or only the concentrated magnetite.

— The Mouth-parts of the Larva of Dytiscus. By EDWARD BURGESS, Instructor in Entomology. — The larva of Dytiscus, popularly known as the "water-tiger," is not mouthless, as heretofore described, but, on the contrary, has a mouth of unusual width. The lips are closely locked together by a dove-tail fastening, thus concealing the mouth-opening. Although it seems as if the insect could open or unlock its mouth, still the juices of its prey are sucked through the mandibular canal, as noted by earlier authors, although not in the manner supposed by them.

The canal in question runs from tip to near the base of the mandible, as noted by Westwood, but does not enter the head. When the mandibles are brought together, however, the basal opening is brought within the corners of the mouth, and the sucking pharynx (with which this insect is also provided) then enables the insect to suck the juices of its prey through the mandibles into the mouth. Meinert has recently stated that the mouth-opening exists, but failed to see its dove-tail closure, or the modus operandi of suction.

— White-ants in the American tertiaries. By SAMUEL H. SCUDDER. — In the extensive collections of fossils made at Florissant, Col., six species of termites have been found, represented by twenty-six specimens, all but one of which are winged. This one is a worker, and, with a single exception from amber, is the only known instance of the occurrence of either worker or soldier white ant in a fossil state. The six species belong to three different genera; four species (of two genera) pertaining to the section with branched and two to that with unbranched scapular vein. This is the same proportion as holds with the sixteen species found in the European tertiaries, where eleven belong to the first, five to the second section. Of the modern types, on the contrary, only thirty-five per cent belong to the first, sixty-five per cent to the second section. All the carboniferous, and perhaps also all the mesozoic, Termitina belong to the first section.

Three of the species belong to a distinct genus, apparently peculiar to America, but possibly including some from the European tertiaries; another is referred doubtfully to Hodotermes, which has furnished fossil species from several localities in Europe, as well as among living forms; while the other two probably belong to Eutermes, and are allied to species from Radoboj, placed, with many modern types, in this group. Calotermes, which has furnished species from amber and the Rhenish basin; Termopsis, which has more fossil (amber) species than recent; and Termes proper, which is represented at Oeningen and Radoboj, as well as in amber and on the Rhine, — all seem to be wanting at Florissant. The composition of the tertiary white-ant fauna of Florissant, therefore, differs considerably from that of any locality in Europe, but it most nearly resembles that of Radoboj in Croatia, where a like number of species has been found. No white ants are yet known from any other tertiary deposits in America.

White ants are essentially a tropical family, only one or two out of over eighty known species occurring north of latitude 40°. In North America only three have been recorded north of the borders of the Gulf of Mexico, excepting on the Pacific coast, where one or two more extend as far as San Francisco. Two species, both belonging to the second section, are found in the valleys below Florissant in 39° north latitude. Florissant itself is situated 2,500 metres above the sea, and the presence of so considerable a number and variety of white ants embedded in its shales is indicative of a much warmer climate at the time of their entombment than the locality now enjoys.

MISCELLANEOUS NOTES.

— Library accessions are now classed under separate heads, for greater convenience to those following special studies. As the headings are brief, some of the subjects which fall under each (other than those which are perfectly apparent) are here indicated.

Works of a (1) General and miscellaneous nature come first, including general bibliography. This heading is followed by (2) Theology and philosophy, under which are placed both general and physiological psychology, logic, ecclesiastical and biblical subjects, ethics and ethnic religions. (3) Science embraces medicine, veterinary science, pseudo-science, and magic. (4) Useful arts includes all forms of industrial science, manufactures and handicrafts, the combative arts, agriculture, landscape-gardening, building (but not architecture), navigation, and aeronautics. (5) Fine arts embraces music and the archæology of art. (6) Antiquities (including folk-lore) takes other departments of archæology; popular ballads and tales as well as most mediæval romances find their place here, while ballads not of popular origin appear under the final head; here too are placed anthropology and ethnology. The scope of (7) History and geography (including politics and general biography) is sufficiently indicated by its title, but it should be explained that biographies of artists should be looked for under Fine arts, of astronomers under Science, etc.; genealogies and heraldry fall here, as well as legislation and constitutional and international law. Under (8) Law and sociology appear statistics, commerce, finance, political economy, jurisprudence, reforms, charities, education, public morality and hygiene, and public works, together with manners and customs, sports and games. (9) Philology embraces all departments, not only of language, but also of classical and oriental studies, excepting such as more properly fall under the second and sixth heads. Finally, (10) Literature includes elocution, rhetoric, and mediæval romances of a literary character.

— William Tytler obtained in 1783 fifteen ballads from Mrs. Brown of Falkland, the most distinguished of all Scottish reciters, and Alex. Fraser-Tytler nine in 1800 from the same source. The manuscripts of these ballads have been lost sight of for many years. The later and smaller manuscript has very recently been found to be in the possession of the Fraser-Tytler family, and a copy has most politely been offered to Professor CHILD.

— Referring to the notice of Leusden's Hebrew-Latin Psalter (see Bulletin, No. 19, p. 215), the editor has had his attention drawn by Mr. WILLIAM G. MEDLICOTT, of Longmeadow, to a Hebrew-English edition of even date (1688) which is interesting as being dedicated to John Eliot, the Apostle to the Indians, and of which a copy stands No. 828 in the Medlicott Catalogue. Dr. HALL refers to the same as being described in Baumgarten's Nachrichten von Merkwürdigen Büchern, I, v. 389. It agrees in collation with the Hebrew-Latin edition, except that the English text of the authorized version is substituted for the Latin. It would seem that this Hebrew-English psalter preceded by a little the Hebrew-Latin, for in the preface (in English) he places Harvard College in Boston, but corrects it in the Hebrew-Latin.

— Since the last notice in this Bulletin (No. 18), the Harvard University weekly calendar has chronicled, besides the regular announcements, the performances of Oedi- pus Tyrannus in Sanders Theatre; exhibitions by the Fine Arts Department on successive Saturdays in April, May, and June; readings by Professor A. Jacquinot (Molière, Précieuses ridicules), and by Mr. George Riddle (Campbell's translation of Oedipus Tyrannus); special lectures by Mr. Frank D. Millet on Greek costume, Col. Carroll D. Wright on the Factory system, and Dr. Herbert B. Adams on the Towns of New England, their Germanic origin, and their mission to the South; a series of illustrated lectures on England by Professor J. P. Cooke; a series of museum lectures on Archæology, given in the galleries of the Peabody Museum, by Mr. F. W. Putnam; Dr. S. A. Greene's centennial discourse before the Massachusetts medical society; papers read at various times by members of the University before the Boston natural history society; and Dr. William James' experimental tests with the rotary swing.

"The author was esteemed a madman, and it has been alleged that he spent £50,000 in publishing his works. They were printed on paper made exclusively for the purpose, each leaf being of a different color: and whenever any particular tint did not please him he at once cancelled the sheet on which it occurred. He changed the plan of the work and the arrangement of the chapters while in course of printing. As a result the above work cost the author 2276 pounds sterling." — See Allibone's Crit. dict., iii. 2799; Delepiere's Histoire littéraire des sours, pp. 77–80.

Studied descriptions of forty-five species, most of them new; they are mostly Diptera, especially Protomyiæ and Bibionæ, and Coleoptera, especially Rhynchophora. The characteristics of the groups to which the insects belong are given in detail, and references made to other fossil insects of the same groups. The whole is preceded by a chapter of 48 pages, containing a good history of our knowledge of fossil insects, and is followed by one of 17 pages of general results reached by a study of the Auvergne fossil insects, which are found to show a mingling of indigenous and of exotic forms, a Mediterranean and American aspect, and a warmer climate than now.

NOTES ON THE HISTORICAL HYDROGRAPHY OF THE HANDKERCHIEF SHOAL IN THE BAHAMAS.

BY WM. H. TILLINGHAST.

* * * SOUTHEAST of Turks Islands, the easternmost group of the Bahamas, lie the three shoals known as Mouchoir Carré or Square Handkerchief, Silver Bank, and Navidad. Some maps place islands in the first two banks, although they now consist only of sand and wasting coral reefs. It was thought that an examination of old maps might reveal a change in the condition of the shoals since the time of the discovery of the Bahamas, which might be of importance in the disputed question of the Landfall of Columbus. With this object the maps and charts in Harvard College Library have been looked over. While the results are not such as were anticipated, since they throw more light on the condition of the cartography of the West Indies than on any physical changes among the Islands, it is hoped they are, nevertheless, of some value. The arrangement is chronological; the dates at the beginning of each title are those of the first publication of the maps. The testimony of each map is indicated by an S preceding the date when the shoals are put down as not containing islands, and, when islands are given, by a numeral in the same place expressing the number of these islands. Those in the College Library are marked (H. C.).

S (?) 1500. Iuan de la Cosa. Mapped-Monde. N. of Espanola, is Caiocmon, the most easterly of the Bahamas; S. E. of this run two dotted lines, a bar or shoal, not named.

Original in Royal Library, Madrid. Reproduced, full size, in Jomard's Monuments de la Géographie. Stevens in his Notes (H.C.) copies Jomard. Humboldt's copy in the Examen Critique, vol. v. (H.C.) and in app. to Ghillany's Behaim is not accurate.

? 1501-4. Portuguese map, giving coasts of Europe and America. Date and author unknown. N. of Spagnola to the extreme east, are two nameless islands followed by three rocks and the words baxida ? lohio.

S (?) 1511. Peter Martyr d'Anghiera. Map of the West Indies. The Bahamas are given, but not named. At the east end a large shoal surrounds the last five or six islands, and stretches beyond them to the east, the point curving northward.

Contained in P. Martyris Angli Mediolanensis Opera, etc. Hispani, 1511. Reproduced in the Carter Brown Catalogue and in Stevens's Notes, pl. iv., 5.

1. 1514 (?). Portuguese Portolano. Undated, author unknown. The most easterly of the Bahamas is a small island in the shape of a Greek cross, intitled babueca, S. E. from which runs a long shoal containing rocks. It is named abrejo. Against this name is the inscription: Terram antipodum R. gis castelle | Inbenta p^r xpo forum columbⁱ | ge- | nuensem.

Original in Munich. Reproduced in Kuntzmann's Atlas, pl. iv.; in Stevens's Notes pl. v. (H.C.); and on a reduced scale and incorrectly in Kohl's Discovery of the East Coast of North America, p. 179. (H.C.) It should be borne in mind, however, that Kohl's reproductions of maps in this work were purposely incomplete, his intention being to give only what pertained to the subject he was illustrating, and that he avoided facsimile representations.

* * * An island of the name of Babueca is given on a terrestrial globe of the first half of the sixteenth century now in Frankfurt-on-the-Main, but the island is located N. E. of and near Cuba in 30° N. There are rocks indicated between the island and Cuba. (See Jomard, Monuments.)

S. 1519? Visconto de Maiollo. Mapped-Monde. Undated. Extreme East, lat. 22° N., a shoal, shaped like a bird's wing, extends from W. to E., and is named Abro logio. No other name is given among the Bahamas.

Original in Munich. Reproduced in Kuntzmann's Atlas, pl. v.

S. 1527. Spanish Mapped-Monde. Author unknown. A diamond-shaped shoal forms the eastern end of the Bahamas. It is named Baxos de Babueca.

Original, or a very early copy, at Weimar. The American portion is reproduced, full size, by J. G. Kohl in Die beiden ältesten General-Karten von Amerika. Weimar. 1860. P. Dr. Kohl identifies Baxos de Babueca with the present Silver Bank. It better corresponds to Mouchoir Carré.

S. 1529. Diego Ribero. Spanish Mapped-Monde. Much like the last. The Bahamas end in Baxos de Babueca, a diamond-shaped shoal.

Original or early copy at Weimar, also a copy at Rome. Reproduced first by Sprengel in his translation of Muñoz Geschichte der neuen Welt. Weimar. 1795. (H.C.), and recently by J. G. Kohl, in Die beiden ältesten General-Karten von Amerika. Weimar. 1860.

S. 1541. Gerard Mercator. Terrestrial Globe. N. of Hispaniola, an island Cacomium, followed by Nuniona, a small island surrounded by a shoal, to the E. of which is a diamond-shaped shoal, Abrejo.

S. 1542-43. French Mapped-Monde. Undated; author unknown. Called "Henry II's map." A diamond-shaped shoal, Abrejo.

Original in the National Library, Paris. Reproduced by Jomard, Monuments, pl. xx. Stevens in his Notes gives only the St. Lawrence, so also Kohl, Discovery of East Coast, p. 358.

This map was first published in Bellerio's edition of Gomara, La Historia General de las Indias. Anvers. 1554. It is found in several other works published by Bellerio, as in Ciepa de Leon, 1556: Darinel de Tirel, 1555: Levinus Apollonius, de Peruviae . . . inventione, etc. Antwerpiae. 1566. (H.C. 2385-28. cab.)

S. 1569. Gerard Mercator and sons. Mappe-Monde. Abriojo is a diamond-shaped shoal.

S. 1584. Abraham Ortelius. Hispaniolae Cubaë aliarumque insularum circumiacentium, delineatio, etc. A detailed map of the West Indies in the Theatrum orbis Terrarum, edition of 1584. (H.C.) On the east end of the Bahamas is Scylla Magna, a diamond-shaped shoal. The Great Bahama reef is Carybdis Magna.

This map is not in the edition of 1570, or in that of 1575 (H.C.). The edition of 1580, which has some new maps, I have not seen.

S. 1594. Arnoldus Florentius à Langren. Delineatio omnium orarum totius Australis partis Americae, etc. In Linschot's Voyages. Drawn after Lusitanian charts. Abri Ojo is a diamond-shaped shoal.

This map is found in the Dutch edition of Linschot, 1594; in the English edition by Wolfe, 1598 (H.C.), though the author's name is here omitted, and in the French edition, Amsterdam, 1638. (H.C.)

S. 1600. Molineaux and Wright. [See Preface to Hakluyt Society's fac simile.] Map of the World. Abrecoas is a shoal of indefinite shape.

This map is found in some copies of Hakluyt's Collection of Voyages, edition of 1598-1600. The Lenox library in New York has a copy of this edition, with the map, in beautiful condition. It is probably the map referred to in the preface to Hakluyt's first edition (1589) (H.C.) as shortly to appear. It is reproduced in facsimile in the publications of the Hakluyt Society. London. 1880. (H.C.)

1. 1600 (?). Iodocus Hondius. Vera totius expeditionis nauticae Descriptio D. Franc. Draci, etc. N. E. of Spaniola and near the tropic of Cancer is a small island surrounded by a reef or shoal.

The map was to illustrate Hondius' ed. of Drake and Cavendish's Voyages. It is reproduced in the Hakluyt Society's ed. of The World Encompassed. 1854. (H.C.) In the introduction, p. xv, the map is said to come from a Dutch work beginning "Corte beschryvingke van die seer heerlicke voyagie der Capiteyn Draeck," which was translated and published (without this map) in 1742, by Mr. Wright. I have not found any other mention of such an edition.

Contained in the Descripcion de las Indias. 1601 (first edition). Barlaeus' Latin edition 1622 (H.C.), has the same map.

This is in the first Dutch edition of de Laet's Nieuwe Wereldt. The Latin edition, Novus Orbis, etc., Lugd. Bat. apud Elzivirios, 1633, has the same map. (H.C. 2 copies.) The map entitled The Ylandes of the West Indien, in the English translation of Mercator and Hondy's Atlas, London, 1635 (H.C.), is like the above.

S. 1635. Guil. Blaeu. Tweede Deel van't Tooneel des Aerdricks ofte Nieuwe Atlas. Amsterdam. 1635. (H.C. 36.43.) 2d part. 1. Map of America. Abrolha, an oval shoal. 2. Insulae Americanae in Oceano septentrionali, etc. Abreojo ó Baxos de Babueca, a large diamond-shaped shoal.

Blaeu's first Atlas was Appendix Theatri Ortelii et Atlantici Mercatoris. 1631. I have not seen a copy. The Novus Atlas came in 1635, and Blaeu and his sons continued to publish it until 1662, when it filled six folio vols. (H.C. Art Room.) The American maps were not altered. The detailed map of the West Indies is slightly altered from de Laet's. In the form Blaeu gave it, it was often printed by other map-makers under their own names. It occurs in the Harvard Library under the following forms: 1. Les Isles Antilles, etc. N. Sanson d'Abbeville, Paris, 1656. 2. Map by Nicolaus Vissher. 3. Map by Peter Vander. 4. Map by Cornelis Dankerts. 5. In the Atlas Nouveau par le Sieur Sanson, pub. about 1700? 6. In De Nieuwe en Onbekende Wereldt, etc. Arnoldus Montanus, Amsterdam. 1671. p. 172-3. (H.C. 131.26.) Same in German by O. [Hert] D. [apper]. Amst. 1673, and in English by John Ogilby. London. 1671. (131.3-5.) 7. In the Historia General de las Indias Occidentales (Herrera) Amberes. 1728, vol. iv, p. 6. 8. Insulae Americanae nempe Cuba Hispaniola Jamaica Plo Rico Lucania, etc. par Reinier & Josua Ottens. In Ottens' Atlas Minor. 1730 (?). Founded on Blaeu, though the drawing is more jagged. 9. The same Atlas contains a direct copy of Blaeu's map. 10. Isles de l'Amerique par Pierre Vander Aa . . . in la Galerie agreable du monde. Leide. 2 vols. about 1765 (?).

1. 1636 (?). Joannes Jansson. America Septentrionalis. Undated. Latest discovery noted is in 1631. Baxos de Babueca is an island with a shoal around it, as in Herrera's map, 1601. Otherwise the map is not like Herrera's but like Blaeu's of 1635.

This is a loose sheet, No. 4355 in the collection of loose maps, H.C. It is from Jansson's Atlas, published 1636, which contains also the map Insulae Americanae, etc., as in Blaeu.

A loose sheet. Another map, Novissima et accuratissima Totius Americae descriptio per N. Vischer has the word Abreojo S. E. of Amiana.

The map occurs in America, being an accurate description of the New World, etc. London. 1670, which is a translation of Montanus', De Nieuwe en Onbekende Wereldt. There was another edition in 1671.

S. 1675. Arent Roggeveen. The First Part of the Burning Fen, Discovering the whole West Indies, The Continent and the Islands, Beginning from Rio Amasones, and ending on the North of Terra Nova, described by Arent Roggeveen. Amsterdam. Peter Goos. 1675. Plate 1. Generale Kaert van West Indien. Abreojo ó Baxos de Babuca is a diamond-shaped shoal. The map is founded on Blaeu's. Plate 20. Pascaerte van 't Eylant Spagnola, etc. On a larger scale than any of an earlier date known to me. Abrolho de Babueca is a large shoal, diamond-shaped with incurving lines.

This work is a translation, with the original chart, of a Dutch work. See Unicochea's Mapoteca Colombiana, § 2, No. 7.

S. 1692? Archipelague du Mexique où sont les isles de Cuba, etc., chez Pierre Mortier. Amsterdam. On a large scale. Abreio ou Baxos de Babueca, a large kidney-shaped shoal. S. E. of it is a long and narrow shoal called N. Riff, and S. of that is a small round shoal with a rock in the centre, not named.

This map is contained in vol. i. of the Atlas Nouveau par le S^r Sanson et H. Jaillot, Paris. No date of publication, but probably about 1692.

S. 1700. Edm. Halley. Nova et accuratissima totius terrarum Orbis Tabula Nautica. S. E. of Turks is an oval shoal, not named.

In Ottens' Atlas Minor, vol. iv.

S. 1703. Ier. Sellers and Ch. Price. A New General Chart of the West Indies. Some distance S. E. of Turks is a long and narrow shoal, widest toward the west, which is named Ambrochos. S. of it, and very near, is a small shoal not named. This must be North Riff, the present Silver Bank, and not Mouchoir Carré.

Found in Navigantium atque Itinerarium Bibliotheca, or a complete Collection of Voyages, etc. John Harris, London, 1705, vol. iii., p. 801.

1. 1703. Del Isle. Carte du Mexique et de la Floride. A loose sheet. Mouchoir Quarrré, a shoal without islands. S. E. from it is a square island, quite large, named Caico de Plata. A loose sheet map by Homann has the same arrangement.

1. 1717. N. de Fer. Le Golfe du Mexique. A loose sheet. Ouvre d'oeil ou Mouchoir Quarrré, a diamond-shaped shoal without islands. E. of it I. Caico de Plata.

There is a similar map in Ottens' Atlas Minor, vol. iv., 1730 (?). It is called Carte de la Nouvelle France.

Another map by Moll, a large chart of the West Indies, without a date, but perhaps published in 1715, has only these two shoals. An inscription near N. Riff runs: "Here Sir Wm. Phips took up a vast quantity of silver from a Spanish Wreck in 1685." The northernmost of the two parts into which Silver Bank was formerly supposed to be divided is, after this time, often named Phips Plate. I have seen a map which placed the scene of Phips' discovery off the coast of Venezuela. It will be remembered that this recovery of treasure secured for the bluff, illiterate, but ambitious seaman, his knighthood, and assisted him to become the first Royal Governor of Massachusetts Bay, under the charter of William and Mary.

S. 1722. Delisle. Carte d'Amérique. Loose sheet. E. of Amana a large shoal. Another copy printed by Covens and Mortier calls the shoal itself Aumane.

S. 1722. C. Delisle. Carte de l'Isle de St. Domingue Dressée en 1722 pour l'usage du Roy sur les mémoires de M. Frezier Ingénieur de S. M. et autres assujettis aux observations Astronomiques. E. of Turques is a large shoal, irregularly diamond-shaped, with incurving sides. The main body of the shoal is named les Abrouilles ou Mouchoir Quarrré. The extreme south point is named Basses de Babueca. S. E. lies a smaller oval shoal, le Varret, and S. of that another, Caye d'Argent ou Bayo de Plata.

A loose sheet in the map portfolio "St. Domingo" (H.C.) Also in "La Galerie agréable du Monde, etc. en LXII Tomes. Leide. Pierre Vander Aa, vol. ii. (no date — after 1763).

1726. Le Grand Dictionnaire Géographique et Critique par M. Bruzen la Martinière. [Geographer to Philip V. of Spain.] 1726-1737. Ten vols. [9. Vol. I. (1726). Article Abriojos. Ce mot qui signifie Ouvrez les yeux est le nom qu'on a donné à divers écueils de la mer... Mr. De l'Isle écrit Abroxio le nom de l'isle ou écueil qui est entre les Lucaies au 22 d. de lat. au 308 d. de long. et à seize lieues de la côte Sept. de l'isle de S. Domingue. Vol. iii. 1730, under Caicos says, — lat. 21, N. of Gulf of Samana, is a little island called Caico de Plata.

4. 1730. Le S^r. d'Anville. Carte d'Isle de Saint Domingue, etc., dressée particulièrement sur la dernière Carte de Mr. Frezier et sur les mémoires de Mr. Bullet. Par le S^r d'Anville Oct. 1730. Mouchoir Quarrré, a shoal of irregular shape, lat. 21, long. 308, contains four islands, the northernmost being the largest, though that is small.

3. 1731, le S^r. d'Anville. Map contained in l'Histoire de l'Isle Espagnole ou de St. Domingue par le P. Pierre François Xavier de Charlevoix. Paris. 1730. The map is dated 1731. It is like the large map by the Ottens (see below), but has three islands in Mouchoir Quarrré.

S. 1733. H. Popple. Map of North America, in 19 large and 5 small sheets. Abrollio Shoal is large, irregularly oval; with axis E. and W. It contains many reefs, or groups of rocks, but no islands. S. E. lies a long and narrow shoal, North Riff (in the shoal are the words Plate Wreck). S. W., and near to it, is South Riff, a round shoal.

At a meeting of the Harvard Chapter of Φ. B. K. held in Cambridge in 1880, a Committee (Rev. EDWARD E. HALE, D.D., Rev. F. H. HEDGE, D.D., Hon. EBENEZER R. HOAR, Rev. ALEXANDER MCKENZIE, D.D., and JUSTIN WINSOR) was appointed to arrange for a convention of all chapters of the Fraternity to be held in Cambridge the day after Commencement in 1881, in commemoration of the Centennial of the Harvard chapter. The committee sent invitations to the different chapters to appoint delegates, five in number, to attend the Convention.

The Convention assembled in Gore Hall, June 30, 1881, at nine o'clock. The Rev. Dr. HALE called the meeting to order, when the Hon. Mellen Chamberlain (Dartmouth) was chosen President, and Mr. JUSTIN WINSOR (Harvard) Secretary.

Prof. F. P. Nash, Baltimore, Md.

Prof. FRANCIS P. NASH (Hobart) offered the following:—

Whereas the Phi Beta Kappa Society has not hitherto exerted upon the intellectual life of America an influence commensurate to its true and legitimate importance, having been precluded therefrom by the lack of any regular method of ascertaining and expressing the views of the Society as a whole:

And whereas it is highly desirable that a voice and utterance should be given to the collective learning, wisdom, and experience of the Society, in order that the Society may obtain that influence and moral power which legitimately belong to it:

And whereas this object cannot otherwise be attained than by entrusting the expression of the opinions of this Society to some sufficient representative body delegated by the several chapters, — therefore,

Resolved, That this Convention do hereby earnestly recommend to all chapters of the Phi Beta Kappa Society to choose delegates to the number of three for each chapter of the Society, to meet together at — on the — day of —, 1881, and from day to day thereafter, who when thus assembled shall constitute the National Council of the Phi Beta Kappa Society, and shall have power to express the opinion and sentiment of this Society upon all such questions as may from time to time be presented to said Council for its consideration.

Resolved, That the chairman of this present Convention appoint ten members thereof, who with the said chairman shall constitute a Standing Committee to draw up a project of a constitution for the said National Council, and to prepare such other material for the deliberations thereof as may suggest itself to said Standing Committee. And five members of said Standing Committee shall constitute a quorum thereof for the transaction of business; Provided, that said Standing Committee may add to its own body from time to time any member or members of the Society not exceeding ten additional members, and shall also have power to fill any vacancies occasioned by death, resignation, or non-acceptance of persons thereto chosen or appointed.

The following amendments were offered by Mr. DE REMER (Union):—

Resolved, That the committee consist of one from each chapter here represented to be named by the delegates here present; and that each committee-man, if unable to attend, may designate a substitute.

Resolved, That the committee meet at the Council room of the University of the City of New York on the 18th day of October, 1881, at ten o'clock, A.M.

Resolved, That the Secretary of this meeting communicate with the Secretary of each chapter not represented, requesting said chapter to elect and send a representative to the committee at its meeting in New York City on the 18th day of October next.

The amendments were adopted, and the resolutions thus amended were passed.

University of Vermont	Charles M. Gay.

Dr. HALE (Harvard) presented a copy of the Charter of the Alpha of Ohio (Western Reserve College), dated 1847, and given by the Alpha of Connecticut (Yale College). He said it had been suggested at the Harvard annual meeting in 1880, that this form should be adopted as a form of charter for all future issues. The question was referred to the Convention to be held in New York in October.

As matter for information Dr. Hale read the following votes which were passed a year ago by the Harvard Alpha. He said that that Alpha would ask no vote upon them here, but would submit them to the consideration of the National Council at New York:—

Voted, That whenever any college shall ask for a charter of Φ . B. K. the application shall be made to the Alpha of the State in which said college shall be situated. In case no such Alpha exists, then application may be made to any Alpha of Φ . B. K., and such charter shall be granted on a vote of not less than two-thirds of the Alphas of the United States.

In case the Alpha first applied to shall refuse to take action, then application may be made to any other Alpha; and the charter shall be issued by the oldest Alpha voting in the affirmative.

Voted, That, in the event of the assent of all the existing Alphas to this proposal, it be adopted as a new article of the constitution of Φ . B. K.

The delegates attended next the annual meeting of the Harvard Chapter in Boylston Hall, and afterwards marched in the procession to Sanders Theatre, where a brief address was delivered by JOSEPH H. CHOATE, Esq., President of the Harvard Chapter, an oration by WENDELL PHILLIPS, Esq., and a poem by CHARLES GODFREY LELAND, Esq. The procession was again formed and proceeded to Massachusetts Hall, where the delegates occupied the seats of guests at the dinner table, and in due time Professor LINCOLN (Brown University) responded for them.

— The comets of the present year have been of somewhat unusual interest, two of them having been visible to the naked eye, while six in all have made their appearance. Much attention has been paid to cometary astronomy during the past summer at the Observatory by Messrs. S. C. Chandler, Jr., and O. C. Wendell. Orbits and ephemerides for four of the comets of the year have been computed within a few days of their discovery in the northern hemisphere, and circulated among astronomers by means of the telegraphic cipher devised by Messrs. Chandler and Ritchie. These results were largely derived from the observations of position made at the Observatory. Professor Pickering has made many photometric observations of the brighter comets of the year.

The spectrum of Comet b (the great comet which appeared towards the end of June) was shown by European observations to contain five bands, three of which are familiar in cometary spectra, while the other two seemed new. It appears probable that these two are identical with two of the three bands found last winter at the Observatory in the peculiar spectrum of a star in Canis Major, L. 13412, the third band being apparently due to hydrogen. An interesting analogy between the spectra of comets and stars is greatly strengthened by this observation, since the three familiar bands of cometary spectra were previously taken to agree with the bands seen in the spectra of a small class of stars, designated by Secchi as stars of the fourth type.

On Sept. 13, 1881, a red star was noticed at the Observatory in R. A. $16^h 31.5m$, Dec. $+72^\circ 32'$. From the similarity of its spectrum to that of several known variable stars, it was presumed to be variable; and the suspicion was confirmed both by its absence from the catalogues, and by subsequent observation, which showed that its brightness was increasing. Information respecting it was sent by telegraph to Dr. Copeland at Strassburg, by means of the telegraphic cipher above mentioned as devised by Messrs. Chandler and Ritchie.

— Mr. A. Agassiz has printed in the Proceedings of the American Academy a biographical sketch of the late Count Pourtales, together with a bibliographical list of his principal publications. Mr. Agassiz has also written a Review of Professor Haeckel's Monograph of the Acalephs in the August number of the American Journal of Science.

— The Museum of Comparative Zoölogy has received a collection of ninety species of fossil plants from Cannelton, Pa. The species have been identified by Mr. Lesquereux, who pronounces the series one of the best made by Mr. Mansfield from that locality.

Among the recent accessions may be mentioned a large Indian elephant, mounted by Ward of Rochester; it is intended as the central piece of the room of the Indian fauna.

The exhibition room of the systematic collection of mollusks is now open to the public, the arrangement and selection of the Cephalopods and of the Lamellibranchiates having been completed by Messrs. Hamlin and Hyatt.

The arrangement of the South American and of the Australian faunal collections is also well advanced, and these collections will soon be accessible to the public.

— Mr. Leo Lesquereux has made a preliminary Report on the Plants of the Dakota Group collected by Mr. Sternberg for the Museum of Comparative Zoölogy (to be published in the Museum Bulletin). He says the collection is valuable in regard to the data it furnishes in confirmation of or contradiction to some of the general conclusions derived from the examination of the materials formerly described from this peculiar cretaceous flora. For example, the disconnection of the flora of the Dakota group from that of the older zones—those of the Jurassic times—does not appear now so positive as formerly, or as it was indicated in the Cretaceous Flora Reports of Hayden's Survey.

On the other side, the disconnection of the cretaceous flora from that of the lower tertiary appears now still more evident, as the new species do not indicate any affinity with the plants of the Laramie group which is positively Eocene by its types.

Mr. Lesquereux is inclined to explain the distribution of the fossil plants of this group over small areas, as showing that the trees apparently grew around small hillocks or dry surfaces of land disseminated in wide lagoons. If derived from distant shores the leaves should be more or less mixed, while a comparison of the different localities shows that the fossil leaves were derived from trees grown in the places where they are now found fossil.

— In the preliminary Report on the Comatulæ, dredged by Mr. Agassiz in the U. S. C. S. S. "Blake," Mr. P. H. Carpenter estimates the number of species now known to inhabit the Caribbean Sea at about fifty-five, nearly three quarters of which were first obtained by the "Blake" in 1878-79. In one respect, indeed,—the number of duplicates,—the collection is superior to that made by the "Challenger," so that Mr. Carpenter has been able to study the range of variation of the comatulæ in a more satisfactory manner than it has hitherto been possible to do. From the examination of the "Blake" and "Challenger" collections Mr. Carpenter concludes that these animals are essentially inhabitants of shallow water: only three out of the fifty-seven stations at which the "Blake" dredged comatulæ exceeded three hundred fathoms; the "Challenger" only dredged comatulæ at twenty stations, where the depth exceeded two hundred fathoms. The "Blake" collections supplement those of the "Challenger" in a very interesting manner, and the collection of the former in the Caribbean Sea can fairly be compared with those of the "Challenger" in the cruise from Cape York through the Banda and Arafura Seas to the Philippines and then southward to the Admiralty Islands. From an extended examination of the comatulæ of the great European museums, Mr. Carpenter confirms and extends the conclusion to which he had previously arrived respecting the separation as distinct generic types of Antedon and Actinometra. The preliminary Report of Mr. Carpenter will be published in one of the forthcoming numbers of the Mu- seum Bulletin. It is accompanied by a plate illustrating the structure of one of the most interesting of the types collected (Atelecrinus balanoides).

A considerable number of the hosts peculiar to the comatulæ (myzostomidae) were found; these have been sent to Professor L. Graff, of Aschaffenburg, for further identification.

— The Mammoth Cave. Mr. Francis Klett, the present superintendent of the more than one hundred and fifty miles of subterranean passageways and chambers, is now making a careful and scientific survey of the cave. Mr. Klett was for several years an assistant with Lieutenant Wheeler on the Government Surveys west of the 100th meridian, and is not only in every way competent to perform the work he has undertaken, but is also ready to promote any scientific investigations in his power, and would, no doubt, be glad to have his attention called to any scientific question of importance which from his position he might aid in solving.

A portion of "Audubon Avenue" will now probably be used for the propagation of mushrooms on an extensive scale; but this will not take away anything from the charms and wonders of the cave, for the avenue is not included in any of the regular routes taken by visitors, and there is nothing of special interest to be seen in that portion of the cave. Occasionally additional passages and chambers are opened to visitors, and during the past year a very interesting pit of great size, discovered in February by Wm. Garvin and J. F. Hill, has been explored by Mr. Klett and the Rev. H. C. Hovey, of Fairhaven, Ct. This will form an additional attraction to those visitors who are not satisfied with one or two days underground. A small avenue on the right of the passage to "Gorin's Dome" has recently been opened to visitors by Mr. Klett, and two beautiful little chambers on the right of the new passage have been named respectively after Mr. H. C. Hovey and Mr. F. W. Putnam, both of whom have become identified with the explorations of the cave and with researches made within its chambers. Mr. Putnam has made several visits to the cave during the past ten years, but his special work in relation to the zoölogy of this and other caves was in 1873, when connected with the Geological Survey of Kentucky, under the directorship of Prof. N. S. Shaler. At that time he spent ten days in a thorough exploration of the waters of the cave, and obtained several species of fishes and crustaceans, some with eyes and others without. Among the more interesting forms obtained were several specimens of a fish with eyes belonging to the same family with the well-known blind fishes, but to a distinct genus called Chologaster by the late Professor Agassiz, who described the genus from specimens found in a rice ditch in South Carolina. The species found in the Mammoth Cave waters Mr. Putnam named C. Agassizii, in memory of his honored teacher.

"Putnam's Cabinet" was so christened by Mr. Klett during the excursion to the cave by a number of members of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, after the adjournment of the Cincinnati meeting in August, 1881. It is a small circular chamber of considerable height, with a narrow opening through the wall. It was probably formed by water in the same manner as the "pits" in various parts of the cave. For a long time, however, a stalactitic formation has been going on, and the walls of the "cabinet" are now covered with a beautiful series of fluted stalactites and curtains, while from the dome above hang many stalactites which are slowly increasing in size. The floor of this little cabinet is covered with fragments of stalactites and small pieces of gypsum and oölitic limestone, which have been worn into circular forms resembling beach pebbles. In a little cavity, a few inches in diameter, worn in the floor by the constant and rapid dropping of water from the ceiling, are a number of little pebbles, many of which have been worn round by constant attrition. When this natural mineralogical cabinet was illuminated by magnesium light the effect was very beautiful and brilliant.

— On the Trachyte of Marblehead Neck. By M. E. WADSWORTH, Ph. D. Assistant in the Museum of Comparative Zoölogy.

Near Boden's Point, on the northwest shore of Marblehead Neck, there is to be seen, exposed between high and low tide, the remains of a trachytic lava flow. This trachyte has flowed over the banded felsite in that vicinity, filling the depressions existing in it at that time, the felsite then as now forming the shore line.

By the alternate action of the sun, rain, and waves, the trachyte has been so destroyed that comparatively little now remains. On the underlying felsite, from one to six inches of felsite débris had been deposited in various places, and over this débris the trachyte flowed, thus burying and preserving it. However, in places the trachyte lies directly upon the felsite without any intervening detritus. The line separating the trachyte from the felsitic débris is well marked, as can be seen in specimens collected by the writer, now in the Lithological Collection at the Museum of Comparative Zoölogy. This well-marked distinction with the evident line of contact is of especial importance, since it has been claimed that the trachyte was formed out of and is continuous with the felsitic débris. The trachyte is a fine-grained, somewhat crystalline rock, holding here and there porphyritically enclosed sanidin crystals. The color of the rock is, in the least altered portions, a pale greenish, brownish, or purplish gray, weathering to varying dirty yellowish gray and cream-colored tints. On a fresh fracture the least-weathered specimens closely resemble some magnesian limestones (dolomites). Microscopically the groundmass is seen to be composed of a dirty yellowish-white base, holding numerous minute sanidin crystals. The cabinet specimens show under a lens these minute feldspar crystals arranged in fluidal lines, these lines undulating with the surface on which the trachyte rests, and bending around the larger porphyritically enclosed crystals. Laminae of black mica (biotite) were observed in the hand specimens, while microscopically some secondary quartz arising from the decomposition of the groundmass was observed.

The writer has taken great pains in his field examination of this trachyte, spending many hours upon it in digging and exposing fresh surfaces in order that its origin and its true relations to the felsite and felsitic débris should be ascertained.

Mr. W. O. Crosby, Instructor in Lithology and Geology in the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, mistook this rock for a "sandstone, or arenaceous slate," which he regarded as Carboniferous, but later as Primordial. He held that the rock was chiefly composed of the felsitic débris, deriving that conclusion from the conglomerate at the base of the trachyte, from which it is entirely distinct. From mistaking the nature and origin of the rock, Mr. Crosby built up quite an extended theory of the formation of Marblehead Harbor, its filling with this "sandstone," and its recent removal, probably by ice (Glacial epoch). Those interested in such matters will find Mr. Crosby's views presented in the following publications: Report on the Geological Map of Massachusetts, 1876, p. 42; American Naturalist, 1877, xi., 584, 585; American Journal of Science, 1880 (3), xix., 122; Contributions to the Geology of Eastern Massachusetts, 1880, pp. 263-265.

It is well known to those interested in the geology of Eastern Massachusetts that the so-called Norian or Naugus Head series was established and held to be the oldest (sic) series of rocks in this district, partly because it was said to send intrusive masses into all the other formations, but was itself cut by none of them. It may then be interesting to note, in passing, that the writer during the past summer found on Marblehead not only granite, but also felsite, cutting the "Naugus Head" series. A well-marked felsite dike can be seen on the beach, just west of Dr. W. F. Whitney's boat-landing, between Fluent's and Dolliber's Points. While the writer does not assent to the views which led to the establishment of the "Naugus Head" series, he points to the above facts in order that they may be explained by those who believe in that series, since these facts are diametrically opposed to their statements and theories.

— The Geology and Paleontology of the Tertiary Lake-basin at Florissant, Colorado, are treated in a paper by Mr. S. H. Scudder, Assistant Librarian, in the last Bulletin of Hayden's Survey. The deposits are found about the much-indented shores of an ancient lake-bed, which is about sixteen kilometers long, and lies at an elevation of 2500 meters above the sea, about midway between Colorado Springs and South Park. This lake-bed is surrounded by granitic hills from one to four hundred meters high.

In tertiary times the lake probably emptied into the Arkansas through a small stream at its southern extremity; but the elevation of the district at its outlet drained it in the opposite direction, and the waters of the eroded basin now find their way into the Platte. The region was then the seat of considerable volcanic activity, for the shales which compose the successive floors of the ancient lake to the depth of fifteen meters or more are shown by the microscopic examination of Dr. Wadsworth to be wholly composed of volcanic ash.

The lower beds, forming the present floor of the basin, have yielded no fossils; but the fine-grained ashen shales, which may be found anywhere upon the sides of the low hills enclosing it, preserve a prodigious number of plants and animals, and particularly of insects. Nearly one hundred species of plants have already been recognized (one represented by at least two thousand specimens); while more than fifteen thousand insects, including upwards of a thousand species, have been taken from these beds, showing how much more prolific they are than the long-known European deposits of Oeningen, Aix, and Radoboj. Hymenoptera, Diptera, Coleoptera, and Hemiptera are especially abundant, and even several well preserved butterflies have been found. The examination of this extensive series has only gone far enough to indicate a subtropical fauna, probably more closely allied to that of Radoboj than to others known, but in certain features very distinct. A brief review of the whole is given.

A few fishes, one or two mollusks, and three birds have been found in the same beds, which probably belong to the oligocene, and are considered by Cope to be of the same age as those of Elko, Nevada. A map of the basin accompanies the paper.

Contains the answers to a circular issued by the compiler in aid of his work, and includes several thousand names with full reference to their place of publication. Among others may be mentioned extensive lists of the genera of diptera furnished by Bigot, mollusca by Dall, fossils by Dalton, crustacea by Faxon, fishes by Jordan, lepidoptera by Kirby, coelenterates and echinoderms by Lütken, and of all orders by Waterhouse; together with more or less complete lists of their own genera by nearly one hundred naturalists, including long series by Cope, Dailas (hemiptera), James Hall, Horn (coleoptera), Hyatt (ammonites), LeConte (coleoptera), Leidy, Marsh (vertebrates), Menge (arachnides), Packard, Poey (fishes), Reuter (hemiptera), Thorell (arachnides), and Verrill. Mr. P. H.

Carpenter also furnishes a synonymic essay on the genera of cimatulæ, and Mr. J. Monell on the genera of aphidæ. The different lists are arranged by authors alphabetically, and form the basis of a catalogue of zoological genera now printing by the Smithsonian Institution.

The title is also given in French and German. "It has a dedication in Latin to three patricians of Frankfurt on the Maine by Daniel Meisner à Commenthaw. This is followed by the Latin epigram, or address to the reader, by Geo. Amylius, whose translations of the original French couplets are also given, as well as the originals themselves.

"The work consists of sixty prints within borders of flowers, &c. in the execution of which two different and anonymous artists have been employed. At the top of each print is the name of the subject, accompanied with a passage from scripture, and at the bottom three couplets of German verses. Most of the subjects are copied from the completest editions of the Lyons cuts, with occasional slight variations. They are not placed in the same order, and all are reversed, except no. 57 and 60. No. 12 is not reversed, but very much altered. No. 50, 51, and 52 are entirely new. Two military groups of boys, newly designed, are added. The following are copies from Aldegrever, no. 1, 2, 3, 4, 6, 11, and 12. At the beginning and end of the book there are moral poems in the German language." — See Douce, pp. 121, 122.

The above set of Cobbett's register was bought recently of the author's surviving children. Vol. i.-iv. contain supplements largely composed of Parliamentary debates. In 1803 Cobbett ceased to print these Debates as a supplement to his Register, and began the publication of them as Cobbett's parliamentary debates; but the first volume of this work corresponds to his last supplement, except that the signature-marks and pagination were changed to suit respectively the two kinds of issue. In 1812 Cobbett sold the Debates to Hansard, and sets of Cobbett's twenty-two volumes, as originally issued, are in the Boston Athenæum and the State library in Boston. When Hansard bought the publication he reissued the whole, as Hansard's Parliamentary debates, using Cobbett's remainders of the first twenty-two volumes, but printing new titles for them, to include his own name, and giving the imprint of 1812. In vol. 23-26 as originally issued by Hansard, he did not insert his name as editor, beginning to do so in vol. 27; but he later reprinted the titles of vol. 23-26, putting in his name. The set of the Debates mentioned under Hansard in the present list is one of those, which have Hansard's reprinted title-pages. — See Edward Smith's William Cobbett, ii. 311, 312.

See this Bulletin (i. 270) for an account of the different editions of Münster's Cosmographia. A collation of the copy (perfect as to the text) of the Latin edition of 1554 in the Boston public library, with the copy of the same date given above, shows that the title-page of the Harvard copy, which is mounted, does not belong to that edition. The absence of any date in the title itself indicates that this title is older than 1554; but it does not agree with the title of the edition of 1550 as given by Harris (Bibl. amer. vetust., 444) or in the catalogue of the Huth library (iii. 1009). As the pagination of lib. v. of the edition of 1554 agrees perfectly with that of 1550 as given by Harris (ad supra), and as there is mention of a Latin edition of 1551 (Bartlett, Cal. Carter Brown libr., 1865, p. 27), and of an earlier one of 1543 (see Poggenдорff's Biog.-liter. handwörterb., ii. 234, where the title of Cosmographia universalis is given, which do not appear as the initial words of the German edition before 1550. See also the Athenae rauricae, p. 24, as quoted by Harris, p. 405), it seems highly probable that the editions of 1550 and 1554, as well as others of that period, were merely title editions. This is rendered also the more likely from the slight discrepancies in the titles of two copies of the edition of 1550 as given by Harris and Huth. For example the word situs is omitted from the Harris copy; effigies of Harris is effigies of Huth; differentis, differentes; & before picturæ, et; gentiū, gentiū; regnum & principum, regum & principum; in nearly all these respects, the Huth resembles the Harvard copy. For comparison, the title of the Boston public library copy is here added: —

This chronicle written to magnify the chief events in the history of the Samaritans begins at the epoch when Joshua was designated by God to be the successor of Moses. The author relates the exploits of this general, borrowing the details from the biblical book of Joshua, but he has not followed scrupulously the narration in the Bible and has introduced some entirely fabulous incidents.

— Attention is drawn to a change temporarily introduced into the subject catalogue in Gore Hall under POLITICS—United States. Heretofore the arrangement has been primarily chronological, and it had the advantage of bringing together all the subjects of public interest at a given time. The new arrangement brings together all the cards relating to any minor topic, subordinating the chronological arrangement, so that one may find how the Tariff, for instance, has been discussed, or Secession, or Indians; and the secondary arrangement by dates under each topic gives the basis for a study of the history of public sentiment or practice on any of these topics. Formerly, to find this the student had to search for the given topic under each

Prof. NASH offered a draft of a Constitution for the proposed National Council of Φ. B. K.

Much discussion followed, and the draft was considered by sections. Various amendments were made, and then after being adopted by sections, the following Constitution was finally adopted as a whole:—

ARTICLE I. — Composition of the National Council.

The National Council of the Phi Beta Kappa Society shall consist of the senators hereinafter spoken of, and of delegates from the several chapters of the Society. Each chapter shall be entitled to send three delegates, who shall be graduates of at least five years' standing and members of the Phi Beta Kappa Society, but not necessarily of the chapter by which they are chosen.

The Senate shall originally consist of twenty senators, chosen by the delegates at the first session of the National Council, from the Society at large. These shall be divided into two classes, whose terms of office shall expire at the adjournment of alternate regular sessions of the National Council. At every subsequent regular session the places of the outgoing class shall be filled by election as follows: On the day preceding the first day of each regular session of the National Council, the Senate shall meet, and shall nominate fifteen candidates in addition to the members of the outgoing class, for the ten vacant seats. Other persons not nominated by the Senate may be presented as candidates at the time of the election. The ten having the highest number of the votes of the Council shall be declared elected. Every person who shall have been chosen a senator of the Phi Beta Kappa Society for two successive terms shall, at the expiration of his second term of service, remain a senator for life; but such life-senators shall be in addition to the twenty senators spoken of above.

ART. III. — Of the Officers of the National Council.

The officers of the National Council shall be a President, a Vice-President, a Secretary and a Treasurer, and such others as may be found necessary from time to time. The President shall be chosen from among the senators.

ART. IV. — Sessions and Functions of the Council.

The National Council shall meet on the first Wednesday of September in every third year at such place as shall have been determined at its last regular session, and shall proceed at once to the election first of its officers, and next of the senators. The Council shall discuss all such matters as shall have been recommended to its consideration by the Senate. It shall also have power to deliberate upon all such matters not so recommended as shall not be objected to, or, in spite of such objection, if so ordered by three-fourths of those present and voting. The Council, or between its sessions, the Senate shall have exclusive power to grant charters and to prescribe the form of constitution for new chapters; but in case of a refusal of a charter by the Senate, an appeal may be made to the Council. The National Council shall also make such provisional rules as may be found necessary for the carrying out of any provision of this Constitution.

ART. V. — Of Members at Large.

The National Council shall have power, by secret ballot and by the vote of not less than three-fourths of those present and voting, to choose Members at Large of the Phi Beta Kappa Society, who, when so chosen, shall without being aggregated to any chapter have all the rights and duties of members of the Phi Beta Kappa Society, as if chosen by a particular chapter, and shall immediately upon their initiation be eligible to any of the offices of the Senate or Council: Provided, that no person shall be balloted for as a Member at Large on the same day that he is proposed, unless it shall be so ordered by a unanimous vote. After the first session of the National Council no person shall be balloted for as a Member at Large except he shall have been proposed by the Senate as hereinafter provided.

ART. VI. — Of the Senate and its Functions.

During the sessions of the National Council the Senate shall have no separate existence, but its members shall take their places with the delegates as members of the National Council, voting with the delegates as well upon all other matters as upon the election of officers, senators, and members at large. When the National Council is not in session the Senate shall constitute an independent body charged with the duty of representing the Phi Beta Kappa Society and speaking in its name, and exercising in addition the functions of a permanent Executive Committee of the National Council. It shall hold its meetings at such times and places as it shall determine, being first called together by that senator who, at the original election of the Senate, shall have been elected by the largest number of votes. It shall between the sessions of the National Council hear and decide all applications for charters of the Phi Beta Kappa Society, subject to the appeal mentioned in Article IV. It shall recommend candidates for election as senators and as members at large. It shall also have power to call an extra session of the National Council. It shall furthermore prepare and recommend to the consideration of the National Council such matters as it may deem proper. It shall transmit its lists of candidates, and of matters recommended for discussion, by the hands of its Secretary, to the presiding officer of the National Council immediately upon its organization being completed. It shall also transmit in the same manner to the National Council a Report of its doings between the sessions of the Council. Nothing herein shall be so construed as to derogate from the right of the National Council to appoint committees to sit between sessions, independent of the Senate, and to report at the next session.

ART. VII. — Of By-Laws and Rules of Order.

The National Council at any of its sessions, and the Senate at any time may make such by-laws and rules of order as may be thought expedient for their respective use, provided the same be not inconsistent with any of the provisions of this Constitution.

ART. VIII. — Of Amendments to this Constitution.

No change shall be made in this Constitution unless the same shall have been first proposed at the session of the National Council next preceding the session at which the proposed change is voted for; and no vote shall be had upon any such proposed change except upon one day's notice and at a stated hour previously ordered by the meeting.

ART. IX. — Adoption of the Constitution.

The following votes were passed:—

Voted, In pursuance of the resolve passed at the Convention held June 30, 1881, that each chapter be invited by the Secretary, and in the name of said Convention, to send three delegates to the first National Council to be held at Saratoga on the first Wednesday in September, 1882, at 10 o'clock, A.M.; and that the Secretary accompany such invitation with a copy of the proposed Constitution; also, that the chapters be requested to empower their delegates to ratify said Constitution with such modifications as the Council may make.

Voted, That the Secretary cause the proposed Constitution to be printed in the "Harvard University Bulletin," with a record of the doings of this committee.

Voted, That the consideration of a uniform form of charter of the chapters, and all other matters, referred to this committee, be referred to the National Council.

Voted, That a committee of five members (whereof the Hon. WALBRIDGE A. FIELD shall be chairman, the chair to appoint the other four) be appointed to prepare a uniform Constitution and form of initiation, as desirable for adoption by all existing chapters, and to be used in the institution of new chapters; and that the said committee present the same to the National Council.

The chairman named for the other members of this committee, — JUSTIN WINSOR, of Harvard University; Prof. JOHN H. APPLETON, of Brown University; Rev. GEORGE Z. GRAY, D.D., of Cambridge, and JOHN A. DEREMER, of Schenectady.

A communication was presented from the Bowdoin chapter as to the granting of a charter to Bates College, and it was referred to the National Council.

First, the compilation of a general catalogue of Φ . B. K. at the common expense.

Second, the foundation of a Φ . B. K. travelling fellowship, open for the competition of all American scholars.

Voted, That there be referred to the committee, of which Judge FIELD is chairman, the subject of a uniform condition of membership.

Voted, That the Chairman and Secretary have power to convene this committee, when they may deem it necessary; and that, with three others, they form a sub-committee to consider any business that may properly come before them.

The chairman named on this committee Prof. WERNER, of New York, Prof. ATHERTON, of New Brunswick, and LEIGHTON WILLIAMS, Esq., of New York.

JUSTIN WINSOR, Secretary.

June 22, 1881.

The Committee appointed by the Corporation to consider and report upon the relation of the Sturgis-Hooper Professor to the Museum of Comparative Zoölogy have had an interview with Professor Whitney and report as follows:—

1. Professor Whitney offers to give to the Sturgis-Hooper Professorship his geological and geographical library and his collections (other than mineralogical) upon the following conditions:—

(a) That the full salary of the Sturgis-Hooper Professorship be paid to him during his life;

(b) That the Faculty of the Museum of Comparative Zoölogy provide the necessary rooms for the use of the said professor and his collections and library;

(c) That Professor Whitney's successors be appointed upon nominations of the Faculty of the Museum of Comparative Zoölogy.

2. The Faculty of the Museum of Comparative Zoölogy will provide the necessary rooms for the use of the Sturgis-Hooper professor and his collections and library so long as his work shall be in harmony with the objects of the Museum.

3. The committee recommend that Professor Whitney's offer be accepted by the Corporation upon the terms above named.

Scientific Notes.

FOSSIL SPIDERS. By Samuel H. Scudder. Up to the present time a little more than two hundred and fifty species of tertiary arachnids have been described. Of these about one hundred and ninety are true spiders, while the remainder are mostly Acarina, Opiliones or Chernetidae. All but a single species are from European beds, and nine tenths of them are preserved to us in the eocene amber. Were this latter means of restoring the ancient tertiary fauna unknown to us, our information at the present day would be based upon twenty-four species, although in addition to these half a dozen more are indicated by simple reference to genera or families. This number is exceeded by those already found in the extensive deposits at Florissant, Colorado.

Whether we examine the American or European species preserved in stratified deposits (i. e. excluding amber), we find an almost total absence of any but true spiders or Araneides; in each (including a tick from the beds at Green River, Wyoming) a single species of Acarina is known, though a number of others, undescribed, are credited to European strata. In Prussian amber, on the other hand, though Araneides are vastly in the majority, the other groups of Arachnida form twenty-seven per cent of the entire number of species.

This greater proportion of true Araneides in tertiary deposits,—a proportion intensified at the present day,—can scarcely be well compared with what we find in the older deposits, from the extreme paucity of remains in the latter. Brodie has found a single species (which he considers a true araneid) in the secondary rocks of England; and the European Jura has furnished merely half a dozen arachnids (nominal species, perhaps reducible to four), of which only a single one is referable to the Araneida,—Hasselides, considered by Weyenbergh one of the Agalenidae. In the paleozoic formations, again, a dozen species are known, all but three of which have been considered scorpions,* Phrynidæ and Chernetidae, or related to them; indeed, one of the other three has not been placed by its describer among the true spiders, but named Arthrolycosa only from its somewhat marked araneid features. The remaining two seem to be the only true precursors of this group known to us from the paleozoic rocks. The proportion therefore of the Araneides to other Arachnida is reversed between paleozoic and cenozoic times.

The Florissant spiders are distributed among the larger groups as follows:† Saltigradae (all Attides), 3; Citigradae, 0; Laterigradae (all true Thomisides), 3; Territelariae, 0; Tubitelariae (Agalenidae, 1; Drassides, 5; Dysderides, 2=), 8; Retitelariae (all Theridides), 4; Orbitelariae (all Epeirides), 14=32. Nearly one half therefore are Epeirides, and after these the Drassides are best represented. A comparison with the European tertiary spiders shows that America is far richer in Orbitelariae, and Europe richer in Retitelariae, Laterigradae, and Tubitelariae, while the Saltigradae are almost equally represented in the two countries.

If, however, we except the species found in amber, and compare only those taken from the rocks in which they have been preserved, we shall reach, perhaps, a more just comparison, although the data will of course be far more meagre. The greater proportion of Orbitelariae in America is now found nearly the same as before, but is not so great as the heightened proportion in Europe of Retitelariae, while the Tubitelariae become the group in which the proportion is similar in each; the Laterigradae is the only group where the proportion remains nearly the same as in the previous comparison, while the Saltigradae are nearly lost sight of in Europe, a single species being known.

Carrying the analysis a little further, we find that exactly the same families are represented in the stratified deposits of Europe and America in every instance excepting the Dysderides, a family which is unrepresented in Europe, and has a single member in America. It also appears that just those families which are represented abundantly in amber are also represented to some extent in the American tertiary fauna and (excepting, as before, the Dysderides) in the European rocks.

A comparison of the percentage of representation of the larger groups in the different horizons of tertiary times in Europe with that of Florissant seems to indicate a greater difference between the latter deposits and those of the upper miocene of Oeningen than between the same and either the lower miocene of Rott or the upper eocene of Aix and the Baltic amber; and although the proportionate numbers of Tubitelariae and Orbitelariae of Florissant, and especially the former, are more nearly like those of Rott, the representation of the groups in general allies Florissant on the whole with the upper eocene, rather than with the lower miocene of Europe.

Of extinct genera, there have certainly been proposed a very large number for the European spiders. Seventy-one genera are now known from tertiary deposits, sixty-six from Europe, and thirteen from America, eight being common to both. Of these genera, thirty-seven are accounted extinct, thirty-five from Europe and two from America, none of these having been found in both countries. As may be supposed, the European genera are largely composed of amber species, no less than fifty-two, including thirty-two ex-

To review rapidly the different forms of spiders found at Florissant, we may first call attention to a new genus, Parattus, to which the three species of Attides are referred; the fossil species of this family hitherto recorded are all confined to amber excepting one, Attoidea cresiformis from Aix; one of the amber genera is, including nearly half the twelve species, Gorgopis, a genus allied to Phidippus, richly represented to-day in North America; and it is interesting to find that Parattus, although a very aberrant form, with four large eyes instead of two, is more nearly related to Gorgopis than to any other genus. All but four of the twenty-one fossil Thomisinae thus far described come from amber, among them one Thomismus; Oeningen also furnishes two species of this genus, and Rott another, with a Xysticus; three species of Thomismus are found at Florissant. The three families of Tubitelariae which are represented in the European and American strata are the ones most abundant at the present day. The fossil Dysderides of Europe (sixteen species) are all from amber, and include eight species of Segestria, into which the single species from Florissant falls. The Drassides are very abundant in the European amber, and our own fauna shows four species of Clubiona and one of Anyphaena, both genera represented in amber, and Clubiona (which has eight amber species) also at Oeningen. Six genera of Agalenides are found in the European tertiaries, and Florissant adds another, Titanoeca (with two species), not found there, but allied to Amaurobius, which has three amber species. There is no family of spiders so abundantly represented in tertiary deposits as the Theridides, more than a fourth of the European species belonging here, with fourteen genera; America is for once poorer here than the stratified deposits of Europe, but possesses a single species of Linyphia, two of Theridium, and some egg cocoons referred for convenience to the comprehensive genus Aranea; Linyphia possesses three species from amber and two from Rott; Theridium is one of the very richest of the amber genera, having sixteen species, while three other species are described from Oeningen and Aix. The proportion of representation is very different in the Epeirides, eight per cent of the European fossil spiders belonging to this family, while the proportion in America is forty-four per cent, Florissant possessing even more species than the amber, including seven or more species of Epeira, one each of Tetragnatha and Nephila, neither of which have before been found fossil, and four of a new genus, Tethneus, remarkable for its stout front legs; five species of Epeira are reported from the European tertiaries, two each from amber and from Rott, and one from Oeningen; not only, then, is Florissant peculiar for its richness in species of this family, but no other group shows so many novelties for the tertiary fauna.

If we inquire what testimony the fossil spiders of Florissant bear to the climate of that district in tertiary times, there is only one answer to be given. The present distribution of their allies certainly points to a considerably warmer climate than now, — a climate which may, perhaps, best be compared to the middle zone of our Southern States. The known living species of the genera to which they belong are in general credited to regions like Georgia in this country and the two shores of the Mediterranean in Europe. The presence of species of Theridium, Linyphia, Tethneus, and Epeira, including two fifths of the species, has no special significance; but Thomismus, Segestria, Clubiona, Amyphaena, and Titanoeca, and especially Parattus, Tetragnatha, and Nephila, certainly present an ensemble, the indications of which cannot be overlooked.

— The final Report on the Echini of the Challenger Expedition by Mr. AGASSIZ has been issued by the British Stationery Department. It forms, in connection with a short memoir by Dr. HOECK, the third volume of the zoological results of the Challenger. Some idea of the interest of the deep-sea forms brought to light by the recent American and English dredging expeditions may be formed by the fact that previous to these expeditions about one hundred and ninety-two species of Echini, distributed among seventy-four genera, were known. The Challenger expedition has added forty-nine species, the Coast Survey expeditions of the Bibb, Hassler, and Blake have added no less than thirty-six, while the other deep-sea expeditions of the Swedes and Germans have added ten. The most interesting of the Sea urchins of the Challenger are the Pourtalesiae (of which twelve species were discovered by the Challenger) and the Echinothuriæ. Both these families are the representatives in our seas of groups formerly quite abundant during the time of the chalk, and which were supposed to have become extinct. The discovery by Count Pourtales, in his first dredgings off the Florida Reefs, of ancient forms closely resembling types and genera characteristic of the chalk, first suggested the probability of the theories which looked upon the Oceanic basins as of very ancient origin, and of their having retained practically unchanged the limits they now occupy from the time of the later Jurassic period. This ancient facies of many of the deep-sea echini has also been traced in other groups of the animal kingdom. Prof. Alph. Milne Edwards, in some of his preliminary reports on the Crustacea of the Blake calls special attention to the resemblance of some of the deep-sea types to the Jurassic and Cretaceous forms.

This report of Mr. Agassiz on the Sea urchins consists of 321 pages and sixty-five plates. Besides the description of the new species there is an introduction reviewing the group of Sea urchins from the new standpoint gained by the recent deep-sea explorations. The descriptive part is followed by chapters on the geographical and bathymetrical distribution of all the known Echini, including all the recently discovered deep-sea forms, which in their turn are carefully compared to their nearest allies in former geological times; and an attempt is made to trace, as far as the materials will allow, the succession of the Sea urchins from the time of the Jura to the present day.

In making a comparison of the bathymetrical belts, Mr. Agassiz has found it convenient to recognize three such belts which are mainly dependent for their characteristics on their temperature, pressure, representing great depth, apparently being a very unimportant element in the distribution of the species.

The first belt, the littoral, extending from low-water mark to a depth of about 100-150 fms. represents what is usually known as the continental line (the 100-fm. line). It is the plateau which is found to represent the extension of the coast line to a depth at which the influence of the direct action of the sun's heat is limited. The next, or "continental belt," extends from this continental line to a depth of 450-500 fms., and represents the steep slope which has been subject to greater or less disturbance during the formation of the shore deposits and of the continental plateaus while they were assuming little by little their present outlines; it represents also the bathymetrical belt, in which the diminution of temperature is very rapid, while the third belt, the abyssal region, extends from the continental limit to the greatest depths which have thus far been obtained. This region embraces the great Oceanic floors where life is somewhat less abundant than along the continental belt, where the detritus carried to its slope supplies abundant food to the animals living within its limits. It is also a region in which the temperature is very low, where it varies but little from the freezing point, and where the conditions under which the animals now living there have probably remained undisturbed for a considerable period of time, geologically speaking. It is in this abyssal region that we find the greatest number of forms having an ancient facies. In the continental belt they are less numerous, and their resemblance is more with the types of the later geological periods.

Many of the genera are found to have a very wide bathymetrical range. Several of the species characteristic of the abyssal region extend into the lower limits of the continental belt; in the same way several species of the continental region extend either into the higher limits of the abyssal region, or into the lower limits of the littoral range. While, finally, there are littoral species which extend not only into the continental belt, but even into the abyssal region, showing plainly that pressure alone has but little to do with the bathymetrical range, and that even temperature is not all important in its limitation of the distribution, a few species having so great a range in depth as over 2,400 fms. The greatest depth at which any sea urchin was found is 2,900 fms.

The greater part of the plates were drawn on stone by Mr. Roetter, the artist of the Museum of Comparative Zoology, from sketches by Mr. Agassiz to illustrate the preparations showing characteristic structural features. A few plates were drawn on stone by Mr. Meisel and Mr. Trouvelot, and a couple of plates drawn by the late A. Sonrel are among the most beautiful illustrations of Sea urchins yet produced.

Through the courtesy and generosity of Sir Wyville Thomson the collection of the Challenger Sea urchins was brought by Mr. Agassiz to this country for study in the spring of 1877. The duplicates of the collection were returned to Sir Wyville Thomson in the fall of 1877, the remainder in the spring of 1880. The typical set of these collections is now deposited in the British Museum.

Notes from the Physical Department. — Mr. E. H. HALL proposes to continue his investigations upon the new phenomenon of magnetism discovered by him. Experiments with nickel, the main results of which were published in the Philosophical Magazine for September, 1881, indicate that in this metal the "Rotatory coefficient" [See Maxwell, vol. i., p. 349] increases with increase of temperature. This change appears to be greater than that of the electrical resistance of most metals under similar conditions, but the electrical resistance of nickel does not seem to have been fully studied. It is intended to experiment with gold foil at various temperatures, this metal being selected because it can be obtained in great purity and in a convenient form. Its electrical resistance has also been carefully studied. If it shall appear that the increase of the rotatory coefficient in gold changes at the same rate as the electrical resistance with change of temperature, the result will indicate that the "rotatory effect" is not as some previous experiments have seemed to show, simply a function of the primary current through the metal, but rather a function of the rate of fall of potential along the metal.

1. A study of the electromotive force of alloys, with especial reference to the chemical and contact theories of electricity.
2. Study of electromotive force in general, with special reference to a thermo-dynamical theory of electricity.
3. Continuation of investigations in thermo-electricity.

4. Determination of certain physical constants, supplementary to the work of Matthiessen and others.

5. Tests of new physical instruments, especially certain combinations of induction balances and telephones for quantitative work.

— Among the recent publications of the Museum of Comparative Zoology we may specially call attention to an important memoir by Dr. E. L. MARK on the early stages of the egg of Limax. — Bull. M. C. Z., vol. vi., no. 12, pp. 173–625, plates i.–v. October, 1881. Dr. Mark's own observations cover about fifty pages. The author then reviews in great detail (pp. 232–368) all that has been written bearing on the subject of his memoir, and sums up (pp. 512–590) his theoretical considerations and general conclusions on the earliest stages of the development of the egg.

— The Preliminary Report of the "Blake" Mollusca, dredged in the Caribbean under the supervision of Mr. AGASSIZ during the winters of 1877–1879, has been published in Bull. M. C. Z., vol. ix., no. 2, pp. 33–144. Mr. W. H. DALL has already on a former occasion ("General Conclusions" . . . Bull. M. C. Z., vol. vi., no. 3) given a summary of the most interesting results, obtained from a preliminary examination of this collection. The present report is intended to secure the proper recognition in this field to the work done by the United States Coast Survey expeditions. It will be followed as soon as practicable by a final report fully illustrating the most interesting and novel species collected by the expeditions. Mr. Dall, speaking of the extent of the collections, says: "The difference in richness between the collections of the 'Blake' and those of the 'Challenger' is truly remarkable, at least so far as the mollusks are concerned; the former containing perhaps three times as many species as the whole three years' voyage of the 'Challenger' brought to light."

— Professor J. D. WHITNEY makes note of a map of North America, seen by him last summer, suspended in the grand central railway station of Turin, which had upon it a representation of the geography of the western half of the continent which must have been chiefly drawn from sources dating back somewhere in the last century. Lakes Teguayo and Timpanogos occupy a large space between "Nuova California, scop. da Cabrillo, 1542," and the "Sierra Verde." The "R. Martiri" runs from the "Monti del Sistema Missouri," to the Pacific; and across the most thickly settled part of California, fifteen years ago mapped more accurately than Massachusetts now is, we have, in very conspicuous letters, "Parte incognita." This map may be presumably taken as representing the notions of American geography, popularly presented to the public of the south of Europe at this time.

Professor Whitney also observed another map hung up in the shop-window of a "Geographer to the Queen," in the most frequented part of London, and which was recommended as being "accurate in all its details and posted up to the last minute." This map—a handsomely executed one of the world—has upon it the geography of the western side of North America in nearly as antiquated a condition as the one shown in Italy. The "R. Buenaventura" and the "R. de los Maturas"—a frightful corruption of los Martires—run from somewhere near the proper position of Salt Lake to the Pacific, directly across the Sierra Nevada; while the drainage appears generally to be a mixture of present and past geography, only to be accounted for by supposing that occasionally new discoveries were introduced upon the map, great care being taken not to remove the information previously existing in regard to the same region.

Voted, that the price per week to be charged for board at Memorial Hall, to all persons who board at the Hall during any part of the period covered by each term-bill, shall be ascertained by the Bursar, in the same manner as heretofore; namely:—

To all bills paid for the Harvard Dining Association during the financial year, and all fixed or usual charges to the end of the period to be covered by the term-bill, shall be added the estimated amount of the bills incurred or to be incurred before the end of said period, but not presented for payment. After deducting from the sum thus obtained all receipts and uncollected bills to the credit of the Association, and such part of the amount paid for summer repairs and improvements as can, in the Bursar's opinion, be safely charged to any surplus from previous years which may be standing to the credit of the Association, and making full allowance for the increase or decrease of supplies on hand, and for deductions to be allowed for absences, the remainder shall be divided by the number of weeks' board chargeable as certified by the Auditor of the Association; and the result, with the addition of the Steward's head-money, if any, shall be the price per week: but a slight reduction of price may be made, if the Bursar considers it to be warranted by the condition of the said surplus. The head-money of the Steward for the whole period covered by each term-bill shall be determined by the price of board as made up for the term-bill, before adding said head-money.

The purpose of this vote is to prevent any misunderstanding as to the duties of the Bursar in relation to the price of board, and to express the entire satisfaction of the Corporation with his action in the matter hitherto.

Voted, to grant the request of Assistant Professor HENRY B. HILL for leave of absence for six weeks from April 13, 1882, with the understanding that other competent officers of the University will undertake his work at his expense.

Mr. Shea introduces this book with "A sketch of Father Christian Le Clercq" which includes a bibliographical account of his works. The present book supplements in a measure Sagard's Histoire du Canada, since that had given the earlier labors as this portrays the later works of the Recollects, or at least more minutely than Sagard. The Recollects had been recalled to Canada to thwart the Jesuits, and Leclercq reached Quebec in 1673, and was assigned in 1675 to the vicinity of the Bay of Gaspé, as a missionary field, and it is of his labors in this region that we learn in his Nouvelle relation de la Gaspésie, which was printed in Paris in 1691 [4362.20], and Leclercq refers his readers to the present work for a continuation of the story, but it does not contain it, that portion being suppressed as Mr. Shea thinks. The omission was one of the results, perhaps, of the sharp hostility between the Recollects and Jesuits, who are bitterly satirized by Leclercq in the concluding part of the first volume, and in the second of the Établissement. Shea's collation of the Nouvelle relation does not correspond with the Harvard college copy, which has 28, instead of 26 preliminary leaves. See also Sabin's Dictionary, x. no. 39649; Field's Indian bibliography, no. 903; Harris, Notes sur la Nouvelle France, no. 170; Boucher de la Richarderie, vi. 21; Faribault, p. 82.

The original edition of the book here translated, Premier établissement de la foi dans la Nouvelle France, appeared in Paris, 1691, but with two varieties of this title, one bearing the author's name in full, and the other concealing it by initials. It is very rare with either title, but copies can be found in the Carter-Brown library (see Catalogue, no. 1015), and in the Sparks Collection at Cornell university (see Sparks catalogue, no. 1482). Mr. Shea notes other copies in Baron James Rothschild's library at Paris, and in the Abbé H. Verreau's collection at Montreal. The Lenox library has a copy of what seems the same edition, with the title changed to Histoire des colonies françaises, Paris and Lyon, 1692. Mr. Lenox (Hist. mag., Jan. 1858), following Sparks and others, claimed that the 1691 edition was suppressed; but Harris, Notes, etc., p. 159, disputes this in a long notice of the book, in which he cites Œuvres de Messire Antoine Arnould, Paris, 1780, vol. xxiv., p. 720 to the contrary. Leclercq's book should have a map, "Carte generale de la Nouvelle France," which is given in fac-simile in vol. ii. of this translation. It includes all of North America, except the Arctic regions, but singularly omits Lake Champlain.

The bibliographers are agreed that others than Leclercq were engaged in the Établissement, and that the part concerning Frontenac was clearly not by Leclercq. Charlevoix says Frontenac himself assisted in it; and it is Shea's opinion that extraneous matter was attached to Leclercq's account of the Recollect missions, to convert the book into an attack in large part on the Jesuits.

President Sparks wrote in his copy: "An extremely rare book. . . . It is peculiarly valuable as containing the first original account of the discoveries of La Salle by two [Recollect] missionaries who accompanied him. From this book, also, Hennepin drew the account of his pretended discovery of the Mississippi river." See the bibliographical notice in Shea's Discovery and explorations of the Mississippi valley, p. 78. Sparks in his Life of La Salle first pointed out how Hennepin had plagiarized from the journal of Father Membre, contained in Leclercq. See further in Shea's Mississippi valley, p. 83, et seq., where Membre's journal in Shea's translation from Leclercq was printed for the first time. Harris, Notes, etc., p. 160, points out what we owe to this work for a knowledge of La Salle's explorations. Parkman's La Salle. Field's Indian bibliography, no. 903, with a note touching the authorship. Brunet, Supplément, i. 810, notes copies sold, — Maisonneuve, 250 francs; Sobolewski, 150 thalers; Tross (1873), 410 francs.

The title-page of the above is precisely the same as that of the copy in the Boston Athenaeum, but the chapter on the reign of Paul I. is entirely different. In that copy it occupies pp. 77-122 of vol. vi.; in this it occupies vol. v. pp. 442-466 and vi. pp. 1-120+. After p. 120, follow pp. 113-122 of the other edition. The remainder of the volume is identical in both.

The title of this book deceives. It is based chiefly on Graham's Life of Morgan and Sparks's Life of Benedict Arnold, ignoring Isaac N. Arnold's more recent Life of Arnold.

The battle of Cowpens is but one episode in the life which it commemorates, and which is set in contrast with Arnold's career. The writer claims particularly that the credit Arnold won in the Quebec expedition by way of the Kennebec in 1775, and in the Saratoga campaign in 1777, belongs mainly to Morgan.

The book-plate of this copy shows that it was given to the library in 1764-65, by Moses Gill, whose wife was of the family of Thomas Prince, the father of American bibliography. The volume bears on a fly-leaf these words: "T. Prince, Ipswich, 2 Feb. 19, 1713/14." The Ipswich is the English town of that name, for Prince was in Europe, chiefly in England from 1709 to 1717. On another leaf in his hand is written: —

"N.B. 1. The 1st Part (The 2^d Part) of these annals to y^e end of A. M. 3828 (4076) was Printed in Latin at London, 1650 (1654).

"2. Y^e 2^d Latin edition is in very good Paper & character, neatly contrived, & seems to be done wth great exactness, and as y^e Learned author then was alive, & in England, & by y^e end of his Preface, at London, it is very likely He corrected y^e Press Himself. In y^e Beginning of y^e 2^d Part, He gives a Catalogue of y^e Errata both in y^e 1st & 2^d Part also.

"3. But y^e Learned author Dying at London on March 21, 1655/6, He c^d not correct this English edition: tho, by y^e acc^t of his works in his Life, these annals in English seem to have been composed by Him as well as those in Latin: see also Page 200 of this English edition.

"4. Y^e annals in Latin being Printed in y^e author's Life, I have compared the numbers of years in y^e columns of these in English, wth y^e, & have corrected these English from y^e Latin, From y^e Creation to A. M. 3500, 3828.

"1. Y^e years of y^e world, Begin wth y^e autumnal Equinox. — But

"2. Ye years of y^e Julian Period, & Before Christ both Begin wth y^e 1st of January."

These corrections are noted frequently, and in Prince's hand, throughout the book. The copy of the Latin edition which he used is probably the one now in the Prince library in the Boston public library.

Also edition of 1846, being vol. i. of the Collections of the New Jersey historical society. 11391.10

The reprint of Scot's Model, etc. included in both editions of this book, was made with corrections of obvious typographical errors from the copy of the original edition in this library, which, Mr. Whitehead says, is one of "six copies known," namely: 1. Advocates' library, Edinburgh. 2. Library of university at Göttingen. 3. Now or lately belonging to John A. King of Long Island. 4. Harvard college library. 5. New Jersey historical society. 6. Mr. Whitehead, himself. The copy in this library [11392.63] belonged originally to Professor Ebeling of Hamburg, and passed in 1818 with his library, through the purchase of Israel Thorndike, into its present repository. It is marked as costing Ebeling one shilling and sixpence. Fifty years ago (1832) a London catalogue priced it at two guineas. There are other copies in the Carter-Brown library at Providence, and in the Huth library at London, as their respective catalogues show; and also, according to Bohn's Louvain, in the British museum.

NOTE.

— Professor J. D. WHITNEY has published, in Vol. VII. of the Memoirs of the Museum of Comparative Zoölogy (pp. 121-264), the Second Part of the "Climatic Changes of later Geological Times." It will not be possible, before the publication of the concluding Part, to give a full résumé of Professor Whitney's views on the general subject of the Memoirs. We can, however, present the conclusions of the author regarding the various points he has taken up and discussed in this part of his subject, by an extract from the "Climatic Changes":—

"After a somewhat detailed account of the phenomena of glaciation on the western side of the North American continent, the facts indicating a diminution of the precipitation and a general decrease of water-surface in that region during the later geological ages were stated. The same was then attempted to be done with other regions, notably for Asia and the countries bordering on the Mediterranean. The evidence of desiccation, begun certainly before the Tertiary epoch, and continued into historic times, seems to the writer to be so cogent that assent to its validity cannot be refused.

"That the proved desiccation was not, as is popularly supposed, the work of man, and due to the destruction of the forests, the author next endeavored to demonstrate. It was further attempted to be shown that the various facts pre-

"This led naturally to an examination of the conditions tending to favor or diminish precipitation, in the course of which it was shown that an increase of land-surface on the globe and a diminution of the temperature would be causes acting powerfully to bring about the described phenomena of desiccation. Farther inquiry as to whether geological investigations rendered the existence of the first cause probable seemed to give an affirmative result. The next step was to endeavor to ascertain whether there was proof of a diminution of temperature on the earth's surface. The records of instrumental observations were examined, and the result found to be uncertain, owing to the very short time during which accurate observations have been taken. Other facts, however, seemed to show, almost beyond possibility of doubt, that there had been a marked decrease of the temperature in certain regions during the historic period. The evidence of such diminution during the geological periods was found to be abundant and convincing. The cause of such diminution was referred to the fact that the sun is a cooling body, in accordance with the views of scientists of the highest eminence."

A LIST OF THE MOST USEFUL REFERENCE BOOKS.

Librarian of Harvard University.

The following lists of such books as are found constantly useful in the cataloguing department of Harvard College Library are purposely incomplete as bibliographies of the several classes; the aim being to include none which have fallen into general disuse among cataloguers, and to give only the latest editions, unless earlier ones have useful features which have been discarded by later editors. It is not forgotten that to earlier books, now rarely used, there is often occasion to resort, and references to a few of those most likely to be of service will be made under each head.

CHRONOLOGY.

. This enumeration includes chronological statistics and such books as may be conveniently used in fixing or translating dates, where the information reached will be fragmentary. A fuller, and more special treatment will be found in the books given under History, Biography, and other divisional heads.

The article "Chronology," Encyclopædia Britannica, 9th ed., Vol. V. p. 709, gives a pretty full statement of the different periods, eras, and national systems, with a compact table of events, before and since Christ, down to 1875, which occupies thirty-five of its large pages, in double column. Clear statements of the different systems of biblical chronology, with references, are given under "Chronology" in McClintock and Strong's Cyclopædia, and in Smith's Bible Dictionary, edited by Hackett and Abbot.

1650. Annales Veteris et Novi Testamenti, by Archbishop Ussher, whose dates were accepted by the translators of the English Bible, and have been usually followed in English treatises on sacred history. It also appeared in English. Ussher follows the Hebrew chronology.

Of the United States Geological Survey.

THE following index includes all the maps and plans contained in Petermann's Geographische Mittheilungen and the accompanying Ergänzungsbände, from the beginning of the work in 1855 to the end of the year 1881. It does not, however, include profiles, sections, and graphic representations.

The titles, in every case, have been taken from the maps themselves, but in a few instances, where errors of orthography, punctuation, or capitalization tended to render the meaning obscure, recourse has been had to the amended title contained in the table of contents of the individual volumes. Where no title or only an incomplete one is given on the map or in the table of contents, a full or a supplementary title, enclosed in brackets, has been made to supply the deficiency. Similarly, when no scale is given a scale has been calculated, on the basis of the English statute mile, from measurements taken mainly from Stieler's Hand-Atlas, and is likewise distinguished by enclosure in brackets. In a few instances, where the whole or a large portion of the earth's surface is represented on a very small map, the scale is indicated solely by the intervals between the parallels of latitude.

The measurements for the size of the maps include the outer border lines; the first one given being the one parallel to the title. Where a small map occupies a portion of a larger one the extreme dimensions of the latter are the ones given. When a map is not sufficiently uniform to admit of a satisfactory measurement, the fact is indicated by the word "irregular."

In the arrangement of the headings in the index, the general Inhalts-Verzeichniss has furnished the basis for the classification; such modifications having been made as seemed desirable to secure a more natural arrangement and to afford greater facility in the consultation of the index. The first sub-head under each country, marked "1. General," includes not merely maps of the whole country, but also those embracing several sub-divisions, together with maps of travels through considerable portions of the region indicated.

Provinces and islands when remote from the political divisions to which they belong are classed under the name of the country or State in or near which they are situated. Thus, Java is entered under Indian Archipelago and not under Netherlands, and Cape Colony under South Africa and not under Great Britain. For the sake of conciseness, as well as for greater convenience in the use of the index, it has been found expedient occasionally to unite several States under one head, as in the case of Denmark and Scandinavia, and even to use certain chorographic names in an arbitrary manner. Turkey, for instance, here includes the whole of the Balkan peninsula, exclusive of Dalmatia and Greece, but does not include Turkey in Asia, which is classed under Asia Minor. Central Asia is limited mainly to the Trans-Caspian region and Turkestan. Equatorial Africa is made to comprehend that portion of Africa lying, approximately, between 10° N. Lat. and 10° S. Lat., and consequently contains a repetition of most of the titles of the Upper Nile Region.

The index titles from the regular series of the Mittheilungen include the number of the volume, date, and plate or page. Those from the Ergänzungsbände the number of the volume, the number and date of the Heft, and the number of the plate whenever this is numbered.

LIST OF AMERICAN AUTHORS IN GEOLOGY AND PALÆONTOLOGY.

By J. D. WHITNEY.

This list includes the names of persons born in the United States who have contributed to the progress of geological and palæontological science. There are added a few names of those who, although born in foreign countries, spent the larger portion of their lives and published chiefly here.

Of the authors named, there are those who have worked, either at the same time or at different periods, in various departments. Some have also devoted themselves more or less to literature, history, politics, or even theology. This happened frequently in the earlier days of scientific study in this country. When such has been the case, there will be found at the end of the paragraph, enclosed in parentheses, the names of the different branches cultivated by the persons mentioned. It is intended that these shall be arranged, approximately, at least, in the order of the importance of the works indicated, the most important being put first.

The abbreviations are usually such as will be easily understood. A. C. is a reference to an article in the "American Cyclopaedia," edition of 1873-76; P., to one in Poggenдорff's "Handwörterbuch der exacten Wissenschaften;" D., to one in Drake's "Dictionary of American Biography;" R.S.C., to the Royal Society's "Catalogue of Scientific Papers." To the last-named work, and to Prime's "Catalogue of Official Reports upon Geological Surveys of the United States and Territories," this list of names may be considered as supplementary. With the further aid of these documents, an inquirer may easily trace out most of what has been published in geology and palæontology in this country. As additional information, references to papers published since the appearance of the Royal Society's Catalogue are given in some cases, enclosed in brackets, and also the names of books or pamphlets, not official in character, and therefore not included in Prime's Catalogue. Following the names of deceased authors, under the head of biographical details (Biog.) will be found references to publications containing obituary or biographical notices of them, where such have been published. Where no star precedes a name, and at the same time no place of residence is given, it may be inferred that no positive information has reached the compiler of this list in regard to the person in question. Of several of the older contributors to geology in this country no trace has been obtained beyond the titles of their volumes or communications. Information in regard to such persons will be gladly received, and utilized at some future time.

CARTOGRAPHY.

Of a series of photographic reproductions of early maps, which is now appearing at Venice, under the title of Raccolta di Mappamondi e Carte nautiche del XIII al XVI secolo, there are two which have a particular interest in connection with the earliest explorations in America; namely, —

16. Carta da navigare. Attributed to ALBERTO CANTINO, supposed to be A.D. 1501-03, and to illustrate the third voyage of Columbus. The original is in the Bibl. Estense at Modena. [Not yet published.]
17. AGNESE, BATTISTA. Fac-simile delle Carte nautiche dell' anno 1554, illustrate da Teobaldo Fischer. Venezia. 1881.

This No. 17 has been received. The editor, Fischer, is Professor of Geography at Kiel. The original is in the Bibl. Marciana, at Venice. The sheets which throw light upon the historical geography of America are these: —

XVII. 4. North America northward to the Penobscot and the Gulf of California; and the west coast of South America to 15° south; then blank, till the region of Magellan's Straits is reached.

XVII. 5. North America, east coast from Labrador south; Central America; South America, all of east coast, and west coast, as in XVII. 4.

XVII. 33. The World, — the American continent much as in XVII. 4 and 5.

We note the following other maps of Agnese: —

a. Portolano in the British Museum, bearing date 1536. Index to MSS. in Brit. Mus. 19927.

If this is the one Kohl (Discovery of Maine, p. 293) refers to as No. 5463, MS. Dept. Brit. Museum, it is signed and dated by the author.

b. Portolano, dated 1536, in the Royal library at Dresden, of ten plates, — one being the World, the western half of which, showing America, is given reduced by Kohl, p. 292. It resembles XVII. 33, above, but is not so well advanced, and retains a trace of Verrazano's Sea, which makes New England an isthmus. It wants the California peninsula, a knowledge of whose discovery had hardly yet reached Venice.

c. Portolano, in the Bodleian library, Oxford; thought by Kohl, who gives a sketch (Pl. xv. c), to be the work of Agnese, since it closely resembles, in its delineations of the American continent, that Venetian's notions. This, perhaps, is earlier than the previous map; for it puts a strait leading to the Western sea, where Cartier had just before supposed he had found such in the St. Lawrence.

d. Map in the archives of the Duke of Coburg-Gotha, marked "Baptista Agnese fecit, Venetiis, 1543, die 18 Febr." Kohl (pl. xvii. 3) gives from it a draft of the eastern coast of the United States.

g. Portolano in the British Museum, dated 1564. Index to MSS. 25442.

Kohl says (p. 293) there are other MS. maps of Agnese in London, Paris, Gotha, and Dresden, not here enumerated.

JOMARD, E. F. Les Monuments de la Géographie. Paris, 1866. The death of Jomard in 1862 (see Memoir by M. de la Roquette, in Bulletin de la Soc. Géog. Feb. 1863, or 5th ser.

V. 81, with a portrait; Cortambert's Vie et Œuvres de Jomard, Paris, 1868, pp. 20; and Mass. Hist. Soc. Proc., IV. 232, VI. 334) prevented the completion by him of the text which he intended to accompany the plates. M. D'Avezac's intention to supply it was likewise stayed by his death, in 1875. It proved, however, that Jomard had left behind what he had intended for an introduction to the text; and this was printed in a pamphlet at Paris in 1879, as Introduction à l'Atlas des Monuments de la Géographie, edited by E. Cortambert. It is a succinct account of the progress of cartography before the times of Mercator and Ortelius. The atlas contains four maps, of great interest in connection with American discovery: —

32-53. Behaim's Globe, 1492.

These reproductions are of the size of the original. Good copies are worth £10 10s. There are copies in the Boston Athenæum and Boston Public Library.

SANTAREM, Visconde de. Atlas Composé de Cartes des XIV^e, XV^e, XVI^e et XVII^e siècles. Paris, 1841-1853. This was published at the charge of the Portuguese government, and is the most extensive of modern facsimiles. Copies, which are rarely found complete, owing to its irregular publication over a long period, are worth from $175 to $200. It is not known that there is a copy in Boston or Cambridge. A list of the maps in it is given in Leclerc, Bibl. Americana, 1878, No. 529; and of them the following are of interest to students of American history: —

53. Mappemonde par F. Roselli, Florence, 1532, and the maps of Sebastian Munster, 1544, and Vadianus, 1546.

The atlas should be accompanied by Essai sur l'histoire de la Cosmographie et de la Cartographie pendant le Moyen-Âge, et sur les progrès de la Géographie après les grandes découvertes du XV^e siècle. 3 vols. Paris, 1849-52.

KUNSTMANN, F. Entdeckung Amerikas nach den ältesten Quellen geschichtlich dargestellt. Munich, 1859. This was published under the auspices of the Royal Bavarian Academy of Sciences, and is accompanied by a large atlas, giving facsimiles of the principal Spanish and Portuguese maps of the sixteenth century, including one of the California coast, and that of the east coast of North America, by Thomas Hood, 1592. Copies, which are worth from $18 to $20, are in the Boston Athenæum and Boston Public Library.

LELEWEL, J. Géographie du Moyen Âge étudiée. Bruxelles, 1852. 3 vols., 8°, with a small folio atlas, of thirty-five plates, containing fifty-two maps. The text is useful; but, as a rule, the maps are on too small a scale for easy study. There is a copy in the Boston Public Library.

A few other books, less extensive and more accessible, deserve attention in connection with the study of comparative early American cartography: Henry Stevens's Hist. and Geog. Notes of the Early Discoveries in America, 1453-1530, New Haven, 1869, with five folding plates of photographic facsimiles of sixteen of the most important maps. Dr. J. G. Kohl's Discovery of Maine (Doc. Hist. of Maine, I.), with reduced sketches, not in facsimile, of many early charts of our eastern seaboard. Charles P.

Daly's Early History of Cartography, or what we know of maps and map-making before the time of Mercator,—being his annual address, 1879, before the American Geographical Society. The maps which accompany these last are unfortunately on a very reduced scale. — ED.

Scientific Notes.

Recent Palaeontological Acquisitions of the Museum of Comparative Zoology. — The fossils of the Silurian period have become known to us chiefly through the writings of Barrande and Hall based upon their own large collections.

The collection of Hall is now in the possession of the American museum of natural history. That of Barrande still remains his own property. One other collection, known as the Scharj collection, brought together by Mr. J. M. von Scharj, has also been of great importance for the illustration of Barrande's beautiful work on the Système Silurien de la Bohême. This collection is for the European Silurian what the Hall collection is for the American Silurian. The final solution of many most interesting palaeontological and geological problems depends upon the direct comparison of these collections made on the two sides of the Atlantic. For such a comparison the museum of comparative zoology partially provided some years ago by the purchase of small collections from de Koninck, Barrande, Schultze, and others. It has now secured the Scharj collection. This, taken together with the materials from the American palaeozoic formations already in its possession (the Wachsmuth, Barris, Dyer, Day, Walcott, Taylor and Gebhard collections), gives the palaeontological student such opportunity for investigating the early formations as has never existed before.

The value of this collection for the Museum may in some degree be understood from the statement that it contains probably more than 102,000 specimens of over 1,700 species. One hundred and fifty-seven genera, representing 1,231 species have been carefully determined under the supervision of Barrande himself. The number of these specimens amounts to about 70,000. About 18,000 specimens are generically determined, and only about 10,000 specimens are as yet undetermined. The greatest value of the collection consists in its Trilobites and other Crustacea, — about 300 species represented by 15,000 specimens; the Cephalopods by 500 species and over 18,000 specimens, and the Brachiopods by over 200 species represented by 4,000 specimens.

Professor Hamlin has been sent to Prague by the Museum to superintend the packing and forwarding of the collection.

The Zoölogical museum has also purchased a collection of Jurassic fossils from Solenhofen, brought together by Mr. Haeberlein. It is practically the duplicate of a collection from the same locality, purchased by the British museum many years ago, although it does not contain its greatest treasure, — the Archæopteryx. It is specially rich in crustacea and fish remains. A good collection from the Brown Jura near Pappenheim forms a part of the materials secured by the museum.

Selections from Embryological Monographs. By ALEXANDER AGASSIZ, WALTER FAXON, and E. L. MARK. — It is proposed to issue in the Memoirs of the museum a "Selection from Embryological Monographs," which will give to the student, in an easily accessible form, a more or less complete iconography of the embryology of each important group of the animal kingdom. This selection is not intended to be a handbook, but rather an atlas to accompany any general work on the subject.

The plates will be issued in parts, as fast as practicable, each part covering a somewhat limited field. The parts devoted to Echinoderms, Aculephs and Polyps are well advanced, and a beginning has been made for the Crustacea. Occasional appendices may be published, to prevent the plates from becoming antiquated.

The quarto illustrations will be accompanied by a carefully prepared explanation, and by a bibliography, in octavo, to be made as complete as possible. Although a large part of this bibliographical literature may be found in the general works of Kölliker, Balbiani, and Balfour, and in some of the more recent special monographs, a fuller list on special subjects, comprising the scattered references now accessible only with much cost of time and labor, will be convenient for students.

Bulletin, no. 5, vol. ix. containing the bibliography of the Crustacea by Mr. Faxon forms the first instalment of this bibliography. It will be followed at an early date by similar lists for the Echinoderms, the Aculephs, the Polyps, and the Fishes.

Notes in Geology and Lithology. By M. E. WADSWORTH, Ph.D.

1. The Marblehead Diabase. A microscopical examination of the dark gray rock forming the chief portion of the peninsula of Marblehead, Mass., shows that it contains augite, and therefore is more properly called a diabase than a diorite, by which name it has chiefly been known heretofore. It is especially well marked in the vicinity of the "Old Powder House" (1755), on Green Street, Marblehead. (Boston Society of Natural History, Dec. 21, 1881.)

2. Picotite found in the ground mass and feldspar of basalt. It is well known that the chrome spinel (picotite) is found quite commonly in the olivine of basaltic rocks; but of the many thousands of such rocks, microscopically studied, picotite has never been found, so far as the writer is aware, outside of the olivine. In studying some thin sections of a basalt from Mount Shasta, Cal., it has been his good fortune to find well-marked crystals and grains of picotite, not only enclosed in the olivine, but also in the feldspar, and even in the ground mass itself. (Boston Society of Natural History, Jan. 4, 1882.)

3. Zircon-Syenite. The writer has found that the grayish crystalline feldspathic rock, occurring about Salem harbor, is almost identical in macroscopic and microscopic characters with the celebrated zircon-syenite of Fredericksværn, Norway. It is well developed about Naugus Head and Fluent's Point, on Marblehead Peninsula. The discovery of the nature of this rock is interesting, owing to the finding of elæolite and sodalite at Salem many years ago. It is intended to give a full description of the rock and its mode of occurrence later. It is sufficient to state for the present that the rock consists principally of orthoclase, with hornblende and some microcline and plagioclase, together with macroscopic and microscopic zircon. The feldspar contains inclusions, the same as that from Norway. (Boston Society of Natural History, Feb. 1, 1882.)

4. The Stoneham Limestone. The difference of opinion regarding the Stoneham (Mass.) limestone and its country rock has been such that any facts tending to elucidate the questions pertaining to them are of great interest.

Dr. T. Sterry Hunt remarked that this limestone (dolomite) was a bed in a series of dioritic and chloritic rocks. (Proc. Bost. Soc. Nat. Hist. 1870, XIV. 45.)

Rev. J. B. Perry, in 1871 (Mr. Perry, at that time, was an assistant in this Museum), held that the Stoneham limestone formed a vein penetrating the adjoining syenite. He says: "This limestone also corresponds exactly with the most ragged and broken surfaces, even with all the most diverse inequalities of the adjacent syenitic rocks. In short, it is so situated in relation to them as clearly to reveal its more recent origin." (Proc. Bost. Soc. Nat. Hist. 1871, XIV. 199-204.)

Mr. W. O. Crosby states: "The bed is only a few feet wide, and shows no distinct traces of stratification, but is much broken and contorted. . . . The enclosing rock is likewise entirely devoid of apparent stratification, consisting mainly of diorite and hornblende granite, with limited masses of petrosilex. Yet I am convinced that this dolomite belongs to the stratified group, and is contemporaneous with the associated rocks." (Occasional Papers, Bost. Soc. Nat. Hist. III. 116, 117.)

Similar views might be multiplied, but it is unnecessary. An examination by the present writer has shown him that the country rock of the Stoneham limestone is a distinctly stratified, but greatly indurated, quartzose argillite or argillaceous schist, cut through and through by dikes of "diorite."

This locality affords an excellent illustration of what the writer regards as the fallacy of the theory that sedimentary rocks take upon themselves the characters of eruptive ones. It has been considered that the rocks adjacent to this limestone were either all eruptive or they were all sedimentary, but assuming in part or in whole the characters of eruptive rocks.

In actual fact, when the country rock is carefully studied, it can be seen that, if we choose on one side the more evidently sedimentary rock, and on the other the eruptive form, that there can always be found a distinct line, at which one ends and the other begins. There is no passage from one to the other: each is distinct, but only most careful observation suffices to determine the fact. The writer believes it is the want of sufficient care, or of sufficient training, in regions like this that has led to the quite commonly taught theory above referred to.

Since the rock adjacent to the limestone, excepting the dikes, is sedimentary, if the limestone was of similar origin it ought to form a constituent part of it. On examining their relations, it can be seen that no conformable interbedding exists between them. The limestone forms irregular detached masses, and in small segregated veins extends into the planes and fissures of the adjacent rock. The schist at the line of contact shows great alteration, — alteration, not such as is produced by an eruptive rock, but that which indicates chemical action. This change is the impregnation of the wall-rock with epidotic material, part of which is enclosed in the limestone. Again, detached fragments of the wall-rock are enclosed in the limestone itself, which also pro-trudes in tongue or vein-like masses into the country rock. The phenomena of these irregular limestone masses, the writer holds, are clearly those of segregated, vein-like forms, of later age than either the stratified rock adjacent or the majority, if not all, of the dikes.

The strike of the sedimentary rock is (compass direction) N. 60° W. Some of the dikes run approximately with the lamination, while others cut across other dikes and the schist itself. Two, whose directions were taken, were found to run, one N. 80° W., and the other N. 40° E. The induration of the schist in contact with the dikes was very great.

After my observations had been made, the locality was visited by Professor J. D. Whitney, in my company. He examined the limestone and country rock, and stated that the facts as above given were, in his opinion, correct, and that from the phenomena the limestone displayed it could not be other than a vein-like mass, as stated above.

5. The Braintree Argillite and Quincy Granite. — In a paper read before the Boston Society of Natural History in October last, it was stated that the writer had found the contact between the argillite containing trilobites, in Braintree, and the Quincy granite. This contact was found by digging along the line of their supposed junction. The argillite near and at the contact was greatly indurated and welded to the granite, which was also modified forming a spherulitic, quartz-porphry. The alteration of the argillite, its induration, the complete welding of the two formations, the irregularity of the junction, and the modification of the granite, show that the granite is an eruptive rock of more recent age than the sedimentary Primordial argillite. It has been claimed that both these rocks were one and the same formation, but it can be shown even in a single hand specimen, to the naked eye, that the granite and argillite are distinct rocks with a definite line between them, at which one ends and the other begins.

While this gives the first published information, of which I am aware, of the relations of the Quincy granite to the argillite known to be Primordial, Professor Niles informs me that many years ago he observed the contact at the same localities. He states that it was previous to the quarrying, which has now obscured the contact lines; and that at that time the line of junction was conspicuous, showing distinct and well-marked eruptive characters on the part of the granite. It is a great pity that Professor Niles did not publish his observations; since, had he done so, he might have saved the questions of the relation of the two rocks, and the origin and age of the granite, from being so observed as they have been, for some twelve years, through the speculations of others. The observations of Lea, Crosby, and myself make the dip of the argillite southward instead of northward, as several other observers had regarded it. Professor Niles informs me that long and careful observations on his part had shown that the dip was southerly. This was proved, not only by the position of the fossils but also by the finer and coarser layers of deposition. (Proc. Bost. Soc. Nat. Hist. 1881, XXI. 274-277.) — Continued.

This is the first edition of the whole Bible divided into verses marked by Arabic numerals. In the Old Testament the previously existing division in the Hebrew Bible is followed; but in the Apocrypha and the New Testament the division was made by Pagninus himself. It differs widely, however, from that now in use, his verses being twice or three times as long as ours. (See, below, the note under ESTIENNE.) The volume is very rare.

This rare volume is the first concordance of the whole Bible in which our present division into verses is used for reference. In the New Testament and Apocrypha, this division was made by Robert Estienne, or Stephens, as he is commonly called in English. The first edition of the Greek Testament divided into our present verses was published by him at Geneva in 1551; his edition of the Latin Vulgate in 1555, of which there are copies both in HC. and DS. was the first edition of the whole Bible so divided.

"If the laws which I believe govern the arrangement of the orbits of planets and their satellites are true, they are important laws; and the relation of these laws to the rotary motions of the primary planets, if true, is also of much importance. This relation enables us to determine, approximately at least, the time of an axial rotation and other elements of a planet that has satellites, if the period of one satellite and its mean distance from the primary in radii of the planet can be correctly determined by observation." — Preface.

This is an attempt to prove that the fabled island of Atlantis had a real existence; that here man first rose from barbarism; that the ancient gods and goddesses were really the kings, queens, and heroes of Atlantis; that from here was derived the mythology of Egypt, the Phœnician alphabet, and the bronze and iron implements of Europe, and that the memory of its destruction has survived in the legends of the Deluge.

Mil-lard, and an essay on the origin and design of this collection by S. Muller. Amsterdam. 1878. sm. 4°. 3 maps and wdcts. 4333.1

The library has also 2 copies of the Latin translation, 1613 [*4333.2; *4333.3]. One copy [4333.2] contains the two additional leaves (sig. G). It lacks one map

The original of this little book played adventitiously an active part in advancing the fame of Hudson, though it gives but a small portion of its narratives to his voyages. The sources of our information on that navigator's four voyages to the north are these: —

First voyage in 1607, under the auspices of the Muscovy company, to the north-east. A log-book, in which Hudson may have had a hand, or to which he may have supplied facts; and a few fragments of his own journal. Purchas's Pilgrims, iii.; Asher's Henry Hudson, p. 1 and 145.

Second voyage, 1608, under the auspices of the Muscovy company, to the north-east. A log-book by Hudson himself. Purchas's Pilgrims, iii. 574; N. Y. hist. soc. Collections, i. 81; Asher's Hudson, 23.

A map by Hondius illustrating the first and second voyage, and given by Asher in fac-simile, was originally published in Pon-tanus's History of Amsterdam, Latin ed. 1611 and Dutch ed. 1614.

Third voyage, 1609, under the auspices of the East India company, to the north-east, where foiled by the ice, he turned and sailed to make explorations between the coast of Maine and Delaware Bay. The journal of Juet, his companion. Purchas's Pilgrims, iii.; Asher's Hudson, 45.

Fourth voyage, 1610, to the north-west, discovering Hudson's Straits and Hudson's Bay. Purchas, Pilgrims, iii. got his account from Sir Dudley Digges. He also gives an abstract of Hudson's journal (Asher, p. 93); a discourse by Prickett, one of the crew, whom Purchas discredits, which is largely an apology for the mutiny which set Hudson adrift in an open boat in the bay of his name (Asher, p. 98); a letter from Iceland, May 30, 1610, perhaps by Hudson himself, and an account of Juet's trial (Asher, p. 136). Purchas added some new facts in his Pilgrimage, reprinted in Asher, p. 139.

Gerritsz seized the opportunity, occasioned by the interest in Hudson's voyage and his fate, to promulgate his views of the greater chance of finding a northwest passage to India, rather than a northeast one; and in the little collection of tracts edited by him, produced first in the Dutch edition of 1612, he gives but a very brief narrative of Hudson's voyage, which is printed on the reverse of the map showing his discoveries; the maps, which he gives, both of the world and of the north parts of America, being the chief arguments of his book, — the latter map being also reproduced by Asher. The original Dutch edition is extremely scarce, but four or five copies being known. The present reproduction of it by Kroon through the photolithographic process consists of 200 copies. See Muller's introduction; Sabin's Dictionary, viii. 33480, and Asher's Hudson, 267.

In the enlarged Latin translation, ordinarily quoted as the Detectio freti Hudsoni of 1612, Gerritsz inverted the order of the several tracts, giving more prominence to Hudson, as May's expedition to the north-east had in the mean time returned unsuccessful. Huth catalogue, ii. 744, shows better than Brunel, iii. 358, the difference between this 1612 and the 1613 editions. H. C. Murphy's Henry Hudson in Holland. Carter-Brown catalogue, ii. 77.

In a second Latin edition, 1613, Gerritsz again remodelled his additions, and gave a further account of May's voyage. Huth catalogue, ii. 744; Carter-Brown catalogue, ii. 82; Tiele, Memoire bibliographique, 1867, no. 153; Muller's Essai d'une bibliographie néerlandaise, 1859, p. 71.

To some copies of this second edition, Gerritsz added a short appendix of two leaves, Sig. G, which is reprinted in the present reproduction, and serves to make some bibliographers reckon a third Latin edition. There are in the Lenox library six copies of the original, representing the different varieties of the Dutch and Latin texts.

The original Dutch text has been reprinted in several later collections of voyages, published in Holland. The English translation in Purchas is incomplete and incorrect; and that of Millard, as well as the English generally in the present reprint, could have been much bettered by a competent native proof-reader.

[Cantillon, — ?]. Essai sur la nature du commerce en général. Traduit de l'anglais. A Londres, chez Fletcher Gyles, dans Holborn [Paris]. M.DCC.LV. 120. pp. (4), 430, (6). VI. 1564

A MS. note on the fly-leaf reads "Cantillon, très estimé." This book is usually attributed to Philippe de Cantillon or Philip Cantillon, a merchant of London. There is good reason to believe, as shown in Prof. Jevons's article mentioned below, that, if by Cantillon at all, it is by Richard Cantillon, who was possibly a brother of Philip, and has been confounded with him. Little is known of either. Richard Cantillon died in 1734; but the Essai was first published in 1755 (not 1752, as given by some authorities). The pretence of an English original and a London imprint is doubtless a blind on account of the freedom of criticism on the French government in the book itself. See Nouvelle biographie, viii. 528; Biographie universelle, lx. 121; Grimm, Correspondance littéraire, i. 332 sq.; Fréron, Année littéraire, 1755, v. 357; and Prof. Jevons's article in the Contemporary review, Jan. 1881. xxxix. 61. It came to the library with the following note from Mr. Foxwell, who is a fellow of St. John's college, Cambridge, Eng. and professor of political economy in London university.

"St. John's College, Cambridge. Aug. 8, 1882.

"The accompanying copy of the "Essai sur la nature du commerce en général," first printed in 1755, is one of two I was fortunate enough to discover in Paris in 1881. Those who will refer to a very interesting article of Prof. Jevons in the Contemporary review for Jan. 1881 will find that the book is one of great interest both to bibliographers and economists; and in England at least it is supposed to be of some rarity. No copy was known to exist in Oxford or Cambridge when Mr. Jevons wrote; and the British museum copy is not in such good condition as this one. I had looked in vain for a copy in this country for four years, and attempts to obtain one through Paris booksellers had been equally unsuccessful. It occurred to me therefore that there might not be a copy at Harvard; and as the copy which I have kept for myself is ultimately destined to find its way to the library of old Cambridge university, I thought I should like the sister copy to go to the Cambridge across the water, which is often in our thoughts here, and with which I have been glad to feel myself in more living connection through my friend the Rev^d Dr. Hale, who has kindly consented to be the bearer of this little message.

H. S. FOXWELL.

"Perhaps I ought to say that the book is, in each copy I have seen, attributed by MS. entry, to Cantillon; — which Cantillon, is a puzzle for the bibliographers. The date of the publication is 1755; but the work must have been written much earlier, probably before Hume's Essays; and if so, the writer must take a high place amongst the founders of economic science. For an admirable discussion of these and other points I would again recommend the essay of Prof. Jevons, which is a characteristic example of the ingenuity and thoroughness of that brilliant economist."

On the occurrence of Branchipus (or Chirocephalus) in a fossil state, associated with Eosphacroma and with numerous insect remains in the eocene fresh-water (Bembridge) limestone of Gurnet Bay, Isle of Wight. Quart. journ. geol. soc. Lond., 35 : 342-350, pl. 14. 8°. London. 1879.

The insects are mentioned on p. 344, mostly in a list of insect remains from Gurnet Bay, near Cowes, Isle of Wight, determined by the late Frederick Smith. One hundred and twenty-five specimens are mentioned but only eighteen genera or families specified and one species.

APPENDIX.

In this appendix I have placed not only such references as were overlooked in printing the preceding pages, and those that have been published during the two years of its passage through the press, but also all contributions to the literature of fossil insects of which only incomplete memoranda could be obtained, through allusions to them in the works of others. Diligent search has been made for the early literature of the subject, and especially of amber insects. Perhaps not one half the works or papers concerning amber referred to in bibliographies have been procurable in this country, and of those seen comparatively few contain references to insect-enclosures. The scattered allusions to amber insects taken from older authors and published later than the seventeenth century have in general been left unnoticed, as wholly valueless and uninteresting; but all others, where possible, have been introduced into the list in a more or less perfect form. The best notice of the early literature of amber will be found in Boekmer's Bibl. script. hist. nat. 4, 1 : 468-477. 8°. Lipsiae. 1788. The few papers concerning the relationship of the Merostomata and Arachnida have also been introduced into this appendix, but the extensive literature of the Merostomata generally has not been added, as it should be, were the views of Van Beneden and Lankester to prove correct. I am much indebted to many correspondents, but especially to Dr. H. A. Hagen, for assistance in preparing this bibliography, which will certainly strike even those well acquainted with the subject as unexpectedly extensive. More than four hundred authors are represented as having concerned themselves more or less with fossil insects. — S. H. S.

Not seen. Dr. Hagen informs me that it contains references to insects in amber, and is therefore one of the earliest works mentioning them. He thinks, indeed, that Münster's earlier mention of them may have been due to information received direct from Aurifaber; both were disciples of Luther. Later editions were published in 1557 and 1572 in 4°, and, rendered into Latin verse by Scholzius, in 1593 and 1671 in 8°.

He also criticises various authors and especially Schweigger for confounding copal and other gums with amber.

NOTES IN GEOLOGY AND LITHOLOGY.

By M. E. WADSWORTH, Ph.D.

6. On the relations of the so-called Felsite to the Conglomerate on Central Avenue, Milton, Mass.

The most interesting problem in the geology of Eastern Massachusetts is the question of the age of the rocks.

Their age has been assumed for them by various writers; but, beyond mere theoretical grounds, no foundation exists for the various opinions advanced, outside of the Braintree argillite and its associated Quincy granite.

Evidence of one kind was, however, given two years ago, indicating some probability that the conglomerate of Milton was younger than a felsite existing there and regarded as of Huronian age. It was claimed that the conglomerate was older than the Primordial argillite and underlying it, although both were held to be continuous formations of Primordial age. It was also claimed that no pebbles of argillite could be found in the conglomerate, a statement bearing out the above conclusion. (Am. Jour. Sci. 1880, (3), XIX. 116-122; Ocas. Papers. Bost. Soc. Nat. Hist. 1880, III. 89, 220, 221, 270, 271.)

It was stated that at the locality mentioned above a felsite was exposed on the northwest side of Central Avenue, upon which a conglomerate lay, composed largely of the felsitic debris. The contact between them was said to be straight and well defined, marking a fault between the two formations, dipping N. 75° and striking east and west. Cleavage was said to be developed parallel to the fault line. The bedding was said to dip steeply to the southeast with a N. E.-S. W. strike.

An examination made by the present writer last autumn convinced him that the interpretations put upon the structural features of this locality were wide of the mark. All the rock visible is the conglomerate, the supposed felsite being simply a somewhat altered portion of this conglomerate.

The conglomerate is composed largely of argillaceous detritus of a character to be readily acted upon by thermal waters.

This action appears to have been sufficiently marked on a portion of the rock to obscure its conglomerate characters, and to cause it, on account of its color, to superficially resemble the felsite of Eastern Massachusetts. It can be seen that in this portion of the conglomerate there have been formed segregated irregular masses of vein stone quartz, which also indicates water action as before mentioned. On examining the supposed felsite, many argillaceous pebbles only partly obliterated can be seen, and specimens showing them have been collected and deposited in the Whitney lithological collection at the Museum of Comparative Zoölogy. Microscopic examination of thin sections of the "felsite" also bears out the field evidence that it is an altered conglomerate and not a felsite.

A careful examination of the conglomerate at this locality and at various others along Central Avenue convinced the writer that the general strike of the deposition planes was approximately east and west, and that the supposed fault plane lay nearly in the line of bedding. The fault plane is one of the numerous planes by which the rocks of Eastern Massachusetts are intersected, and along which motion has taken place,—usually of only a few inches. While extended motion might have taken place here, there appeared to be no evidence that such motion had occurred. The fault plane extends directly across the Avenue, dividing the conglomerate on the east side into two parts. The continuation of the so-called felsite across the Avenue would join it to an exceedingly well marked conglomerate. Since the fault plane is continuous and the conglomerate also extends across the street, it must be supposed that the "felsite" in like manner would extend across the narrow space in question, unless gratuitous hypotheses are resorted to, to support the felsite theory.

The bedding is shown to strike east and west by the position of the pebbles in various localities, which are of such a nature that they could not be affected by the supposed cleavage. Also pebbles that would be readily affected by pressure lie across the supposed cleavage, but in reality true bedding planes, exactly as they would if these planes were bedding planes, but not as they would if they were cleavage ones. Again, the lines of finer and coarser sedimentation proves that these are bedding planes. This shows with remarkable distinctness a few rods south of the "felsite" locality on Central Avenue. Here a coarse conglomerate alternates repeatedly with bands of sandstone, so that the planes of deposition are unmistakable.

This last locality shows pebbles of argillite of various sizes, from minute ones to those from one to two feet in length. This argillite resembles the supposed Primordial argillite exposed on the O. C. Mattapan branch railroad a short distance to the northwest. This then would prove that the conglomerate in this locality was younger than the argillite. Another fact bearing upon the same question is the occurrence of a conglomerate composed of the debris of the Quincy granite, and lying to the northward of it along Adams Street. This conglomerate has been assumed to be the same as the Roxbury conglomerate. The writer has shown before that the Quincy granite is eruptive in the Primordial argillite, and it has been seen by him and others to have eruptive characters, wherever it has been found in contact with the argillite of the region. How then is it possible to imagine that a rock like the Quincy granite could be in situ, having the same characters that it has to day; be denuded, forming a conglomerate, over which the Primordial argillite was laid down, and then erupted through this argillite? This, too, when the argillite has been declared to be unaltered or only partially so by the advocates of such views.

It would seem that the only logical conclusion is, that more than one conglomerate exists in the Boston basin, or else that the conglomerate is younger than the argillite, or again more than one argillite exists. All these suppositions may indeed prove to be true, but further observations are needed before any definite statements can be made on this subject.

It may be stated here as a conclusion from the above that, as the writer has repeatedly shown, serious mistakes have been made regarding the lithological character of many rocks in Eastern Massachusetts; and that the supposed pre-Primordial (Huronian) age of the felsite is not borne out on Central Avenue, for the rock is not a felsite but a conglomerate.

LECTURES AT THE PEABODY MUSEUM OF ARCHÆOLOGY.

During the months of November and December the Curator will give a course of five lectures, on Thursdays, at 3 o'clock. This course will be complimentary to the subscribers to the "Fund for Archæological Research in America under the direction of the Museum," and will consist of an account of the explorations by the Curator during the past season. The large amount of material collected during the explorations will make a very important addition to the Museum, but before it is arranged in the cases it is the desire of the Curator to exhibit it to the Subscribers of the Fund, and to others particularly interested in the work of the Museum. The Curator feels warranted in stating that during no previous year have the explorations of the ancient mounds and prehistoric burial-places of the United States been so productive of important results, and he wishes in this course of lectures to show to those interested the object of asking their support in aid of the work of the Museum, by an explanation of the methods of systematic research, and an exhibition of the results of the labor of one season.

The lectures will be as follows:—

Nov. 9. An account of ancient shell-heaps on the coast of Maine, with an exhibition of the specimens collected.

Nov. 16. The exploration of a prehistoric burial-place of the stone-grave people, at Brentwood, Tennessee, and of two large earth-mounds in the vicinity, with an exhibition of the contents of eighty stone-graves.

Nov. 23. An account of the ancient cemetery near Madisonville, Ohio, and of the singular "ash-pits" found in it; also of the earth-circles near by, with an exhibition of the large collection made during the exploration of the cemetery and the ash-pits.

Dec. 7. The exploration of a group of altar mounds in the valley of the Little Miami River, Ohio, with an exhibition of a collection of objects probably the most interesting and important ever obtained from the Western mounds.

Dec. 14. An account of "Fort Ancient," Ohio, the largest prehistoric earth-work in the United States, which encloses an area of 100 acres, illustrated by a diagram of the fort.
